

Wesleyan College Given Robert E. Lee's Signature

A treasured signature of General Robert E. Lee—written more than 73 years ago while he was president of Wesleyan College—has been presented to Wesleyan College by Miss Minna McLeod Beck, of Atlanta.

The signature belonged to her mother, the late Mrs. Cora Warren Beck, who until her death in 1938 was one of the oldest graduates of Wesleyan.

Washington (Ga.) Paper Drops Its 'Fifth Column'

WASHINGTON, Ga., May 30.—(P)—The News-Reporter, Washington's weekly newspaper, came out today with only six of the seven columns on the editorial page devoted to solid type.

In the space normally devoted to the fifth column appeared in large letters the statement: "We will tolerate no fifth column here."

The paper is owned by Adjutant General J. E. Stoddard and is edited and managed by Charles I. Reynolds Jr.

Council Group Approves CAA Airport Work

Finance Committee Votes $18,000 as City's Share of Building.

Early construction of a $37,500 building at the municipal airport to house the southeastern division headquarters of the Civil Aeronautics Authority was seen yesterday, when city council finance committee voted $18,000 as the city's share of the cost, and prepared to appeal to WPA for the remainder.

Mayor Hartsfield appeared before the committee to urge action to "keep for Atlanta this important branch of the federal government."

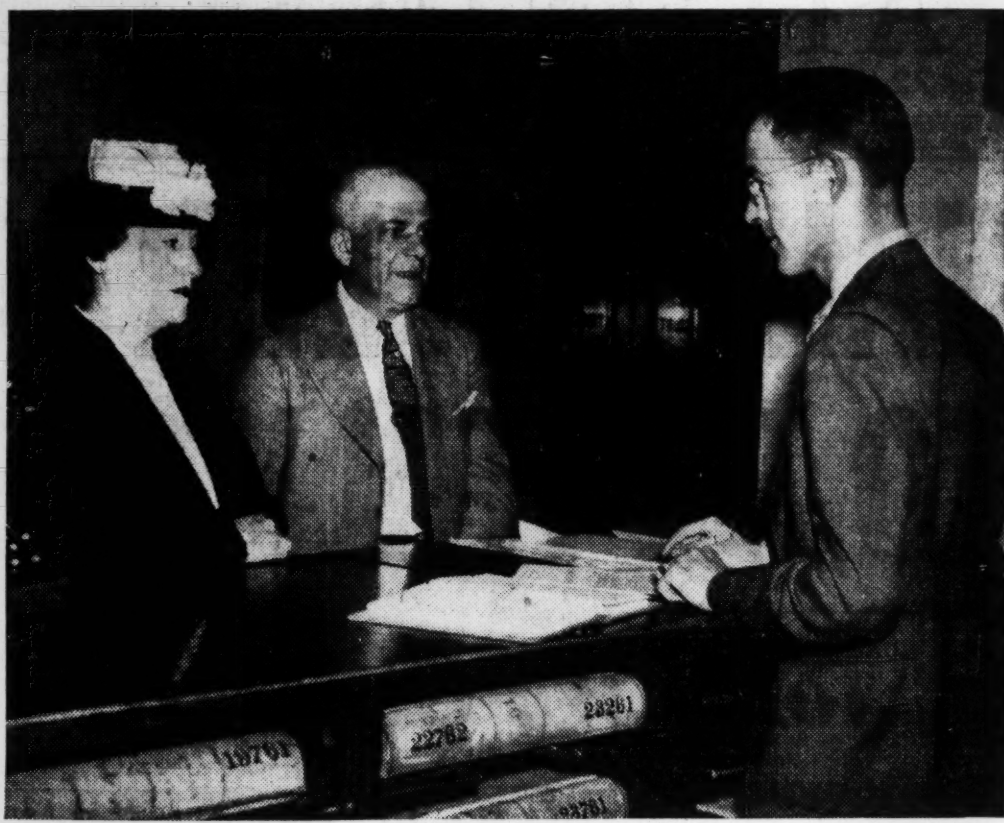

For several months, high CAA officials have insisted that adequate quarters be provided, and have offered to lease them if some arrangements could be made for construction.

Councilman Cecil W. Hester, chairman of the parks and aviation committee, strongly urged immediate action, pointing out that failure to provide quarters would force the CAA to seek a location in some other southern city.

Robert L. MacDougall, Georgia WPA administrator, and his aides already have agreed to assist in erection of an adequate building.

A meeting of the city budget commission will be held at 11 o'clock this morning to anticipate the city's $18,000 share, and to provide other urgently needed funds, according to Alderman Ed A. Gilliam, finance committee chairman.

CAA CONFERENCE.
MACON, Ga., May 30.—(P)—Increase in the size of the Civil Aeronautics Administration training school at Mercer University was discussed here today, although official confirmation was not forthcoming. The CAA course at Mercer the past year was available to only 30 students. Reports were that it would be increased at least to twice the size of the past year.

GETTING UNDER THE WIRE—J. A. Spero, center, who's lived in Atlanta more than 30 years—and has been so long in America he can't remember the year of his arrival—went with his American-born wife to the federal court yesterday to start naturalization proceedings. They are shown with E. E. Lee, a clerk in the naturalization office, old post office building.

Two Students Injured In Training Plane Crash

COCHRAN, Ga., May 30.—(P)—Ostell Harrison, 19, who received his pilot's license two weeks ago, and Carlton Ruark, 18, of Bostwick, students of Middle Georgia College, were injured in the crash of a training airplane yesterday.

Harrison, winner of a recent spot-landing contest, received throat lacerations and possible internal injuries. He attained first rank among junior college students of Georgia and South Carolina in pilot training examinations. Ruark received a fractured leg and lacerated eye.

Four-Foot Youth Sets Tall Record in School

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 30.—(P)—Small in stature but large in accomplishments is Graduate Monroe Bowyer, of Richmond Academy.

Only four feet two inches tall, this 16-year-old boy made the following record:

Sergeant, second, third and fourth years; company clerk, fourth; student council, Musketeer staff, distributing manager, mascot, junior college girl's baseball team, stunt night program, member winning platoon, prize drill, first year.

Aliens Seeking Citizens' Status Total 800 Here

Tomorrow Will Be Deadline for Such Applications.

More than 90 aliens in Atlanta yesterday obtained applications for citizenship, bringing to nearly 800 the number who have applied since Governor Rivers announced last Saturday suspension of business, professional, and occupational licenses of any who have not acted by June 1.

Today will be the last before the deadline.

What normally amounted to a years' supply of blanks have been issued within the past two weeks. Fred L. Beers, Jr., deputy United States court clerk assigned to the naturalization office, said. His father, veteran deputy clerk, and E. E. Lee, assistant in the office, remained on duty all of yesterday, although federal offices were closed for Decoration Day.

Rural Teachers To Be Offered Scholarships

$1,500 Knights Templar Fund Granted to West Georgia College.

Grant of $1,500 to West Georgia College at Carrollton by the Knights Templar Educational Foundation for the promotion of experiments in rural teacher education for the year 1940-41 was reported to the board of regents yesterday by Dr. I. S. Ingram, president of the college.

This sum will match $1,500 given by the Rosenwald Fund and will make available 30 scholarships of $100 each for selected third-year teachers. Applicants for special courses will meet at West Georgia College Saturday, June 8, and appear before a committee composed of representatives of the Knights Templar Educational Foundation, the Rosenwald Fund and the faculty of the college.

Instrumental in obtaining the money for the rural education experiment were Thomas C. Law, chairman of the Knights Templar Educational Foundation, and Kendall Weisger, The $1,500 grant is income from the George B. White-side Templar Memorial Fund, which is used in making grants to carefully selected students whose records show promise of future leadership.

Methodists at Smyrna Plan Annex Celebration

Smyrna, Ga., May 30.—Smyrna Methodists will celebrate completion of an annex to their church building with a breakfast, a luncheon and a dinner Saturday.

The young people's department will sponsor a breakfast from 6:15 to 8 o'clock and the Lovejoy class will give a luncheon from 11 to 2 o'clock. A dinner will be sponsored by members of the Fuller Memorial class.

Sunday school officials recently completed a two-story brick structure which they will use for Sunday school classes.

FOR DRINK HABIT

Excessive drinking often tends to cause jangled nerves, nervous irritability, fatigue, loss of efficiency and weakened faculty of judgment. Should you have a problem of excessive drinking in your home, just put tasteless Cravex in coffee, tea, liquor, beer, wine or food. New, proven method—physician's prescription. The ingredients of Cravex are an aid in helping to build up the nerves and appetite, thereby aiding to kill the excessive craving for liquor. Cravex is safe and doesn't upset the stomach. Cravex costs only $1.00 and your money cheerfully refunded if not delighted. For sale at Jacobs Pharmacy Co. Stores, and all other good druggists. Get Cravex today.—(adv.)

New Quarters For Fall Pupils If Bonds Pass

Wells Cites County School Needs, Urges Support of Issue.

The 24,000 students in the county school system who begin their summer vacations today will come back to improved school buildings in 1-2 fall if the residents of Fulton county vote the proposed $750,000 bond issue in the election Wednesday, June 5, Jere Wells, county school superintendent, declared yesterday.

If the issue is approved by 51 per cent of the some 20,000 qualified voters of the county outside Atlanta, a total of $3,000,000 will be made available for schools and other public improvements.

The county school system, graduating 960 young men and women this year, is growing so rapidly that the present buildings in many communities are already inadequate in space to properly seat and house the students.

Wells expects a 500-pupil increase in enrollment next year, with at least 150 of the pupils starting at the already-overcrowded North Fulton High school, where this year seven classes had only corners of the auditorium, machine shops and such space for "home" classrooms.

1,500 Move Up.

More than 1,500 grammar school students will progress to the high schools with the end of promotion exercises in all county schools today, and the history of the biggest year of the county system will have been written.

But as the school children happily begin their vacations at the end of exercises, teachers, parents and others interested in the welfare of the system will really begin to work—for the bond issue.

The $750,000 sought through the issue of bonds in the election Wednesday will be matched by an equal sum from the WPA for school purposes, and the total of $1,500,000 will be used to eliminate dilapidated buildings, provide more classrooms and space for schools where children are necessarily jammed together like sardines, and improve other facilities. But, in addition to this, another $1,500,000 will be made available to communities for relief work which is sorely needed, officials pointed out.

Highway Lettings Planned June 14

Contracts for highway projects totaling $335,935 will be let June 14, state highway officials announced yesterday. The projects follow:

Bulloch County—6.113 miles of surface-treated road, one bridge and one bridge culvert, on the Statesboro-Claxton road. Begins at the Evans-Bulloch county line and ends at the Statesboro-Metter road, or State Route 46.

Union County—5.456 miles of grading and surface treatment, three bridge culverts and one bridge on the Cleveland-Blairsville road. Begins approximately one mile south of Blairsville and extends 5.467 miles toward Cleveland.

Decatur County—1.696 miles of surface-treated road on the Quincy, Fla.-Atlanta road. Begins at the Georgia-Florida state line and extends toward Atlanta.

Bonds Indorsed.
Wells urged all qualified voters in the districts outside Atlanta to go to the polls Wednesday—calling attention again to the indorsement of the bond issue by three successive grand juries and by many prominent citizens.

The superintendent added that all the new buildings needed cannot possibly be made ready by opening of school in the fall, but he assured the voters that every emergency need will be met as quickly as humanly possible.

Abit Nix Will Address Log Cabin Congregation

Smyrna, Ga., May 30.—Log Cabin Sunday school, interdenominational institution south of Smyrna, will hold its 28th anniversary program Sunday, with Abit Nix, of Athens, as principal speaker.

The annual program will begin at 11 o'clock, with the regular morning worship, and will close with a dinner spread on the grounds at noon.

James V. Carmichael, of Marietta, will present the principal speaker, and A. B. Caldwell, superintendent of the Sunday school, will serve as master of ceremonies.

Atlanta Officer Dies in Virginia Plane Collision

Lieutenant Sullins Turner, Son of Emory Professor, Killed.

Second Lieutenant Sullins Preston Turner, 25, was killed Wednesday afternoon when his pursuit ship collided with another plane flying in formation near Langley Field, Va. It was learned here yesterday by his parents, Dr. and Mrs. E. K. Turner, of 2301 Ridgewood drive.

Turner, along with Lieutenant Lewis B. Meng, was stationed in Atlanta six weeks ago, when the two were engaged in interviewing prospective United States army flying cadets studying at Atlanta schools.

A resident of Atlanta for the past 21 years, Lieutenant Turner attended Druid Hills and Boys' High schools, and later Emory University for three years. He joined the air corps in March, 1938, after studying forestry for one year at the University of Georgia.

Son of Professor. His father, Dr. Turner, is professor of Latin at Emory University, and the second oldest faculty member in years of service. He is president of the Southern Language Association.

Young Turner received his reserve officers' commission at Kelly Field, Texas, in February, 1939. Assigned at once to Langley Field, he had been operating out of that station, and just this week returned from maneuvers near Shreveport, La.

Army officials said Turner collided with a ship operated by Lieutenant Norris Perry, while they were en route to Washington for an aeronautical exhibition. Turner's ship went into a spin and landed in a clump of bushes. Apparently he made no effort to parachute to safety. Perry landed his crippled ship safely.

Recent Visitor. Lieutenant Turner last visited his family here the weekend of May 3 while on leave. They received a postcard from him earlier in the week, in which he stated "the blitzkrieg is really on," and told of army activity in rearmament.

He is survived by his father and mother; two brothers, Duke and Herbert Turner, of Atlanta, and four sisters, Mrs. Ray Cravey and Mrs. W. E. Bostwick, of Atlanta; Miss Mildred Turner, of Roanoke, Va.; and Miss Jeanne Turner, of Rocky Mount, N. C. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by A. S. Turner & Sons.

Military tribute will be paid at the post chapel at Langley Field today, and Lieutenant Meng will accompany the body to Atlanta for burial.

Forrest Davis Is Placed in Fulton Tower

Surrenders to Sheriff's Office; Admits Taking the Money.

Forrest W. Davis, 38, former insurance company cashier who was indicted Tuesday on a charge of embezzling $18,900 over a period of five years, surrendered to the sheriff's office yesterday and was placed in Fulton tower.

Davis said he could not make the bond of $20,000, which was set by Assistant Solicitor Ed Stephens because of the amount of the money allegedly embezzled.

The prisoner refused to tell reporters what he had done with the money which he admitted taking from the insurance agency. He said a "series of circumstances" had caused him to do it, but he asked that "my friends withhold judgment of me until the trial."

Stephens said he would be willing for the bond to be reduced for Davis by a court order.

Revealing his personal support of Frank E. Gannett, New York newspaper publisher, for president, Clint W. Hager, chairman of the Republican state central committee, announced here yesterday that the state delegation to the G. O. P. convention would caucus here late next week to elect officers and representatives on the various convention committees.

The convention will be held at Philadelphia June 24.

Hager said he expected the delegation to be "badly split" on the first ballot at Philadelphia, adding that the unit rule would not govern and that delegates would vote for their own choices.

The state chairman said he would "stick to Gannett as long as his name is before the convention."

Asked if Gannett's name was withdrawn where his support would go, Hager said he hadn't determined.

Hager said that District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey has "only one vote on the delegation as far as I know."

The Georgia delegation is expected to leave here in time to reach Philadelphia for pre-convention conferences.

Roswell, Steeped in Tradition, Strives for Economic Security

Business Has Suffered Recently, But New Hope Is Seen in Number of Homes Being Built There by Atlantans.

(This is the second of a series of articles about Georgia towns which will appear in The Constitution throughout the summer.)

By HAROLD MARTIN.

ROSSELL, Ga., May 30.—This is going to be sort of a strange piece about Roswell, because it is going to touch but lightly upon the old days of this town's splendor, when the Six Founding families were at the peak of their wealth, and there was the sound of music and laughter from the gardens of Barrington and Bulloch Hall, from Great Oaks and from Mimosa Hall.

This is going to be more about J. L. Rainwater's rubbed-sage sausage, and Charley Phillips' bird-dog Preacher, and about Big John Martin, the mighty man, who wafled 500-pound bales of cotton into wagons with ease.

How It Started.

But before we begin, we will go back for just a minute to say a little about Roswell, and how it happened to be where it is. The story starts with a man named Roswell King, born in Connecticut in the decade before the Revolution, who came down to Darien, Ga., with the good Presbyterians of his day to make his fortune.

Now this man King was a restless man, and the flat marsh lands of the Georgia coast didn't suit him. So, when he rode up from Darien, in the early 1820's, to see about the gold lands the Darien bank owned up Dahlonga way, he came upon a swift-running creek just across the Chattahoochee. And he figured to himself here was where he wanted to live. So not long after he came back, with his son named Barrington King. And they built a cotton mill and a great house on a hill called Barrington Hall (where Miss Evelyn Barrington Simpson, a great-granddaughter, lives today) and they settled down to live. But they got lonesome for folks they had known, and they offered portions of the land they had acquired to others, if they would come.

Others Came.

Which they did. John Dunwoody, Archibald Smith, whose great-grandson is an Atlanta architect; Nathaniel Pratt, James S. Bulloch, and the widow Hand came to form the Six Founding Families of old Roswell.

They prospered mightily for many years. They owned slaves and they had money and they built great homes. Then the war came along and Sherman came with it, to burn the mill and to drain the families of the wealth they had created in a wilderness. The founders sleep now under great stone slabs on a high hill that overlooks the gaunt brick skeleton of the old mill they built, repaired after Sherman burned it, but burned again not long ago and now abandoned.

But the homes still stand, and the big store they built—and that brings us to J. L. Rainwater and the rubbed-sage sausage.

We found Mr. Rainwater in the shadowy depths of the big store that still sells, as it did in the days gone by, everything for man or beast from coffins to caps for muzzle-loading guns.

He's the meat market man. And though the store does now nothing like the $200,000 yearly business it used to do, the meat business is still good. Folks from Atlanta have heard of the fine cuts that Mr. Rainwater purveys and a few come all the way up here to buy. But mainly they come for the sausage. And they tell other people about it. And the upshot is, as soon as hog-killing time comes again, Mr. Rainwater has orders for sausage from as far away as Colorado and New York.

The reason is it's good sausage. And the reason it is good sausage is because it is the very soul of the pig, brought to its finest peak of perfection by the judicious addition or rubbed sage.

Uses Best Pork.

"Most folks," said Mr. Rainwater, "don't concentrate on their sausage. They trim up their pork into hams and shoulders, and what-not, and what is left they make sausage out of. We work different. We make the sausage out of the best of the hog and what is left we sell as meat."

We buy our sage from the women around here and they grow it themselves and dry it and rub it fine. Mister, it is sage. Now you can buy sage in boxes. But it is ground sage, made out of the leaves and the stalk, too, ground up fine. It has no power and I wouldn't have it in my sausage—"

At this point Mr. Rainwater excused himself and turned away. "What can I do for you, Preacher?" he said, to a large, liver-colored pointer dog that stood there with a sack in his mouth. He bent down and took a nickel out of the sack.

Preacher, the pointer, went over to the counter where the canned dog food stood and took a can off the shelf.

Almost Talks.

"Want to eat it here or take it with you," said Mr. Rainwater to the dog.

Preacher walked over to the table where the can opener lay and nuzzled it.

Mr. Rainwater opened the can, dumped its contents on a newspaper. Preacher ate, looked up, wagged his tail and walked out.

That's the blamedest dog you ever saw," said Mr. Rainwater. "He moosches a nickel somewhere and comes in here and asks for his food just like a man would. People give him so many nickels just to see him do it he's fat as a pig. Too fat to hunt birds, hardly. Every time somebody new comes in the store, one of the clerks, C. H. Hill or Joe Walraven, Jimmy Cooper or Miss Sue Clement, or some of the girls in the office send him over with a nickel just to watch them look surprised."

"Now about rubbing that sage—"

But Jim Hood, the mayor, had come in from weighing cotton out at the warehouse and the talk had turned to what Roswell must do, if she like so many little towns lying close to big cities, would survive.

Business Is Bad.

There was much to talk about, for Roswell is in a fix. The time is past when folks from north of there and all around came in to buy at her stores. They drive right through to Atlanta now and spend their money there.

Some of those who live in Roswell, probably 200 in all, work in Atlanta and draw their pay there. And that is good. But they spend most of it there, too. And that, to Roswell's merchants, is bad.

Roswell has some industry, but not much. The cotton mill paid about $2,000 a week in pay rolls, when its running. The pants factory over on Ox-Bow creek pays about $3,000. There is a big new laundry set up in the old Methodist church, and it works several. There is a planing mill or two, and Mrs. Jessie Bagwell has 19 women in a sewing project, but the town is not getting rich on its industry.

President C. F. Vaughn, automobile man, and the rest of the members of the Roswell Businessmen's Association, are giving the matter a lot of thought, trying to figure what to do.

Several Answers.

Some say more industry is the answer. Others, like Editor Tom Scoggins, figure other things would be best. They look down toward the River, where Devreux Lippett and Ryburn Clay and Colonel Sam Hewitt and Dr. J. D. Osborne have built big homes, and they think that is the answer. Build Roswell up as a fine place for well-to-do Atlantans to come and build. These people, they figure, would trade for most of their groceries and gas and stuff in Roswell. They might even buy their cars there, as some Atlantans do now. Those who think like this want to see swank station wagons around the park where the ox teams used to stand in the old days.

Others think Roswell should trade on its history. They think, with the paved roads now, folks would be drawn to a town with its flavor of antiquity. They want tourists.

Others think a combination of all three would be best, though they doubt somewhat if the station-wagon set and the industry would mix very well.

Most of them go for the country-resident idea. They rejoice every time another house goes up on Roswell road. They hope some day to be another Buckhead, a wealthy business area in the midst of beautiful homes.

Improvements Made.

They have been fixing up along here and there. The D. A. R. has set up a beautiful field-stone fountain in the park at South Roswell, in honor of the founding families. Paving is going on. L. C. Bowen, waterworks superintendent, says that uses of city water have increased since the system was put in four years ago until now there are 150 on the mains.

The dial system is replacing the old-style telephones, but Mrs. Glenn Nesbit, head operator, does not believe that Roswell people will be entirely pleased with them, at first. They can't dial and find out where the fire truck (bought for $200 from Rome) went, and whether the fire is out or not, or what time it is, or what is on at the movie, or "did anybody call me when I was out." And the dial won't be able to "find Joe for me."

Quiet Place.

All those things Roswell people have been used to under the operator system. Worst of all, beginning June 3, they'll have to start calling by number instead of name.

Roswell is a quiet place. Its ancient calaboose, made of tin and patched in spots where impatient residents have sought the open air, frequently contains "plain drunks" (fine, $6.75) and some "fancy drunks" (fine, $11.75), but that is about all. C. C. Fowler, city clerk, could recall only two killings. One was 50 years ago, the other 30.

Mention of the calaboose calls to mind a feat of strength of Big John Martin. Big John works at the mill. He has a chest like a barrel and a paunch that is bigger. He wears a small baseball cap on his head and he goes barefooted the year round.

Big John was sequestered there one night when he felt the urge to get out and mingle more freely with the citizens. He warned all in the sound of his voice he was coming out. Then he reached up and snatched the webbed steel window completely out of the walls, and came out.

Picks Up Car.

Once Big John drove the mill boss, a Mr. Potter, to Atlanta. When they came back to the car they found cars parked, fore and aft, tight against it. Big John grasped his front bumper, set the nose of the car out in the street and drove off. His feats with bales of cotton are local legends.

Roswell is really a town divided, physically if not spiritually. South Roswell is the old town. It has the big store, the mill village, the bank (capital and surplus, $50,000), the postoffice, the Sidewalk Caf, the drug store, the funeral home (a sideline of the big store, presided over by Otis Ball, who also handles the shoe department), and a garage called Joe's Place. Up the road a mile is the city hall and fire department, with Clancy Hughes as volunteer chief, three automobile companies, the grocery stores, an electric appliance store and the branch postoffice.

The road, which winds now between the two sections, is being straightened, which is a fine thing but causes Police Chief Hugh Dennis some worry about speeders.

Rucker Memorial.

A new baseball diamond, a kind of memorial to Nap Rucker, the town's most famous resident, is completed now, all except the grandstand. Fox hunting is good, and the country around is full of reds and grays. Charley Fowler and Lee Scott own a pack of hounds, and all able-bodied males of the town hunt in the fall.

Roswell's cemeteries are interesting, though the most interesting stone perhaps, marks no grave of a founding father.

It is a beautifully cut shaft relatively new. And after the name of the deceased it bears this inscription:

"Had a sweet disposition. Was murdered with a maul by Sanford Scott, while squatting down to set out a shrub, which he handed to her and which she thought was a friendly act. He was well known to us. His intent was robbery."

Looks Southward.

(Editor's note: Sanford Scott and Cecil Smith were convicted of the murder of Mrs. John M. Herring, wife of a retired army major, at Toccoa in 1936. Both were sentenced to life imprisonment and both were recently paroled.)

And that's Roswell, soaked in the atmosphere of the past and wondering about the future—too far away from Atlanta to be a part of the city and too close to be the rural trading center it once was.

Its eyes are turned south, watching happily every time the big town flings another scattering of houses northward toward the river. When they cross to build on the north bank, Roswell's got 'em, for her city limits start there.

Son of Harvard Head Seeks Princeton Entry

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 30.—(UP)—James Bryant Conant III, son of Harvard's president, probably will enter Princeton next fall.

The director of admissions at Harvard said young Conant had applied for admission to Princeton because he thought he "would not be able to enjoy a normal college life because of his father's position."

F. D. R.'s Naval Plan Sufficient, Vinson States

Georgian Says Service Has About All Money It Needs.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt's new national defense program will put the United States navy "in good shape," Representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the house naval affairs committee, said here today.

The Georgia congressman declined to discuss European war developments, but said the navy has "about all the money it needs."

Vinson stopped off here briefly while en route to his home in Milledgeville for a few days' rest. He will return to Washington Monday to be on hand when the navy appropriation bill comes up Tuesday.

took part last year in the dedication of the Cathedral of Christ the King. He was photographed with Cardinal Dougherty. Soon afterward, he was succeeded by the present imperial wizard, James A. Colescott.

Federal interest in Evans' testimony before the Georgia house of representatives' economy committee a year ago first was evidenced last July 26, when two United States agents, Kilgore and Sanders, obtained a lengthy tabulation of all emulsified asphalt purchases by the State Highway Department in 1927 and 1928.

He testified that he represented the American Bitumuls Company, Emulsified Asphalt Company, and the Shell Union Company, in addition to the Southeastern Construction Company, which he said is owned by his family.

Evans, who now lives in a palatial modernistic home at 300 Peachtree Battle avenue, was born at Ashland, Ala., September 26, 1881, son of the probate judge, H. M. Evans, and Georgia Strickland Evans. His mother died when he was two years old.

When he was 12, the family moved to Hubbard, Texas. Here he attended the public schools. Further study followed under his brother, who was superintendent of schools at Anson, Texas.

He followed this with a course in dentistry at Vanderbilt University, which he was unable to complete because of monetary difficulties. Later he passed the Texas dental examinations and began at once, in 1903, active practice in downtown Dallas.

He continued in this until taking over direction of the Klan and moving to Atlanta.

Greer Demands Showdown and Speedy Trial

Ex-Purchasing Agent for Highway Board Issues Statement.

John W. Greer Jr., indicted in the federal government's investigation into state affairs, last night issued the following statement: "My indictment is without foundation."

"I am ready for a showdown instant and am demanding an immediate trial."

Dr. Evans could not be reached for a statement. At his residence, it was said he would not be available until today.

Greer is a former purchasing agent for the state highway department and at present is editor of the Cordele Dispatch and clerk of the state house of representatives.

Greer is a resident of Lakeland, home city of Governor Rivers and Chairman W. L. Miller of the highway board.

Greer was appointed purchasing agent for the highway department shortly after Miller became chairman. He resigned in 1933 to assist in the management of Governor Rivers' campaign for re-election, and was elected clerk of the house early in 1939.

Greer is 30 years old, married and the father of three children.

Evans, Figure in Asphalt Quiz, Brought Ku Klux Klan to Peak

Former Imperial Wizard Has Disclaimed Any Responsibility for Outrages; Lives at Palatial Residence Here.

Hiram W. Evans' first contact with Georgia affairs was made in 1922 when, as grand dragon of the prosperous Texas branch of the Ku Klux Klan, he wrested control of the national hooded order from E. Y. Clarke, Colonel William Joseph Simmons and Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler.

It was when the first newspaper outcry against the organization had aroused the nation.

"The Klan was a dangerous institution and I decided I could handle it," Evans explained later. Arriving in Atlanta for the first klonvocation, or national conference, held at that time in a house in some woods near Stone Mountain, he found the national treasury in straitened circumstances.

"They were $90,000 in debt," he observed. "Out in Texas we had $20,000 of their money. In 60 days I had them out of debt and with $90,000 on hand."

At first he served as imperial kligrapp, or secretary, after the klonvocation, but was elevated to the post of imperial wizard, highest in the order, at the second national gathering on Thanksgiving of 1922.

Turbulent years followed, during which there was much litigation by the Simmons faction, headed by the old Atlanta Klan No. 1, for whom the late Captain William S. Coburn was attorney. The suits were unsuccessful and Evans was settled firmly in the saddle.

He led the Klan through numerous heated national and local political campaigns in the middle '20s, and his influence was widespread. He occupied elaborate suites in hotels over the country, with unlimited expense accounts. The Klan had its headquarters at the striking colonial palace on Peachtree road, which now is the rectory of the Cathedral of Christ the King.

Height of the Klan's power was reached in 1925. Later Evans explained its lessened activities after that year in these words: "I was stricken with appendicitis January 1, 1925. After that, something came over the organization. I think it was a fear I might die. I could no longer telephone a man in California, request him to go to Maine, and then have him call me from Maine and ask what I was wanted."

1,500,000 Members. He estimated that in its heyday the organization had more than 1,500,000 known members, and that "about 4,000,000 others wandered in the back door, half of whom never were reported to headquarters." There were 1,900 organizers.

Disclaiming responsibility for various outrages attributed to the Klan, Evans declared: "Any movement with the secrecy and tradition of the Klan will lend itself in time of stress to social disorder. When I came to the management, I organized the Klan into a fraternal type of group and brought it clearly within the law."

He caused to be added to the Klan oath this paragraph: "I most solemnly promise and swear that I will always at all times and in all places help, aid and assist the duly constituted officers of the law in the proper performance of their legal duties."

In recent years he renounced the campaign against the Catholics and Jews and the tenet concerning white supremacy, and

Colonel Urges U. S. To Compel Army Service

Million Men Should Be in Training Now, Davison Says.

(Editor's Note: This is another of a series of articles originated by The Constitution to assist in clarifying this country's situation in relation to events abroad. Others will be published from time to time.)

By WILLARD COPE. America should have compulsory military service, an army of at least one million men in training now, participating in mass maneuvers, receiving thorough preparation in modern warfare, and backed in every respect by an aroused public opinion.

These troops, and the others who must follow in great numbers, should be furnished highly perfected short-wave radio equipment; light, medium and heavy tanks, armored cars, antitank and anti-aircraft guns, machine guns, artillery and airplanes.

Minimum Necessity. Such a program is the minimum necessary to meet the German threat of world domination, physically and culturally, in the opinion of Colonel T. C. Davison, medical reserve corps, who, as senior surgeon of an American hospital with the army of occupation in Germany after the first World War, became well versed in German psychology.

"Thinking people should reflect now upon what would have been our fate if the Germans had won the last war," he declared. "It is not a pleasant thought, but it is salutary."

"We must consider France and Great Britain our outposts of democracy today, and, if they fail, then the burden of responsibility for the entire western hemisphere will fall largely on the United States. 'No one is so blind as he who will not see.' In my opinion Lindbergh is either ignorant, prejudiced or ill-advised."

It is his belief, based on observations in Germany, that the ruling military clique there did not for a moment abandon thought of world-rule after the 1918 defeat. He cited an instance of his experience while on duty with Evacuation Hospital No. 4 at Coblenz.

"About January 1, 1919, we in Coblenz noticed a long procession of cannons and ammunition going through into Germany and could not understand why, as we thought

HOW TO GET RID OF ANTS

Here's what to do: First, keep kitchen floors, pantry shelves, cupboards, etc., free from food particles, sugar, etc. Second, sprinkle Bee Brand Insect Powder in corners and along the back edge of shelves, back of and under the sink, refrigerator and stove. Blow it into cracks and crevices, back of and under wall boards. Build powder barriers between ants' nests and places where they feed. Repeat these treatments regularly. Bee Brand kills ants, roaches and other crawling insects quick—yet it's entirely safe to use. Insect on the ground? Bee Brand Insect Powder—in the red and yellow can. It's sold with a guarantee of satisfaction or your money back.

DEFENSE AIDES—Members of the newly created National Defense Commission met the President and cabinet heads yesterday and pondered the management of a $4,300,000,000 war chest. Beside the President is a stenographer. Before his desk are (left to right) William S. Knudsen; president of General Motors Corporation; Ralph Budd, board chairman of the Burlington Railway; Edward Stettinius Jr., chairman of United States Steel Corporation; War Secretary Harry Woodring; Attorney General Robert Jackson; Leon Hen-

F. D. R. Reveals Duties Given Defense Board

Each Member Assigned Specific Tasks To Perform.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today revealed the specific duties that have been assigned to various members of the special defense council to whom he has given authority equaling that of the defense board established during the World War.

The first task of William S. Knudsen, in charge of the fabrication of raw materials into the finished product, will be to get on to paper the specifications and requirements of the armed forces for the items which will be purchased. This, he added, involves a decision on the part of the army and navy as to whether, for instance, one of two types of training planes and engines shall be used instead of the much larger number now in service.

Schedule Production. Knudsen's next responsibility, he continued, will be scheduling production, so that various items will be coming along as needed for assembly. This means, he added, a system of working out priorities of manufacture, as was done in the World War. Knudsen's third and last responsibility will be the delivery of the finished products, he said.

Ralph Budd, in charge of transportation, Mr. Roosevelt said, will have the problem of making preparations for taking care of a much larger tonnage of freight than now being handled by the various types of carriers. His work will extend to ships, barge lines and trucks, as well as the railroads.

To Guide Employment. Sidney Hillman, who was prevented by illness from attending today's meeting, will supervise all noncombatant employment needs, and will take up a program of coordination about to be relinquished by Harry Hopkins. His work is to cover the provision of men for basic civilian pilot training, apprentices for instruction in mechanics and radio by the National Youth Administration—work which also is to be extended to the CCC. Mr. Roosevelt said—as well as the employment requirements and labor relations of industry.

Chester C. Davis, of the federal reserve board, is to keep in touch with agricultural supplies and prices, the President continued, to see to it that we don't run into a jam on such commodities. In his activities, the objective of parity prices for the farmer will be kept in sight, said Mr. Roosevelt, adding that this was not a partisan question but one on which both parties were agreed.

Leon Henderson and Miss Harriett Elliott are, respectively, to watch raw material prices and prices to the consumer, which involves setting up of a statistical organization, linked with the regular statistical agencies of the government.

Going into more detail on the transportation phase of defense production, the President said that from Knudsen and Edward R. Stettinius, in charge of raw materials, would go call for a specific number of freight cars or ships to carry ore, for instance, from the mines to the steel mills. Stettinius, he said, would tell Budd where the cars or ships were needed, the tonnage to be hauled, and the date on which they were wanted. Budd would then leave to John Pelley, the representative of the railroads, who would clear it with the carriers themselves, and leave it to the latter to see that the cars were provided. In connection with transportation, the President said he had a conversation last fall with Daniel Willard, former president of the Baltimore & Ohio, who was in charge of the lines when they were operated by the government during the World War. They agreed, he said, that in any future situation they wanted to avoid in every way possible having the government take the roads over again.

Purchasing, Mr. Roosevelt emphasized, will be largely handled through regular governmental agencies. Much of this will be done by the procurement division of the treasury, under Donald Nelson, of Sears-Roebuck, who yesterday was appointed procurement director.

Allies Treat Prisoners Like Cannibals, Say Nazis. BERLIN, May 30.—(AP)—(Via Radio)—DNB, official German news agency, declared today the German high command had received information that the Germans captured by the British "are treated as if they were murderers or cannibals, insulted terribly and threatened with death."

When places occupied by the British are attacked by the Germans, the British flee and leave the German prisoners to their fate, the agency asserted. "Germany will not allow these crimes to remain unpunished," DNB stated.

General Prioux Of France Made Nazi Prisoner

Terrific Toll Inflicted Upon Fleeing Allies, Berlin Reports.

BERLIN, May 30.—(AP)—Germany's thundering guns and diving planes took terrific toll on the Allied flight from Flanders tonight as the Nazi armies announced capture of the veteran French General Rene Jacques Adolphe Prioux with uncounted hundreds of his battle-shattered troops.

Prioux and his mechanized men had been fighting to hold open the lower end of the Allied escape corridor to the sea.

The Berlin radio said the 61-year-old general, commanding parts of the first French army, was trapped yesterday with his entire staff at Steenvoorde, just east of Cassel—barely 20 miles from Dunkerque, France.

It was added that "the number of prisoners taken by the Germans cannot yet be estimated, even approximately."

Reveal "Destruction." The high command proclaimed "destruction" of the escaping armies of the Allies and their ships by the score.

Two whole flying corps, land guns, and even the levelled muzzles of anti-aircraft weapons tore at the remnants of the British expeditionary force, struggling in the sea and along the coast between Dunkerque and Ostend.

Behind the British were the French, many of their units cut off from the shore, declared by the high command to be anni-lated or laying down their arms, helpless, uncounted.

Despite these scenes, with the German air force claiming the sinking of three warships and 16 transports and the bombing of a total of 60 ships, neutral military men here believed the British must have succeeded already in taking a considerable number of troops out of the Flanders trap.

They said there had been transport movements off the channel coast for four days.

Paris Hinted Next Goal. Yet to Germans the bloody coastal chapter written by massed dive bombers and German artillery opening up a "tremendous perspective for the future," in the words of the authoritative commentary, Dienst aus Deutschland.

Dienst said the war is entering a wide-open phase and that the first great attack of the German air fleet in the Dunkerque-Ostend area was a prelude not only to increased air assaults, but to intense submarine warfare, conducted from Belgian and Dutch bases.

Most Germans, watching straws in the wind, believe the fury of the land and air attack will descend within the next few weeks upon the French armies shielding Paris.

'Blood for Blood' Threat Reiterated by Berlin. BERLIN, May 30.—(AP)—(Via Radio)—German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop notified the French government today that Germany would retaliate with blood for blood in any instances of non-treatment of captured Nazi airmen or parachute troops.

The statement cited reports that "members of German air forces and parachute troops made prisoner by the French are meeting with treatment in utter contrast to the regulations of international law and treaties in force. . . . He said Germany "will henceforth treat members of the French air force falling into German hands exactly according to the French example."

U. S. Citizens Pay Homage To War Dead

Shadow of Europe's War Falls Over Grateful American People.

By The Associated Press. The shadow of Europe's holocaust fell yesterday upon countless quiet cemeteries in America, where grateful citizens gathered to honor the dead of past wars.

At Arlington National cemetery, across the Potomac from Washington, Paul V. McNutt warned a Memorial Day throng that the ideals and the work of the nation's hero dead were threatened with annihilation by "totalitarian aggression."

Speaking at Gettysburg, Pa., in the National cemetery where Abraham Lincoln made his famed address, Governor Arthur H. James, of Pennsylvania, declared: "Peace can be attained, if at all, first by preparing to defend ourselves; second, by tending to our own business and tending to it properly; and third, by setting as our goal the vision of an America of the future which can be a rock of liberty in a sea of anarchy and dissolution."

President Roosevelt, himself busy with the greatest peace-time armament program in the history of the United States, sent Major Horace B. Smith, a military aide, to Arlington to lay a wreath of spring flowers on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier.

In London, Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy and other Americans attended services for the soldiers of the United States buried in British cemeteries.

After placing a wreath at the tomb of England's Unknown Soldier, the ambassador was told by the subdean of Westminster Abbey:

"We know your prayers are with this nation, and that you stand for the same things we do."

Today's Attendance: One Million!

World's greatest sport fans are Americans. It is estimated that every clear day in the season approximately one million spectators pay admission to baseball games in the United States. A million a day is a lot of people!

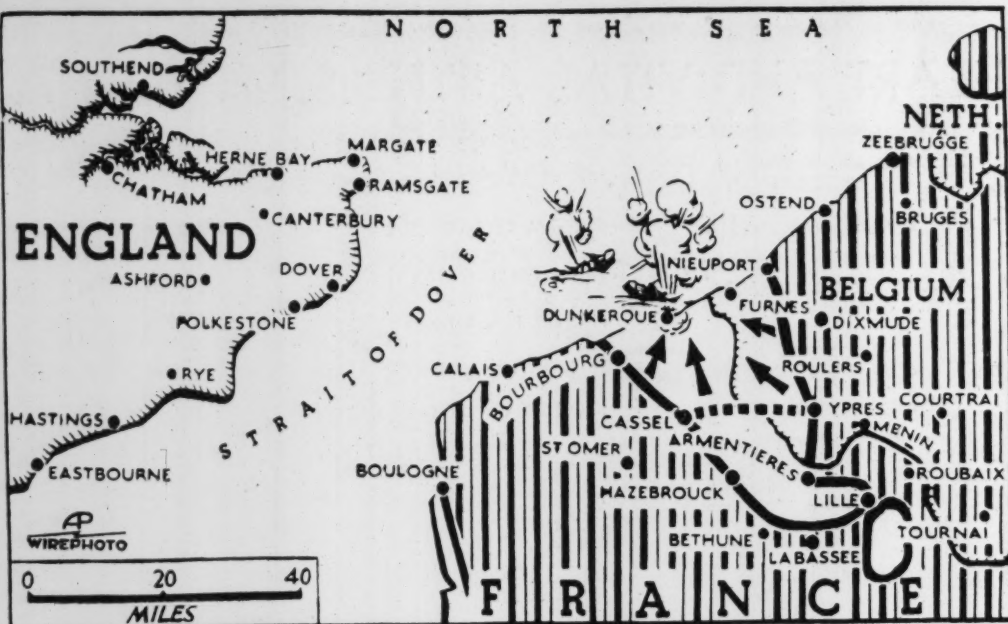

Another American custom that has more than a million fans a day, is eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. More than a million servings a day! Not merely because ALL-BRAN is a crisp, delicious cereal—but also because it helps to keep people "regular"; helps them to throw off the burden of common constipation (due to lack of the right kind of "bulk" in the diet).

Why this huge vote of confidence? Because for two whole decades, ALL-BRAN has been receiving the test of science. Scores of medical researchers have proven and re-proven its effectiveness, thousands of physicians have recommended it, millions of Americans have used it. Why don't you, too, "join the regulars" with KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN? You'll find it at any grocer's. Eat it for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water.

POCKET SHRINKS—This is how the Germans were closing the Flanders pocket on the Allies yesterday, trying to crush them before they could escape by sea. Striped areas were under German control. Within the pocket Allies fought desperately to cover a retreat by sea. Below the main pocket French units were trapped in a small circle below Lille. Within the main pocket the Allies had a defense line from Cassel to Ypres (broken line). British were principally above this line. The French, below the line, were fighting a rear-guard action.

Awed, Defeated Byrnes Urges Troops Tell of CCC Defense German Might Training Plan

Continuous Air Attacks By Great Swarms of Planes Related.

A SOUTHEAST PORT IN ENGLAND, May 30.—(P)—Thousands of Britain's smashed army of Flanders, staggering with fatigue from the bloody 20-day failure across the channel, landed on home soil tonight.

But many were lost on the narrow stretch of water that was turned all the way into a raging strip of fire. With them were many French infantrymen; there were men who told in awe of the might of the German army and air force and of the cheapness with which life was held in the Nazi columns.

Their trip across the channel had been scarcely less punishing than the 20 days spent in ravaged Flanders.

One soldier thus described the embarkation:

"When we were hit (by bombs) we swam ashore, but when the ship didn't go down we swam back to her again to take her out of the harbor. But then she turned turtle and we had to swim again. Some of us were in the water for hours before we were picked up by a British warship. Telling of suffering continuous air attacks from the very beginning of the Flanders campaign, they all declared it was the great swarms of German planes and the great weight of German numbers that finally pushed them off the Flemish plain.

Hospital Ships Targets.
Hospital ships, as well as troopships were targets for Nazi bombs, they declared.

"Our fliers are magnificent," said one, "but it's volume that we need."

Another, telling of the channel trip, thus philosophically described his troubles with a ship that had been hit:

"I was very thankful when, after swimming seven or eight miles, I was able to get hold of a table. Another fellow and I sat on it until we were picked up. All of us were almost naked and we have had no food since yesterday at midday and no sleep for three days.

"But it's back again now to help the army..."

"It's not only British troops we're bringing over," he explained, "but French and Belgians, too. The Belgians don't want to give up fighting."

Need More Planes.
"If only they would give us more planes we could tell the Germans a different story. As it is they have got as much as they can give and we have not been bombing and machine-gunning men in the water."

Five Belgian officers in the party declared they were astounded when the order came for the Belgian army to cease fighting.

One Belgian, speaking of King Leopold's capitulation, said angrily:

"I was asked to hand over my revolver. I immediately refused and with my companions I made for the coast and finally we reached the British and French."

"We do not intend to stop fighting on orders of Leopold—and there are thousands of other Belgian soldiers of the same opinion. The British and French are still making a magnificent show in the north."

The withdrawals from Flanders, which already have cost the British three destroyers and a number of auxiliary craft, went on tonight while those remaining on the French side were fighting a great rear-guard action to hold Dunkerque until the retreat is complete.

Number of Saved Unknown.
There was no indication of the total number of the British able to withdraw.

Over and over these returning men, many blood-stained and black with powder—emphasized the need for planes and more planes.

They told of Germans attacking in waves of 50 planes time after time, literally filling the air over big salients.

They accused the Nazi fliers of mass murder of refugees, flying 200 feet off the ground and sparing nobody—not even the children.

"They mowed them down with machine-gun fire like grass under a mower," said one man.

A returning artillery sergeant said:

"We have been bombed night and day until we have got really used to it. The Germans are poor shots and our casualties have not been heavy, although they rained bombs on us."

Their aim was no match for the RAF (Royal Air Force) and they know it. Yesterday we watched one (British) spitfire pilot take on seven machines and bring down three of them. The German airmen seem to concentrate their attacks with dive bombers, then come down low and let go with machine guns."

A non-commissioned officer of a line regiment:

"It's not been a fair fight yet. Our infantry have not had a real chance to get to grips. The Germans have no heart for meeting us in fair and square infantry attacks."

A private who had been shot in the foot declared he wanted to go back as soon as his wound healed, adding:

"I cannot forget the way those Huns treated the refugees."

A sergeant major asserted:

"Plenty to Remember."
"Although we come back wounded, we have given them plenty to remember us by. At times the slaughter was wholesale. Column after column (of Germans) was mowed down by our Bren guns. The morale of our men was superb. When they were embarking bombers raided the ships and one (ship's) gun crew was put out of action. Wounded men went to take a share in feeding the guns."

A Glasgow soldier said the wounded men "lived like rabbits in the sand dunes" of the channel coast until the navy "came along and did a grand job of work."

Able Seaman A. B. Bradley said that when the whalers of his rescue ship were sent ashore to look for the British troops the men came out wading up to their necks in the water.

F. D. R. Backs Move Designed To Bolster Non-combat Activity.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(P)—The administration took steps today to develop, in the CCC and elsewhere, the trained manpower necessary to back up the expanded defense program.

With President Roosevelt's approval, Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, proposed legislation to provide for the training of civilian conservation corps enrollees in noncombatant activities essential to the army and navy in war time.

The South Carolinian proposed the training of CCC workers in such activities as motor vehicle maintenance, road building, photography, cooking and first aid.

Congressional sentiment for military training in the CCC has been increasing steadily in recent weeks, and it appeared certain that Byrnes' plan would be approved.

Under the proposal, enrollees would not be required to go into the army, navy or reserves, but would be given preference if they wished to enlist after their primary training.

Mr. Roosevelt announced at a press conference, meantime, that Sidney Hillman, labor member of the newly formed National Defense Commission, would have charge of base training for civilian pilots, utilization of vocational training through the National Youth Administration, and the turning out of noncombatant workers.

The army and navy will train combatant personnel, aviation ground crews, mechanics and cooks.

From Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, came a proposal for an "Industrial CCC."

An industrial training system, based on the organizational setup of the CCC, would send thousands of newly trained young men into key defense industries, the Florida senator continued, and would give powerful impetus to the entire preparedness program.

SOOTHE MINOR BURNS
MOROLINE
WHITE PETROLEUM JELLY

Where? Where will the withering lightning of Herr Hitler's armed might strike next? That's the question that's causing many an uneasy head on sleepless English pillows. For Britain fears she's next on the blitzkrieg program. The map at left shows how the invaders are likely to strike, and where. England's large number of airports (150 of all kinds south of Leeds) makes her susceptible to assault by parachute troops. In greatest danger are her industrial midlands, the heart of her munitions industry. The parachute technique is simple and deadly. Reconnaissance planes spot an undefended or lightly defended field (and it's a tough task to guard 150 airports). Then come the 'chutists, who set up machine gun nests. Follow transports, with troops, munitions, heavier weapons. The home defense must then become the attackers to dislodge the invaders. But that is far from the only threat. Airplanes flying at 20,000 feet need not even cross the coastline to bomb Britain's vital east coast dock facilities. They can release their bombs three miles out, and momentum will carry the missiles to the objective. They do not even need to aim at an individual target, as in "spot" bombing. They can do "area" bombing and still smash the dock areas. Using the "area" technique, three bombers, each carrying eight 250-pound bombs, fly abreast. They release their missiles by automatic devices at one-second intervals. Such a blasting would demolish an area 1,100 yards long, 450 wide, a total of 102 acres. A wave of 120 bombers, it has been estimated, could ruin the London dockage. Another hazard, paradoxically, is England's excellent road network. 'Chutists, with motorcycles, would be a hornet's nest once established on any of the 150 airports. Radiating roads would carry them quickly to key industrial objectives. Britain, however, has geared her defense to balk the Nazi plane waves. A heavy patrol of interceptor fighters is constantly in the air over the channel. Patrol boats augment the watch. And a barge-anchored balloon barrage guards key points off the coast. The war's outcome in no small measure will depend on whether all these defenses are adequate.

RICKETY is this wooden stairway around which crowd teachers and grammar school students at the Union City county school. And dilapidated is the building itself. The proposed $750,000 bond issue to be voted on June 5 would give these children a sturdy, fireproof building.

Success or Failure--It's Up to You

It all depends on what you want, you voters of Fulton county. If you want your youngsters to get their schooling in attractive, modern, safe surroundings, with all the latest facilities for making studies palatable and easy to grasp, or if you want them to muddle through in dilapidated, old-fashioned, in many cases actually unsafe buildings—well, the decision is up to you. For if a sufficient number of you cast ballots for the proposed $750,000 bond issue in the election Wednesday, June 5, a total of $3,000,000 will be made available for schools and other public improvements. Think of it! Three million smackers will be as good as tossed into the furnace if the issue fails to get the approval of 51 per cent of the some 20,000 qualified voters in the county outside Atlanta. If you aren't aware just how badly this money is needed, then take a serious look at the pictures to right, left, and below. They tell their own vivid story. Note the dilapidated buildings, the cracked walls, the rickety steps. How can a child concentrate to the best advantage in such dingy surroundings? The answer is simple. He can't! That's why you've got to march to the polls Wednesday, June 5 (mark well that date!), and vote for the bond proposal, which in reality means infinitely more than just so many dollars. It means increased happiness, health, and educational advantages for your young ones. Yes, it might even mean their very lives. So off you go, and don't content yourself with casting your own vote. Take along your neighbor, and your neighbor's neighbor. Make sure the issue isn't rejected! Don't forget it's up to you. (Story on Page 2)

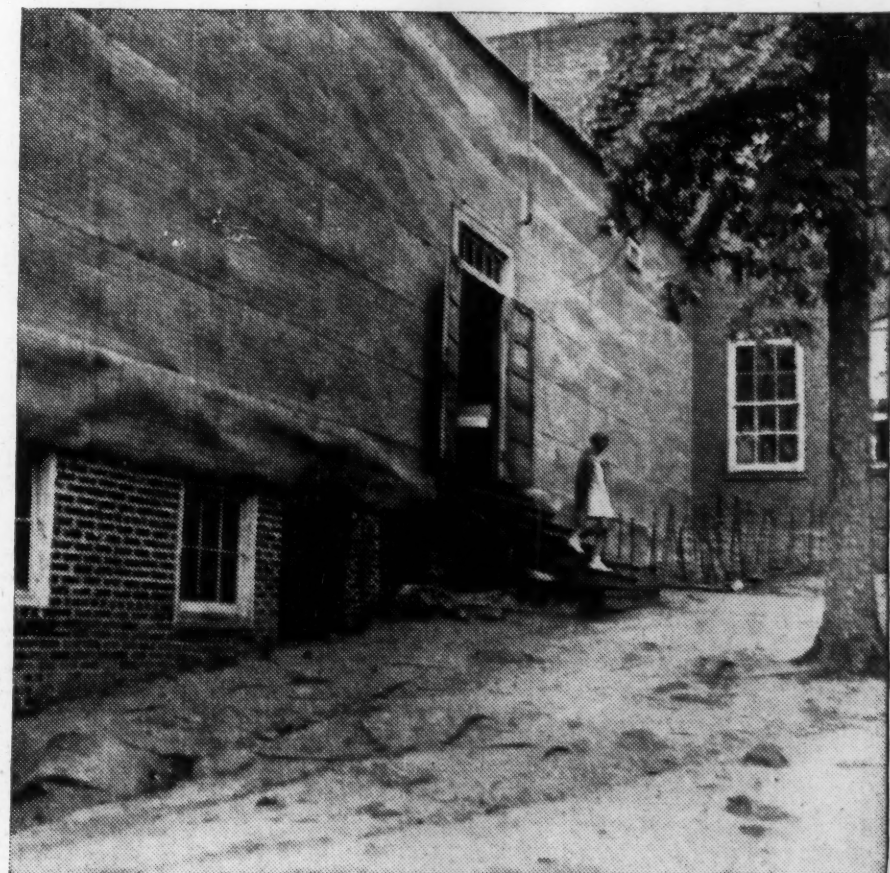

HOT AND COLD is okay-dokey for the well-known running water, but decidedly not for youngsters striving for book larnin'. Yet, these tots at Union City school are cold in the winter, hot in the summer. Note the old iron stove and the cracked walls.

OVERFLOWING Already, at the North Fulton school, they have more students than places to put them, and each year enrollment increases. Here's a class in its "home" room at North Fulton. Really, it's the auditorium, with no desks, no place for books.

EAGER, PROMISING are these young faces at Union City school. All they ask is a chance to show how good their best is, but they can't do it in their present dilapidated building. They need a good, sound structure in which to study. A vote will help get it.

IT AIN'T SAFE Pardon the way it's put, you English teachers, but it really ain't. Note the tin wall and the old steps the child is descending at the back doorway of the Union City school. This ramshackle building should be replaced by a new and modern one—pronto.

Pendergast Out On Probation For Five Years

Former Kansas City Boss Ends Year's Sentence for Tax Evasion.

KANSAS CITY, May 30.—(AP)—Tom Pendergast, a glum-faced man one year ago as he left his Democratic political machine in control of Kansas City and went to prison, came out smiling today from Leavenworth federal penitentiary.

The 67-year-old stocky figure was in genial spirits after completing a term for income tax evasion.

"Hello, so glad to see you," he beamed to old friends on his way to the federal office where rigid terms of a five-year probation were read to him, including one forbidding him to enter politics.

Then he accepted service of a state warrant charging him with bribery, pleaded innocent and was freed on $3,000 bond.

Chastain To Seek More Park Funds

Troy Chastain, county commissioner who is chairman of the parks committee, left for Washington yesterday afternoon to seek more WPA money for the county park program.

He planned to confer with WPA officials in an effort to speed up the entire park program and to furnish additional employment for WPA workers here.

In the meantime, Ed Almani, chairman of the commission, was in Rome conferring with H. P. Morris, state highway division engineer, attempting to get 12 or 15 secondary road projects started in Fulton county.

Chastain expected to return to Atlanta tomorrow or Sunday.

Rivers Names June as Dairy Month for State

Urges Consumption of Milk Products Such as Ice Cream.

The youngsters should enjoy the month of June, for Governor Rivers has urged citizens of Georgia to consume as many dairy products as possible during that month, including ice cream.

He issued a proclamation yesterday, assigning June as "Dairy Month." He pointed out that the state's great farm industry, of which the dairy cow and her products is a part, approaches $40,000,000 annually.

"Today milk and dairy products are relatively cheap foods, June being the season of abundance on the farm—with prices tending downward, so that milk is now among the most economical food purchases for any family," the chief executive said.

So when mother insists that little Johnny can't have any more ice cream, he can counterattack with the argument—"It's the Governor's orders."

House Votes Third Set of Locks for Canal

Bomb-Proof Construction To Be Part of U. S. Naval Defense.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(UP)—The house today virtually assured construction of a third set of Panama Canal locks by reversing itself and approving, 187 to 141, an appropriation of $15,000,000 for preliminary work on the project.

President Roosevelt called for construction of the new locks, which probably will be reserved for naval use, on the grounds that they are vital to the national defense. He vigorously urged immediate construction on his return from an inspection tour of the Canal Zone in February.

The house voted down the fund when it first was proposed, holding the project was being pushed too rapidly. The senate wrote the $15,000,000 item into the bill, however, and the house, by today's vote, agreed to that action.

Eventual cost of the locks, which would be bomb-proof, is estimated at $277,000,000. Experts contend that the two existing sets of locks are vulnerable not only to air attack but to sabotage.

The appropriation provision, in addition to making $15,000,000 immediately available in cash, also would authorize the government to enter into contracts for $90,000,000 of future work.

Representative David Terry, Democrat, Arkansas, leading the fight for approval, warned the house that the present locks, although being bomb-proofed as rapidly as possible, are inadequate for war-time purposes. Opponents argued that if sabotage or bombing could destroy the existing locks, construction of a third set would be useless because they also would be vulnerable.

Senate Votes Unanimously For Hospitals

Bill Would Provide $60,000,000 for Construction.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—A $60,000,000 hospital construction program, recommended by President Roosevelt and supported in its final revised form by members of both major parties, won unanimous senate approval today.

The legislation, authorizing a six-year program of direct federal expenditures and grants to states and communities, now goes to the house.

Under the set-up, $10,000,000 would be authorized for the year ending July 1, 1941, to be spent by the Federal Works Agency for building hospitals which would be leased to states or communities making application for the projects.

The senate accepted an amendment supported by Senators Wagner, Democrat, New York; Barbour, Republican, New Jersey, and George, Democrat, Georgia, to assure that facilities provided by the bill would be made available "without discrimination on account of race, creed or color."

Article Discusses Georgia Flagstone

An article on "Use of Flagstone in Georgia" by Dr. A. S. Furcron, assistant state geologist, appears in the current issue of "Stone," a nationally-circulated magazine.

Pointing out that the mining of flagstone is now a flourishing industry in Georgia and the south, he comments on its use in Atlanta building as follows:

"Much flagstone now is used in the construction of new residences, particularly in the northern part of the city of Atlanta. Atlanta has one of the finest residential sections of any city in the country, and the use of flagstone in the newer buildings is adding much pleasing variety to construction."

Pension Checks To Be Mailed Today

Pension checks totalling $63,150 will be mailed out today to Georgia's 87 remaining Confederate veterans and 1,969 Confederate widows, State Treasurer George B. Hamilton announced yesterday.

Eighty-one veterans who get $50 per month will receive $4,050; six veterans at the Old Soldiers' Home will get $5 each; 818 widows who were married prior to 1881 will get $24,540; and 1,151 widows who were married prior to 1920 will receive $34,530. The checks are mailed each month to the ordinary of the county where the veterans and widows reside.

Kiwanians Urged To Assist Defense

ALBANY, Ga., May 2.—(P)—“Bunker Hill was faced with no more serious problem than America faces today, and we must have an aroused America to carry out the strong defense program as outlined by the President,” Hamilton Holt, of Macon, told a third division interclub meeting of Kiwanis clubs here last night.

Holt, who is past district governor of Kiwanis, spoke to Kiwanians from Albany, Tifton, Cairo, Valdosta, Thomasville, Moultrie and Sylvester.

Continuing his reference to America's defense program, he said that while Americans must support preparedness plans, “we must not become victims of the propaganda machine. We hear of many atrocities, some of which are true. It is our job to separate the wheat from the chaff.”

Tax Collector's Post Is Sought By Mathews

City Employee Quits Job To Make Race in Primary.

Charles L. Mathews, chief deputy city tax collector for more than 11 years, yesterday resigned his position effective June 1, to make the race for tax collector to succeed R. A. McMurry, who will not offer for a new term.

Mathews is the first city employee to quit his post as a result of the new civil service act, which has been in effect for more than a year.

Born and educated in Atlanta, Mathews is prominent in civic, fraternal and political circles. He is a Mason, a member of the Junior Order of American Mechanics, and is vice president of the Inter-Civic Council, an organization of leading local civic clubs.

When Mathews qualified with L. Glenn Dewberry, secretary of the city Democratic executive committee, he exhibited a letter from McMurry, addressed “to whom it may concern” telling of Mathews' experience and asserting “he is thoroughly qualified to fill this important office.”

A deacon in the North Atlanta Baptist church, Mathews has been prominent in Sunday school work in Atlanta and throughout Georgia for the past 15 years. He also is state treasurer of the Georgia Sunday School Association. He, his wife and five children live at 455 Tenth street, N. W.

“Two reasons impel me to make this race,” Mathews said. “One is of course that I want the advancement and feel entitled to it as a matter of seniority. The other is that I wish to continue the splendid record of efficient, conscientious service which Mr. McMurry directed for more than 11 years. When elected, it shall be my purpose to continue the same policies inaugurated by Mr. McMurry, and to protect the best interests of Atlantans in an honest, efficient and courteous administration.”

in a situation which, though not desperate, is gravely unfortunate? Our administration is not respected either at home or abroad.

U.S. Pilots Wait All Along Coast For SOS Calls

Coast Guard Fliers Ready for Dangerous Rescues at Sea.

By CLARKE BEACH.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(P)—Flying life guards, trained for streamlined rescues at sea, are deploying along the coasts and waiting for tomorrow's desperate radio calls of SOS and NCU.

With travel between the continents being routed more and more through the ocean air, birdmen of the coast guard are facing new and challenging conditions in preparing for deep-sea rescues. The old-time breeches buoy and slow-moving cutter won't be enough. Help must come by air, and it must come swiftly, heedless of weather conditions.

Planes Called "Ducks."

On the brine-lashed ramps of the coast guard air stations new Hall boats are poised for flight. These planes, affectionately called "ducks" by their pilots, but known to their makers as the PH-3, are ideal for speedy rescues far out on the high seas. They have a cruising range of 2,000 miles and are capable of lightning-fast landings and take-offs. The quicker the take-off, the fewer the waves a plane must buck.

Coast guard air stations are being spotted along both coasts. When the two newest stations, at Elizabeth City, N. C., and San Francisco, are completed this summer, every mile of the United States coast will be covered by air patrol.

Above all, the coast guard is perfecting the technique of the off-shore landing, that extremely dangerous feat of aviation.

Makes Men Shudder.
Coast guard aviators are called upon again and again to fly hundreds of miles from shore in the worst of weather, then land and take off on the roughest seas. Pilots who are used to the level, carefully tended landing fields on shore shudder to think of the watery mountains on which the coast guard fliers have to set down their planes.

Six of the coast guard personnel have been killed in rescue flights, but for the most part the flying life guards have been remarkably successful. Three have been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, the highest aviation honor of the military services.

If the day comes when a trans-oceanic plane has to make a forced landing far out at sea, the coast guard planes may be the only craft that can give help in time.

The coast guard pilots have what they consider a conservative attitude toward their work. As one pilot explained it: "We want just a little better than a 50-50 chance."

Parker Quits Race; Cox Is Unopposed

MOULTRIE, Ga., May 30.—(P)—Withdrawal of John C. Parker as a candidate today left Representative E. E. Cox unopposed for re-nomination in the second congressional district.

Parker, speaker pro tem of the state house of representatives and at present recuperating from an operation in Piedmont hospital in Atlanta, notified friends here by wire that the condition of his health would not permit him to make the race.

Entries for the congressional post close June 1. Up to the present Parker and Cox were the only qualified entries. Parker is a resident of Moultrie and Cox of Camilla.

Two Killed, Five Injured In Two Auto Accidents
ATHENS, Ga., May 30.—(P)—Two Georgians were killed and five others injured, one gravely, in two automobile accidents last night.
Rex Bates, young Athens painter, died and his brother, Hackett, was hurt critically in a collision of two cars near here. Homer Legg, of Lincolnton, ordinary of Lincoln county, sustained a broken hip.
J. S. Reeseau, about 54, of Alto, was killed in an overturned automobile near Alto.

Seniors of Dalton High Will Go to Washington
DALTON, Ga., May 30.—Between 25 and 30 members of the 1940 senior class of Dalton High school will leave Saturday for their annual trip to Washington, D. C. The party will be chaperoned by Miss Ruth Strain, Homer Sutton and Jack Lee, faculty members.
The group will go from Dalton to Portsmouth, make an overnight trip to Baltimore, then go to Annapolis and Washington, where they will spend several days visiting points of historic interest.

New Methodist Bishop To Succeed J. L. Decell
MACON, Ga., May 30.—(P)—A new bishop for the Georgia and Florida conferences of the Methodist church will be introduced here next week at the opening of the pastor's school at Wesleyan College.
Arthur J. Moore is the new bishop. He will succeed Bishop J. L. Decell, who has been transferred to the Alabama conference.

ECHOLS' POPULATION.
VALDOSTA, Ga., May 30.—Echols, smallest county in the eighth congressional district, showed a substantial gain in population in recently completed census figures. The county shows a population of 2,964, compared with 2,744 in 1930.

Government Lags

One of the most remarkable conditions in history has arisen in this country since it awoke to danger and realized the necessity for drastic enlargement of the armed defense forces of the nation.

Public opinion is far ahead of governmental action. There was surprise, for instance, at the modesty of the requests made by President Roosevelt in his message to congress. The people were expecting much greater proposals. There is a feeling that the sums asked for enlargement of the army to 400,000 men and for the building of a few more naval vessels are far short of what should be expended.

Congress increased the amounts asked and passed the requisite bills in almost record time and, unprecedented, by unanimous vote in the senate. When this news was sent over the country it was received by the vast majority with utmost gratification, with a feeling of relief that congress was responding 100 per cent to the emergency, without the delays that have come to be regarded as unavoidable in congressional procedure.

Then, greatest surprise of all, congress awoke to the fact that the people, in overwhelming majority, actually wanted an increase in taxes to meet the defense costs, without borrowing. Even though this is an election year, when tax increases are supposed to be a sacred political taboo, the public urge was so great that congressional leaders about-faced overnight and now bills are pending to raise income taxes 10 per cent and others in like proportion.

There is a strong feeling that other steps, as yet not broached in Washington, should be taken at once.

Many people feel that the boys in the CCC camps should be given all the military training possible, without delay. The nation knows how, when the A. E. F. went to France during the World War, thousands of American boys died unnecessarily, simply because they had not received sufficient training in advance.

There is a strong sentiment that the relief organizations, the PWA and the WPA, should be put to work constructing the buildings which will be necessary, even for an army of 400,000, and which are not yet in existence. There is need for barracks and training camps, cantonments and supply centers. Yet congress failed to provide for this, passing a relief appropriation of more than a billion dollars without removing clauses in the law which now prevent undertaking of such projects by the WPA.

Many others feel that at least physical training should be given to all men of those ages which would be subject to army service if war comes to these shores. There is even a strong sentiment in favor of immediate operation of some form of selective draft, so that the nation would have practical experience in mobilization if the need arose. In modern ways of war, speed of mobilization is essential for victory. There are no months or years in which to plan and prepare after the emergency has arisen.

The truth is that the government cannot move too fast in defense rearmament, cannot spend too much, if the wishes of a majority of the people are to be met.

In the present realization of national danger, the people are leading and those to whom they would normally look for leadership are unable to keep up with public opinion.

It is a remarkable condition and demonstrates, to some degree, the unity which rises in this free nation when the need for concerted action comes.

Presently, no doubt, we shall buckle down to the emergency. For the nonce, the something-must-be-done boys have the floor, while Paul Reveres ride hither and yon with no message.

It was a Maine clam-digger who reported that he had either found a set of false teeth or a shark got away.

He who lives by the sword shall perish by the same. It's the long wait that gets humanity down.

Hollywood's Sam Goldwyn startles the trade with a diatribe against B pictures and bingo, delivered in a strange dialect which turns out to be perfect English.

History tells us that letting a few hundred thousand Germans overrun England would make Englishmen of them, but it takes time.

Willkie's Suggestion

Wendell Willkie, frequently mentioned as a candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency, has suggested that Secretary of State Cordell Hull publicly ask the fighting Allies, France and Great Britain, in what ways the United States can best help them in their struggle for national survival, short of sending American troops overseas.

There is much to recommend Mr. Willkie's proposal.

In the first place, if full publicity was given to such a request, in all old world capitals, it would tend to make Mussolini hesitate still further before sending Italy into the war on the side of Germany. It would make plain the American attitude toward the belligerents and serve as warning to Benito that, in the final showdown, all the resources of this great nation may be thrown into the struggle against Nazi Germany.

There is no doubt that this nation, almost unanimously, hopes and prays for Allied victory. We realize too well, on this side of the Atlantic, that German victory means dire danger for our own safety. We know that the Allies, in France and in Belgium, are today holding the first line of defense, not only for their own countries, but for every ideal of human relationship that Americans hold dear.

It could do our standing with Germany no harm. Hitler and his followers well know the almost unanimous denunciation of him and his system and methods in this country. We oppose him and all he stands for, practically all of us and, if he doesn't know that now, his information service is unbelievably incapable.

If this nation, through Secretary Hull, bluntly asked the Allies what we could do to help; if that message was formally told to the heads of all other nations, including Hitler and Mussolini, the psychological effect would be tremendous. It might well keep Italy out of the war and it would prove invaluable stiffening to Allied resolution at a time when such stiffening is most sorely needed.

That there are ways this country could help, without sending troops abroad, we know. Ill-equipped as are our fighting forces, there is equipment and material we could well afford to send, at once. In fact, it would be a magnificent investment for our own national security.

One has to read on in the "murder for profit" story to learn whether it's that gang in Brooklyn or the big one in Europe.

Too Bad!

It was discouraging to find that last Sunday, designated and publicized over Georgia as "Safety Sunday," should have resulted in a higher-than-average crop of weekend fatalities.

Men and women died violently, in Georgia, last Sunday by various means. Of the toll, however, more were killed by traffic accidents than from any other single cause.

"Safety Sunday" thus failed of its objective, the passing of one Sunday without a single traffic death in the state. It was not wasted effort, however. For it served as the medium for much additional educational work for highway safety and impressed the lesson of care and law observance upon many thousands.

Continuation of that education, of that effort, is bound to bring results. It will be a long time before all reckless and dangerous drivers are removed from the roads, if ever. But the record of accidents over the years shows improvement is being made, the accumulation of effort by innumerable organizations and individuals is having effect.

No man can know, but it is possible that many more would have died, last Sunday, had it not been for the observance of "Safety Sunday" on that day.

The good work must go on and, even though the goal of a perfect record for one day was not reached, it must be remembered that every sincere effort must have, somewhere, its beneficial effect.

A new weather bureau for Boston is appropriated for by congress—the latest of a long line of brave attempts to solve New England weather.

GOLDMAN: A FORGOTTEN ANARCHIST.

(From The Philadelphia Enquirer.)

A permanent exile from the United States, where for 30 years she was regarded as a kind of scourge, Emma Goldman's stormy and fruitless life of 71 years has ended in Toronto.

If there is such a thing as a super-anarchist, Emma and her lover and associate in preaching violence, Alexander Berkman, filled the bill. There was violence in Emma's mind and words; practical violence in Berkman's fierce philosophy that dynamite would cure all ills.

No one ever caught up with Emma Goldman on that score, but violence followed close in her train. The fanatic Czolgosz, who assassinated President McKinley, admitted that Emma's writings had affected him. There was suspicion that she knew that young killer, but she always denied it.

Interference with the selective draft in the World War brought Emma and Berkman, too, to an end in this country. They were deported to their native Russia, where they could get all the anarchy they wanted. It was an overdose for Emma. She denounced the Bolsheviks as tyrants as only this one-time "fury in a shirtwaist" could, and she and Berkman got out in 1921 a jump ahead of the executioners.

Since then she has been a woman without a country or even a cause. Now her eyes have closed on a world encompassed by a degree of anarchy and violence beyond her reddest dreams.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE TAX BILL LESSON WASHINGTON, May 30.—Many of the President's most important subordinates believe he has presented an inadequate national defense program because, for the first time in his stormy career, he has fallen behind the sentiment of the country. If proof of this theory is desired, it may be found in the really amazing story of the administration tax program suddenly presented to congress two days ago.

It is the first maxim of politics, well known to the merest novice, that taxes are the worst kind of political poison. Because this is an election year, the President and most of the congressional leaders originally planned to defer taxing to pay for increased national defense until the 1941 session of congress. Borrow now, tax later was the happy slogan, which was born of the same sort of thinking that has caused the President not to ask now for vitally needed maximum defense appropriations.

There are few more practical politicians than the old Mississippi politician, Chairman Pat Harrison, of the senate finance committee. Harrison was not converted by the slogan, however, since he is seriously concerned over the state of the national finances, and believes the voters share his concern. He went to the equally practical senate Republican leader, Charles McNary, of Oregon. He suggested that congress ought to pass a national defense tax bill before adjourning.

AMERICA SHOWS ITS STUFF

The conversation between McNary and Harrison must have been a remarkable demonstration of the political art. Harrison's advocacy of a tax bill was purely personal. He went on to add that, so far as he knew, the Democrats had no tax bill to offer, and to ask McNary whether the Republicans would make an issue of the matter. McNary replied first that the Republicans had no tax bill either, and second, that he doubted they would make capital of the Democratic failure to present one. But he added that he, too, was personally convinced new taxes ought to be voted, and predicted that if they were requested by the President the Republicans would go along.

Harrison closed his conversation with McNary with the remark that he would have to see the President and Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. Accordingly, he asked for appointments, without much hope of finding agreement with his views.

Meanwhile, however, an astounding thing had happened. Mail boxes to come in the White House and to members of congress expressing the willingness of thousands of Americans to do anything and pay anything for effective national defense. The White House letter readers rubbed their incredulous eyes; congressmen turned pale at the shock of what they at first supposed was an exhibition of mass insanity. The people of America, reacting spontaneously to the grave national danger, were positively demanding more taxes.

The whole picture was suddenly altered by this moving manifestation of the real quality of the country. The President changed his mind. The Treasury prepared a simple plan for a general 10 per cent income increase, coupled with additional liquor, gasoline and other nuisance taxes, to raise $600,000,000 a year for five years and to pay off $3,000,000,000 in national defense borrowing. The promise that the money would be used for debt-paying delighted Harrison and such senate conservatives as Harry Byrd, of Virginia. The tough North Carolinian, Chairman Robert L. Doughton, of the house ways and means committee, and other house leaders agreed to go along. The tax program was born.

THE BEST POLITICS The house and senate presented a really unprecedented scene on the day that the program was publicly disclosed. Commonly the mere mention of taxes is enough to put long faces on senators and representatives of all parties. Until the last moment opposition had been expected; for example, the senate finance committee was thought to be evenly divided on the tax question. Yet, as soon as the substance of the congressional leaders' tax conference at the White House became generally known, endorsements of the new program were to be heard on all sides. There is still much doubt of the President's ability to spend the money well, but as yet no one seems ready to say it ought not to be raised. It is now hoped to pass the tax bill before the Republican convention.

All this would sound like a political fairy story if it were not for one thing. As reactions come in from the country to the President's fireside chat and the national defense steps taken so far, it is growing increasingly clear that the best politics is to go the whole hog on national defense. And it is to be hoped that the President will soon begin to show his usual political acumen in the matter.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES

"Our Town"

Many of you must have seen the play, "Our Town." Or, at least, read the book. However, others undoubtedly are unfamiliar with the story it tells.

Now, it has been made into a picture. It is soon to be shown at Loew's Grand. I haven't seen the screen version, but have read several reviews and reports upon it.

There has been made an important change in the story and I have a feeling that those unfamiliar with the original stage version should be informed. For to my mind the change is vital to the message the play brought. While it is only fair to reserve criticism until after viewing the film, I have a firm conviction that, in changing the ending, the picture producers have taken away a great part of the significance of the entire story.

In the play the final scene is in a graveyard. The dead sit upon their tombstones and converse together. One of them is a young wife who has died only a short while before. In fact, her death was the climax to the story that happens among the living.

The conversation among the dead is extremely significant. It presents a theory as to certain conditions surrounding the survival of the soul after death.

In the picture, I am told, the young wife does not die. The graveyard scene is presented as something she dreams in delirium and, after it is over, she recovers and thus there is that so-called "happy ending" which is so desired by those who manufacture screen goods in Hollywood.

My first reaction is that they must have made a serious mistake in thus changing the story. I mistake that they take away from the whole thing the greater part of its significance.

I may be mistaken. But I just wanted you to know the change had been made, before you see the picture. That's all.

"We Must Obey, Or Die."

A young German, taken prisoner by the Allies in Flanders, is quoted as saying that he and his fellows in the field gray uniforms of the Nazis are as helpless as all the rest of the world in this mad horror of Nazidom, filled with the words of the world, "We must obey, or die," he is quoted, "We were brought up for this since we were children."

In that last sentence lies the worst horror of all the horrors Nazidom has brought. Millions of young German boys, taught and trained and directed since childhood with no other purpose than that they may make obedient cannon fodder. Creatures of human flesh and bone and blood, yes, but impregnated with a philosophy and trained with a rigidity that makes them, in actual result, robots at the mercy of their masters.

Children born of mothers who are paid a bonus for each child, whether born in or out of wedlock. German girls urged and encouraged to bring children into the world, preferably fathered by the Nazi men of mud and blood.

The womanhood of a nation demeaned to the status of brood animals, valued only for the potential little robots they can create for the insatiable demands of a war-mad leader.

What man with an iota of decent blood within his veins would not rather die, would not rather see all his family die, than live under such regime? If surrender to the Nazis means such degradation as this for the human race, for our children and their children whom we have loved, bring your guns and tanks and bombs. Obliterate us now, and get it done with. We won't exist under such conditions.

For What They Fight

The lifetime training given German youth may make them harder, more implacable, more ruthless. It may give to them physical traits that can stand up under the fearful strain of mechanized war. It may give them, temporarily, the advantage over young men who have grown up in a free democracy.

The youth of Britain, having lived under conditions so much like those in this country, are undoubtedly physically softer than are the Germans. They have not been drilled and trained and moulded into men of steel and mud and blood.

But there must be an advantage. To offset this, on the Allied side. For the men in the armies of Britain and France know for what they fight. For freedom and for their homes and their loved ones. To assure that their descendants shall not live as blindly obedient robot slaves. To win for their children of generations to come the right to choose their lifetime mates for love. To know that the women of Britain and of France of future generations will not have to debase themselves into mere cattle to be bred by Nazi overlords.

And, somehow, despite all the sad news from Flanders Fields today, I know that, in the final outcome, the Nazis cannot triumph.

Eire Grows Rare Bloom

Bulbs of a flower the blooms of which will not be available in bunches to the public for 50 years are growing in a garden in Waterford, Eire. Each bulb of the Green Island narcissus is worth $40 and will take ten years to multiply into fifty bulbs. The bloom has a green-trilled cup, and the first won a bronze medal at the Royal Horticultural Society daffodil show in London.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Two Other New Dealers

NEW YORK, May 30.—About the same time that President Roosevelt was on the air last Sunday night warning the country against clever schemes of foreign agents two other members of the New Deal family delivered public addresses.

In New York Mrs. Roosevelt attended a meeting of the New York Youth Congress, a subsidiary of the American Youth Congress, which is a transmission belt of the Communist party. Harold Ickes made a speech in Cleveland.

Mrs. Roosevelt's hosts adopted a resolution consistent with the Moscow party line, condemning rearmament by the United States. They also opposed action against the Communist party and cheered an assertion by Vito Marcantonio, a congressman who runs with the Communists, that the new weapons of the United States were intended for an aggressive war on behalf of the American dollar and the British pound. Mrs. Roosevelt, who often attends meetings of transmission belt or Trojan horse organizations of the Communist party, did not see eye to eye with the Youth Congress, insisting that failure to rearm might result in the needless sacrifice of many American lives.

Mrs. Ickes' hosts, the Ickes I do not know, but the account which I read said that he "urged a vigorous campaign against fifth column activities."

Consistent

Just here I would point out—not that it seems necessary—that both Mrs. Roosevelt and Mr. Ickes have been consistently guilty of consorting with the fifth column of the Communist anti-American conspiracy, and that there are no more deadly and stealthy enemies of the civil liberties which Mr. Ickes treasured in his speech than certain groups to which they have flagrantly and gratuitously given aid and comfort.

Mrs. Roosevelt has attended meetings of the National and World Youth Congresses, both controlled by vicious adult conspirators in Moscow, and has adorned, with her political and personal prestige, meetings promoted by the Trojan Horse Workers' Alliance. Those organizations are no more innocent than the anti-American Bund of the Nazi government or the Sons of Italy, which maintains cordial relations with and promotes devotion to the Fascist anti-democratic, anti-American government of Italy among Americans of Italian blood. There is no more justification for the appearance of an officer of the American government or a member of the President's personal and political family at occasions organized by the Moscow fifth column than for the appearance of the same persons at rallies of the Bund or the Fascist order.

Mr. Ickes showed his preference for tolerance for the Communist breed of Trojan horse when he made an ostentatious political appearance under the auspices of the National Lawyers' Guild. This guild was organized as a liberal rival to the American Bar Association, for which there was need of rivalry. Soon, however, it fell under the partial control of fifth column lawyers—who are more numerous, incidentally, in the Washington chapter, where many of them are on or were employed in the government in the guise of liberals and New Dealers, concealing the party membership or holding the status of fellow-travelers.

Denounced

Ferdinand Pecora, a justice of the New York supreme court, a liberal, the man who conducted the Wall Street expose in the early days of the New Deal and a founder of the Lawyers' Guild, openly denounced the Trojan horse membership of the Communists in the guild. As in the American Newspaper Guild, the American lawyer, occupied with their regular work and unwilling to devote their time and energies to a Washington chapter, where many of them are on or were employed in the government in the guise of liberals and New Dealers, concealing the party membership or holding the status of fellow-travelers.

On another occasion Mr. Ickes selected for his platform the New York Newspaper Guild, which has been notoriously Communist in policy and is now recognized by the American membership and by a large number of non-members as a faithful Old Dobbin of the Trojan stables. He sat with disgraced fellow-travelers whose "clever schemes" then, as now, were designed to sabotage recovery and to keep the country in the grip of the New Deal, because the President denounced Moscow's assault on Finland and because the New Deal is attempting to arm against Stalin and his ally, Adolf Hitler.

Mrs. Roosevelt is her own boss, and Mr. Ickes, having an official position and official responsibility, is only slightly less free. If they must run with the Communists, that is all right, but their conduct tends to confuse the meaning of the President's warnings against the fifth column.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

AMUSEMENT IN BERLIN I did not listen to Mr. Herbert Hoover's speech on Monday night. I read it Tuesday.

It was very much like the speech by Mr. Charles Lindbergh. In fact, there was some suspicion that Mr. Lindbergh's speech was prepared with Mr. Hoover looking over the Lindbergh shoulder. The suspicion grows to a belief.

Mr. Hoover was his usual somber self. I met a Republican Tuesday. He greeted his teeth when he mentioned Hoover, but he had to swallow the speech because it was aimed at Mr. Roosevelt. There must be considerable amusement in Berlin. They are witnessing an exhibition of democracy, and they are, without doubt, reporting it exactly as it happens to their people as a horrible example of government. The German mind, used to discipline, won't understand it and will take it as a sign of weakness.

Mr. Alfred Landon lunched with the President and then, before he was more than a step from the White House doorstep, released his philippic against the President. He used the spotlight for political purposes and it was his right so to do. Of all the Republicans I prefer Alf Landon, of Kansas. He has grown more in public esteem since his defeat than has any member of his party.

Mr. Hoover, who detests Mr. Landon and who is de luxe-detested by Mr. Landon, had applied for permission to speak on Sunday night. When he learned the President had the time for a fireside chat, he postponed until Monday evening.

MR. HOOVER WAS MR. HOOVER He represents the fatuous, fat-headed thinking which helped us down the economic skids and he was true to type. He wanted no board to administer the defense funds. He wanted one man, an all-powerful one man dictator of defense.

There was a poorly hidden hint they might do worse than call on the great administrator from Palo Alto. Mr. Hoover struck at the administration. He was very, very somber. He hasn't been bright and cheerful since he was so cheerfully telling delegation of worried businessmen in 1929-30 they should go back home and forget it. Prosperity was just around the corner.

There is going on, in the Republican camp, a determined effort to divide the people on the defense problems. This means delay. On any cock one's best ear and hear, riding the air, the sound of sardonic laughter from Berlin.

MR. TAFT SOUNDS OFF The Republicans keep sounding off on what happened to the nine billions already spent for defense. They seem to be not at all interested in the next billion and a half or, indeed, in the next twenty. The last nine billion has practically doubled and tripled the equipment of the army. It has raised the navy from a sub-standard position to the best condition it has ever enjoyed in times of peace.

Mr. Taft is the latest to sound off. He, too, wants to know about what already has been spent. It is good politics. The patriotism of it may not be so good, but it is good politics.

We are going to spend, not nine billions but some twenty billions, before we are done with rearmament. They all know this. But the Republican strategy seems to be to divide the people, to stir up as much controversial strife as possible, to defeat Mr. Roosevelt, no matter what the cost to national unity.

The Republicans know they, too, will have to go on spending tremendous sums to arm this country as it should be armed. Their strategy is apparent. It is to make as much noise as possible about what has been spent in an effort to detract from the President's position of public confidence and which greatly augmented his potential third-term strength.

DON'T POSTPONE CONVENTION Miss Dorothy Thompson recently advocated there be no Republican presidential candidate. She would forego any contest.

While I am wholeheartedly for Mr. Roosevelt I, nevertheless, cannot in any degree join such a proposal.

This year, more than any other year, we should have the political conventions. We had a political campaign in 1864 when the tall and patient democrat, the Republican President, Abraham Lincoln, was in office. It was the worst exhibition of partisan politics, showing forth all the weaknesses of the party system, we have ever had. The all but defeated north survived it.

I will admit that a short telegram from W. T. Sherman may have saved the day. It read: "Atlanta is safely ours."

We will see, in the conventions, if the Republican leaders are willing to give up politics for the sake of the nation. We will see the same thing of the Democratic leaders. It already seems assured, however, the Republicans are going in for hatred, calumny and personal abuse, letting the interests of the nation wait. They hope to win.

Our politicians have done serious harm to the system of party politics. We will have a picture of it in the conventions. Meanwhile—this nation is going on. Let's think about it.

You Would Be Locked Up If You Paid $5 a Pound for Old Iron

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

There is a curious and unprecedented situation in Washington. The great majority of senators and representatives are ashamed of something congress has done, and would welcome any excuse to undo it.

If your congressmen are among the majority, you can do the favor by urging them to end the folly and shame which they helped to impose upon the nation.

This folly—one of the most incredible and indefensible in our history—is known as the Silver Purchase Act.

It was supposed to be a "recovery measure," and the idea was to buy silver, at a price far above its natural world price, until our silver holding equaled one-fourth of our hoard of gold. We said to the world: "Bring us your silver; we insist upon paying you double the price you would gladly accept."

The act was supposed to do good—to provide work for hundreds of thousands of miners and to enable silver money countries to double their purchases of our goods.

Actually it gave work to relatively few men, for silver is a minor industry. It enriched 25 mining companies, most of which are controlled by New York capitalists. And in order to give Americans a hand-out of $225,400,000, it gave foreign speculators $941,100,000—over four times as much.

Does that make sense? Yet the law now requires more and more purchases, at a trifle over 71 cents an ounce, for gold has poured in so fast that we are farther than ever from the one-to-four goal.

Purchase of silver didn't help other countries. It kept the Mexican government going, thus enabling it to seize more American property, but it hastened the ruin of China. The Japs are melting down Chinese silver coins and selling the silver to us to finance their war. Because melted silver brings more than silver coin, no nation now remains on the silver standard.

Now the hard-earned money of taxpayers has built up a hoard of silver valued at almost $3,800,000,000. It is buried in the ground, doing nobody any good

EOPOLD PRAISED OR SURRENDER

Editor, Constitution: Why pervert the truth? Why stupid attempts to make poor King Leopold the goat for the monstrous blunders of the British and French high command?

The French and British governments knew of the desperate situation and impending annihilation of the Belgian army at least four days before Leopold surrendered. They even sent Weyland, two days before the surrender but he was unable to give any help.

A fateful decision to surrender can not be made by a civilian cabinet which seeks safety through flight to another country, far from danger. It must be made by the general in the field whether to surrender or die.

As a former soldier I take my oath off to Leopold, King of the Belgians. He stood by and surrendered with his army and did not seek safety in flight as did the Norwegian and Dutch monarchies and the Duke of Gloucester.

Yours for fair play and less stupid propaganda.

WOULD HELP ALLIES WITH ALL EQUIPMENT

Editor, Constitution: After reading the article in this morning's paper, by Ralph T. Jones, and giving it much thought, allow me to state I agree with him completely.

Let us here in the U. S. A. send the Allies all the equipment we possibly can, but keep our men at home.

As for paying for the equipment, if they never did (which they probably never will) what a cheap price to pay for the lives of the youth of this country.

WANTS 4-H YOUNGSTERS
AS GAME WARDENS

Editor, Constitution: Your editorial, "Neglected Opportunity," deploring the sad plight of wild life in Georgia, is, I hope, not too late.

I believe wild life in our state is a victim of politicians' avarice. Our game wardens are now more numerous and prosperous than they have ever been. At the same time the largest flocks of useful birds are all but exterminated. City "sportsmen" were recruited for substantial fees, to go to the country and help themselves. They went in their big cars, with breech-loading shotguns and finely bred bird dogs and soon mopped up "Bob White's" large family. Now his cheery call is silenced on most farms.

The care of wild life should be given to the boys' and girls' 4-H Clubs. Their unselfish devotion would be contagious and all country folk would take more interest in the cause.

They would watch "sportsmen" and "pot hunters" and tell them where they should go!

MILITARY TRAINING FOR CCC.

Editor Constitution: I wish to commend your article on universal military training. Of course, it is a new and unpopular idea. Few, if any, desire a thing like this, but things have changed, and we must change with them. We recall the unprepared condition in 1917, both as to men and equipment; untrained soldiers and wooden guns. It may be true that 1,000,000 men will spring to arms overnight, but of what service against trained soldiers and modern equipment? Highly skilled, hardy, well-trained men are now necessary.

At least one year out of the life of youth is no great deprivation or hardship. It gives him a higher conception of his duty to his country, fits him physically and equips him to take care of himself and defend his country. He leaves the service a better soldier and citizen. He owes that much to himself and his country.

What of the idea of military training for the CCC boys? This should have been done from the beginning, at least a reasonable amount of it. Why not start now? The housing facilities are there, and the officers necessary to train

Georgia Faces
Defense Taxes

Dig down in your jeans. National defense likely will cost Georgians approximately $6,000,000 a year.

And how would John Taxpayer foot the bill?

Well, here's the price tag on an increased army, navy and air force, under the administration's contemplated armaments tax:

Gasoline—An extra half-cent a gallon for defense: $1,710,778. Last year Georgians bought 342,157,662 gallons; paid $20,529,459 in state (six cents) and $3,421,576 in federal (one cent) taxes.

Liquor—An added 75 cents a gallon for defense: $1,251,617. Georgians last year consumed 1,668,826 gallons; paid for the privilege $3,754,861 to Uncle Sam ($2.25 per gallon) and $1,668,826 to the state ($1 a gallon).

Income Taxes—A flat 10 per cent boost in corporate and individual tax bills: $1,695,459. For the year ending June 30, 1939, Georgians paid the federal government $8,686,315 in corporate, $8,238,289 in personal income taxes.

Cigarettes—a "war tax" of one cent extra per pack: $920,338. Last year Georgians puffed nearly two billion cigarettes; paid $5,222,028 in federal ($3 a thousand) and $2,920,338 in state ($1.50 a thousand) taxes.

Under the present setup we have tax expenses already. Think of what a potential number of trained men would be available if this had been done from the beginning.

EDITORIAL EXPRESSED
THE GREATEST NEED

Editor Constitution: Please may I thank you for the editorial in The Constitution this morning, "What of Christianity?" This is the greatest need of all people of the entire world today. Because of the universal sin against our Christ we have conditions existing today.

We in America, of all people, should realize this, and should be warned in time. Please keep writing about it; keep it before the people.

You have already helped in His way, by bringing this overdue warning to us. Please keep it ringing out as did God's watchmen of old. We forget easily. God is the Creator, the might and power, and He will prevail. Every knee shall bow, every tongue shall confess that Jesus Christ is the Son of God, and the one and only Savior of all mankind.

Plane Factory
To Be Sought at Stone MountainAdequate Forest, Large Water Supplies Will Be Pointed Out.

Mayor Marion Guess, of Stone Mountain, will present to his city council at its next meeting, June 7, a proposal seeking location of one of the new government aviation plants in that community.

The recommendation will be endorsed by Douglas McCurdy, president of the Stone Mountain Progressive Club, and will point out the possibility of fortifying the mountain itself as protection for the plant.

The proposal follows a recommendation passed Monday by the East Point city council, seeking one of the plants there. In its new rearmament program the federal government has indicated that it will sponsor airplane manufacturing plants in strategic parts of the nation.

Mayor Guess's proposal will point out, also, the adequate forest coverage which will provide shelter for the plant, large water supplies backed by two lakes in the vicinity, ample space for landing and a flying time of little over an hour to the seaboard.

If approved by council, action probably will follow the example of the East Point group in naming a committee to work for the project through Georgia representatives.

Scott Candler, DeKalb county commissioner, said he would "co-operate to the fullest extent with the Stone Mountain council in getting one of the factories for this community."

war-torn nations, and for ourselves.

I am happy to have assurance from many friends that they will gladly unite in this covenant of prayer. We are clearly taught in the Scriptures to pray for those in authority, and this we shall gratefully do. "Prayer is the soul's sincere desire, uttered or unexpressed." Surely it is the deep desire of all God's people that peace shall again be known among men, their own, and wisdom not their own, were granted—many of us have felt anew the privilege and necessity of prayer in these trying days through which the world is passing.

Wednesday evening at our regular midweek service the Druid Hills Baptist church adopted the following resolution:

"Confronted by a world at war—in which fear grips the heart of mankind—our first concern is to know and do the will of God, seeking the wisdom, strength and peace which only He can grant and bestow. Every child of God has an open door to Him through prayer, in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. The Bible teaches the privilege and duty of unceasing prayer, and of special prayer. We are reminded of two such promises:

"If My people, which are called by My name, shall humble themselves, and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways; then will I hear from heaven, and will forgive their sin, and will heal their land." II Chronicles 7:14; and "If any one of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering, James 1:5.

"Enheartened by the President's confident reliance upon the prayers of the people, as expressed in the closing paragraphs of his fire-side chat last Sunday evening, to which we gratefully respond, we, the members of the Druid Hills Baptist church, in called conference, this May 29, 1940, do hereby fraternally call upon the members of this congregation and upon all fellow believers in every faith to covenant one with another.

"First, to pray without ceasing that war, with its suffering and destruction and death, may end, and that peace may return to the world, according to the will of God; and

"Second, to pause in silent prayer every morning at 10 o'clock, in special united petition to God for wisdom and strength and peace for our neighbors in

Family Welfare
Group Attends Annual SessionCherry Emerson Addresses Volunteers During Luncheon.

More than 60 volunteer workers of the Family Welfare Society attended the annual business luncheon of the society at its offices, 105 Forrest avenue, yesterday.

Cherry L. Emerson, one of the organization's leading laymen workers, delivered the principal address at the meeting, over which W. W. Snow, president of the board of directors, presided.

The professional social worker, Mr. Emerson told his hearers, has the hardest job to do, must meet the most rigid educational requirements in preparing for it, then gets less pay and more public criticism than any other professional worker. In addition, he pointed out, the social worker daily must deal with the "seamy side of life," the poor, the ignorant, the hard-to-help, while associates in other fields of no greater education or devotion to their duty enjoy far more pleasant human contacts.

He paid tribute, as well, to the volunteer workers who deliberately choose the hard and thankless field of social service as the activity of their spare time.

The Family Welfare Service, he reminded his hearers, is the biggest of all Community Chest agencies, with a task that frequently touches upon the fields of all the others.

Other speakers were Miss Dorothy Sherman, head of the Service Guild; the Rev. Wiley Scott, head of the ministers' committee; Mrs. Joel Hunter Jr., of the Junior League, and Dr. L. Minor Blackford, of the medical committee.

Board Is Enjoined
In Pipe Line Case

State Senator A. N. Durden, of Albany, yesterday served an injunction on the State Highway Board just as it started to resume hearings on the case of the South-eastern Pipe Line Company, which seeks permission to pipe under state highways from Port St. Joe, Fla., to Chattanooga, Tenn.

The injunction order was signed Wednesday by Judge Will R. Smith, of Nashville. It is similar to a restraining order signed by Judge W. W. Mundy, of Cedar-town, which is now under appeal to the state supreme court.

Senator Durden said he represented a large number of property owners and taxpayers who object to the highway board giving the company piping permission.

The Highway Board has given conditional permission for the pipe line, the condition being that the pipes not be connected until after the supreme court passes on the appeal from the decision of Judge Mundy.

Board members told Rivers their recommendation was based on "the facts and circumstances" developed in Merritt's clemency hearing, together with numerous recommendations, which included a 2,500-name petition from Spalding county.

Convicted of criminal assault, Merritt was the first person from Spalding county ever to be sentenced to die in the electric chair.

Following the recommendation of the board, the Governor also commuted to life imprisonment the death sentence of Eustace Davis, Douglas youth sentenced to electrocution for the shotgun slaying of his stepmother, and Eurus Hopkins, given the death sentence in Coffee county for the knife killing of Calvin Hudson.

Cameo Will Offer 'The Lone Ranger'

The "Lone Ranger" gallops across the Cameo screen today and tomorrow in "Hi Yo Silver." The actor who portrays "The Lone Ranger" is still untried, but unsung as an individual, his identity having been kept a secret from the start of his career. The story of "Hi Yo Silver" concerns the new west that was arising from the ashes of the War Between the States and tells a dramatic story of the Texas Rangers and their fights against lawlessness.

'Waterloo Bridge' Will Go to Rhodes

"Waterloo Bridge," Vivien Leigh's second American film, starring her with Robert Taylor, has been held over at the Rhodes theater and begins its second Atlanta week today.

Miss Leigh and Taylor are perfectly teamed as the romantic lovers in the Robert E. Sherwood drama. As Myrna Lester, a petite ballet dancer, Miss Leigh displays a more charming, gentler and more sympathetic side of her personality than she did in her Academy Award performance as "Scarlett O'Hara."

Taylor portrays a young British officer, Captain Roy Cronin, who meets the little dancer on historic Waterloo bridge during an air raid, winning her heart in a whirlwind 24-hour romance.

Mrs. Peterson Runs Again for School Board

Second Ward Member Qualifies for City Primary

Mrs. Z. V. Peterson, prominent in city, district and national politics for a number of years and a vice president of the Atlanta board of education, yesterday qualified and announced her candidacy to succeed herself as a member of the board from the second ward.

She also is chairman of the buildings and grounds committee of the board, and in her announcement promised continued efforts to eliminate portables and improve school housing facilities.

For the past 10 years she has been secretary of the fifth district congressional committee, and was a delegate to the Democratic national conventions in 1924, 1932 and 1936. She is a member of the Martha Brown Memorial Methodist church and teaches an adult Bible class in the Sunday school.
"Many portables, in which thousands of school children are housed, constitute a fire hazard and are unsatisfactory from the standpoint of health and comfort," she said. "I shall continue my efforts to obtain funds for correcting these conditions, and shall support those policies which in my judgment are for the best interests of the students in the Atlanta schools and which are consistent with sound financial practices. Although many improvements have been made in the educational program, the board still faces a major problem in improving housing conditions."

received for the cabbage throughout the season, it was disclosed.
A move now is being made to pack and ship tomatoes from the county through the same co-operative plan. This is the second season that tomatoes have been grown in this county on an extensive marketing scale. The tomato shipping season, under favorable weather conditions, will open here at an early date and growers say the outlook is for satisfactory returns from this crop also.

Secret Weapon 'Find' Claimed By American

'It Can Be Fired From England to Germany,' Says Ex-War Vet.

OGDEN, Utah, May 30.—(AP)—Major Harold W. Webbe, of Palo Alto, Cal., traveled toward Washington today to negotiate with representatives of England and France for sale of a weapon of his own invention "so devastating in effect the Allies may refuse to use it."

"I do not intend to make public just what this new weapon is because I do not want the Nazis to get hold of it," the retired army officer told interviewers during a train stop here.
"But I will say," he continued, "that it can be fired from England to Germany, from North Africa into Italy and from battleships. It will wipe out an entire city at a time."

"It is very practical, simple and effective. It may be the same as the Germans' secret weapon." Webbe said his new destroying agent had been tested and its might established. He served in France during two major offensives in the World War and was awarded a military decoration.

Five Still Held In Probe Into Bank Holdup

Three Others Released in Investigation of Acworth Robbery.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
MARIETTA, Ga., May 30.—Left without a clue after Bank Cashier Omer Kemp failed to positively identify any of five suspects, Cobb county authorities today settled to a routine investigation of the $4,103 holdup of the S. Lemon Banking Company in Acworth.

On advice of FBI agents, the five men will be detained here indefinitely as suspects, Sheriff George McMillan said. Their fingerprints were taken this morning and rushed to Washington.

Three other suspects, taken into custody in Atlanta yesterday, were released after investigation.

The five suspects, who claim to be Brazilian natives, gave the same surname, and said they were connected with a carnival now playing on the outskirts of Marietta. They were arrested here after Cashier Kemp, victim in the bank holdup, described his robber as a dark-skinned man of about 30 years and six feet tall. Mr. Kemp said the robber wore a brown suit and a leather cap which he kept low over his face.

After stacking the available currency in a grass sack which he had in his possession, the robber thrust the cash in the vault and threw the bolt. An assistant, J. H. Hall, heard Kemp yelling and came to his rescue 15 minutes later.

Increase Reported In Bank Clearings

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—A 32 per cent rise in bank clearings for the week ended May 29 was largely accounted for by the Memorial Day holiday in the comparable period of 1939. Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Total clearances for 22 leading cities were $5,717,548,000 against $4,314,948,000 for the five-day period last year. They were down $226,026,000 from the total of the preceding week.

Turnover at New York was $3,457,114,000 against $2,603,557,000 for the same 1939 week. Transactions for the 21 cities outside of New York were $2,260,434,000 compared with $1,711,391,000.

The largest percentage gains included Portland, Ore., 53.8, Baltimore 54.5, Dallas 53.2, Cleveland 45.9, Detroit 44.6, Seattle 42.3, Pittsburgh 40.8. Chicago clearings were $336,500,000 against $262,200,000 last year, an increase of 28.3 per cent.

U. S. Markets Close For Memorial Day

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—Financial and commodity trading centers throughout the United States were closed today in observance of Memorial Day.

Exceptions were naval stores markets in Savannah and Jacksonville.

Foreign and Canadian markets will remain open.

STOCKS IN LONDON SHOW SHARP DROP

LONDON, May 30.—(P)—The stock market declined sharply today under impact of a doubly dealt blow, coming from the Flanders battlefield.

All groups fell off sharply under the leadership of brewery, tobacco and store shares.

Sterling made some improvement while the Italian lire weakened.

Power Production Gains 11.1 Per Cent

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—Production of electric energy increased to 2,448,865,000 kilowatt hours during the week ended May 25, highest since mid-March, the Edison Electric Institute said yesterday.

This represented a gain of 1.1 per cent over 2,422,212,000 kilowatt hours in the preceding week and was 1.1 per cent ahead of 2,204,858,000 in the comparable 1939 week.

Power circles said the higher rate, which was against seasonal expectations, was due in large part to increased industrial activity.

Percentage gains over a year ago, according to major geographic areas, were reported as follows by the institute: New England 8.1, Middle Atlantic 7.3, central industrial 14.5, west central 6.2, southern states 12.2, Rocky Mountain 13.5, Pacific coast 8.4.

Money Market.

LONDON, May 30.—Money 1 per cent. Discount rates: Short bills 1 1/2 per cent; 3-month bills 1 1/2 per cent; 6-month bills 1 1/2 per cent; 9-month bills 1 1/2 per cent; 12-month bills 1 1/2 per cent.

Law College Gives Degrees To 52 Seniors

H. S. Willingham Wins Honors at Woodrow Wilson Exercises.

HAROLD S. WILLINGHAM, of Marietta, chief clerk of the State Revenue Department's intangible tax unit division, took top honors last night at the seventh annual commencement exercises of Woodrow Wilson College of Law. Fifty-two seniors received bachelor of law degrees.

Willingham won three prizes for his outstanding work. He captured the Harrison Company prize for the senior making the highest average for the two-year course; the Sigma Delta scholarship award for the senior with the highest yearly average and the Atlanta School of Oratory prize for senior with the highest average for the entire course.

Other prize winners were: James D. Rohr, of Atlanta, who won the agency prize and Sigma Delta Scholarship prize; Charles G. Swinford, the negotiable instrument prize; Richard L. Anderson, the Callaghan prize for the first year student with the highest average; Jesse N. Jones Jr., Sigma Delta Kappa Leadership Key.

The Atlanta Clearing House prizes for the best will submitted went to Clyde E. Quicke, first; Mrs. Evelyn Ellis, second, and E. J. Barber, third.

Chief Justice Charles S. Reid, of the Georgia supreme court, was the principal speaker. Degrees were conferred by Ex-Governor Clifford Walker, president of the school, who received the class from Dean Joseph B. Kilbride.

Pat Monroe, a member of the graduating class, made the address of welcome while Lawrence R. Pierce Jr. delivered the class oration. Willingham gave the valedictory. The Rev. Theodore S. Will pronounced the invocation and the benediction.

InlandPoint Urged As Seaplane Base

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 30. A movement was set in motion here this week to seek Congressman Carl Vinson's aid toward completion of Fuman Shoals dam, about five miles from Milledgeville, with a view to development of the site as an inland training base for seaplanes.

The Furman Shoals site was considered by federal authorities as an inland naval base while work on the dam was in progress several years ago. However, when work was abandoned on the project after more than two years, these plans also were dropped.

Supporters of the project point out that the site, less than an hour from the coast by air travel, would make an ideal concentration point for as many as 1,000 seaplanes if properly developed. Due to work already carried out, the project could be finished comparatively inexpensively and such a site would dovetail perfectly with the national defense program, they asserted.

Federal Jury Has Busy Day In Road Probe

Gillis, State Employees Testify During Lengthy Session.

BY JACK SPALDING.

ROME, Ga., May 30.—Indictment of Dr. Hiram Wesley Evans, the Ku Klux Klan's former imperial wizard, and John W. Greer Jr., one-time purchasing agent of the State Highway Department, climaxed a day of busy activity by the federal grand jury meeting here.

Since 9 o'clock this morning the jury, sitting in cramped quarters in Rome's soon-to-be rebuilt federal building, has listened to testimony from witnesses, ranging from James L. Gillis, chairman of the state Democratic Executive committee and ex-member of the highway board, to employees of the state highway testing laboratory.

W. L. Gottenstrater, son-in-law of Dr. Evans, was among those who sat in the district attorney's office all day, waiting to be called. Gottenstrater is listed in the Atlanta city directory as a highway board employee.

Gillis, the first witness called, was closeted with the jury for nearly an hour. John Lewis, former head of the state purchasing department and now director of the state hospital authority, was also in the jury room for a long period.

Others Called.

Others called during the day were W. F. Abernethy, head of the highway testing laboratory; B. M. Smith, of the Mexican Petroleum Company; Sam Finley, of Buford; two brothers, David Purcell, of Lawrenceville, and Albert Purcell, of Atlanta; one sister, Mrs. W. L. House; 22 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Trinity Chapel, Decatur. The Rev. A. F. Flury, the Rev. J. L. Henderson and the Rev. G. R. Watson will officiate, and burial will be in Roswell cemetery.

Mack Yarbrough Dies at Age of 50

Mack Yarbrough, 50, of 2015 Robson place, N. E., a postal clerk in Atlanta for the past 21 years, died yesterday in a private hospital.

A native of Oxford, Ga., Mr. Yarbrough was the son of the late Rev. George W. Yarbrough, a Methodist minister. He was a World War veteran.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Mack and Jack Yarbrough; one daughter, Miss Boyce Yarbrough; Dr. Harris Yarbrough and Haygood and Weyland Yarbrough.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the Kirkwood Methodist church. The Rev. J. R. Turner will officiate, and burial will be in East View cemetery under the direction of A. S. Turner & Sons.

Daily Prayer for Peace Is Urged by Mariettans

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
MARIETTA, Ga., May 30.—Marietta churches will keep their doors open for an hour of silent prayer daily under a concerted movement begun today by church leaders and Mayor L. M. Blair.

In a joint proclamation, Marietta ministers declared all churches will be open daily from 12 to 1 o'clock for prayer and meditation, with particular emphasis on the present world crisis.

Text of the proclamation in part read:

"In this hour of strife, it behooves us to call upon Almighty God to aid us in saving for ourselves and posterity those things that have made for righteousness."

Nazi Officer Captured And Taken to London

Authorities refused to identify the German or give his rank.

Rivers Charges Greer Victim of 'Persecution'

District Attorney Using Office To Smead Administration, Says Governor.

Governor Rivers said last night that he believes the indictment of John W. Greer Jr., former purchasing agent for the State Highway Department and present clerk of the house of representatives, to be "a malicious persecution."

Announcing his plans to defend Greer in court, the Governor said: "I have known John Greer practically all of his life. I have every confidence in him. He tells me that he is not guilty of the charges against him. I believe him."

"For that reason I am entering my name as his lawyer and expect to fight to the finish to clear his name of what I believe to be a malicious persecution."

"It has been an open secret for months that Lawrence Camp and W. L. Miller have joined hands to try to use the power of the district attorney's office to politically smear and wreck the present state administration. Camp has not only been an applicant for various federal judgeships, but has sought state judicial appointments at my hands."

"Disappointed in patronage matters as well as at the polls, he has turned the powers of his office to political persecution."

"Swarmed Offices." "Federal snoopers have swarmed offices at the state capital in recent weeks and have likewise combed the state. Their questions and actions reflect their obvious effort to smear. Despite the fact that they had no legal right to invade the state departments in the manner they did, I have had them treated courteously because we have nothing to conceal."

"However, patience with these political tactics has ceased to be a virtue and they will no longer be tolerated while I am Governor. I have always welcomed any bona fide investigation, but federal surveillance and federal political snooping at the state capital will henceforth stop."

"The political publicity from the district attorney's office accompanying this smearing and wrecking campaign has been so flagrant that everywhere I go the rank and file of the people are denouncing the policies being played by the district attorney in the name of an investigation."

"I expect to expose in all its naked ugliness this use of the powers of the district attorney for sinister political purposes."

"If the trial of John Greer, presently the victim of the Miller-Camp political persecution, can be the medium to accomplish this useful purpose it will in part compensate for the ruthless and malicious injury they are seeking to do him."

Mrs. M. S. Perry Dies at Age of 80

Mrs. M. S. Perry, 80, lifelong resident of Fulton county, died yesterday at her home, 59 Moreland avenue, S. E.

Surviving are six daughters, Mrs. J. F. Brown, Mrs. T. D. Jones, Mrs. C. D. Ozburn, Mrs. S. C. Daniel and Mrs. B. W. Brannon, all of Atlanta, and Mrs. P. W. Buford; two brothers, David Purcell, of Lawrenceville, and Albert Purcell, of Atlanta; one sister, Mrs. W. L. House; 22 grandchildren and 15 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Trinity Chapel, Decatur. The Rev. A. F. Flury, the Rev. J. L. Henderson and the Rev. G. R. Watson will officiate, and burial will be in Roswell cemetery.

IT ALL CAME TRUE

Sal and Grasselli Have Trouble Getting Boldini To Make Comedy Out of His Act

By Louis Bromfield.

SYNOPSIS.

Miss Minnie leaves her brownstone house to her servants, Mrs. Lefferty and Maggie Ryan, who live in it with their four odd, old guests, Maggie's torch-singing daughter, Sal, storms home. Later Mrs. Lefferty's long-absent son, Tommy, arrives with the sinister Grasselli, as a boarder. Sal discovers that he is a crook, but when the house is to be sold for taxes, gets him to foot the bill. Tommy is angry till he knows her motive. The guests give an amateur show for Grasselli, at which Sal sings Tommy's songs. Grasselli gets the big idea of turning the old house into a night club, and gets the approval of the old ladies and Tommy, and smooths the feelings of Boldini, the magician, when Grasselli laughs at him. The house is being remodelled. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

For a moment Mr. Boldini stared at her as if he could not believe his ears; then all the bewhirls and ridges and furrows in his bloodhound face contracted until he became the picture of outraged Roman dignity.

"Do you know what you're asking, young woman? Asking me, the Great Boldini, to make a prostitute of myself?"

"No, not that, Mr. Boldini! You get me wrong."

"He, the Great Boldini, who has been president of the International Society of Magicians, who has given command performances before the Emperors of Germany and Austria!" Shouting the last words, he turned his back to her and stood staring into the street.

Sarah Jane waited for a moment, and then said, "Listen, Mr. Boldini, it isn't like that. Look at me, for example. Well, I was known as the most beautiful show girl on Broadway, but you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to be a comic. Why? Because show girls and fan dancers have gone out of fashion. The public is sick of 'em. They want to laugh, see? It's just like boarding houses and magicians. They've gone out of date, too. And the Kaiser and the Emperor of Austria. Where are they now?"

Mr. Boldini, it seemed, did not know the whereabouts of the Kaiser and the Emperor of Austria. But Sarah Jane meant to drive home her point. "Name me a single magician that's made a good living. Just name me one!" She paused, but Mr. Boldini, it seemed, couldn't think of any, so the question became purely rhetorical. "No, the public is sick of magicians—anyway, of magicians playing straight. No, Mr. Boldini, times have changed, and we artists have to change with them. See? An artist isn't any good unless he keeps up-to-date." Then, in a more quiet tone, she said, "All Mr. Grasselli wants you to do is to do your magician's act up-to-date and teach Fanto be a clown."

Mr. Boldini gave Fanto another savage look, and again Fanto cowered with shame. "That's easy enough. That's all he is—a clown! There isn't a drop of artist's blood in him."

For the first time since Miss Minnie had come to the house, perhaps for the first time in its existence, it was thrown into a hubbub of activity. The moment the workmen disappeared, Mr. Grasselli would descend and inspect what they had done and have a lot of new ideas. Now that he had a project under way, his spirits rose. He no longer sulked in his room and no longer became ill at times with boredom.

As for Maggie, she went to see Father McGuffy. But Sarah Jane had been there first and told him the whole story, truthfully, except for slipping over the true identity of Mr. Grasselli; so Father McGuffy told Maggie that he saw no harm in her running an ordinary restaurant (which was how Sarah Jane had described the project), especially as she was a good woman and came regularly to confession and with Mrs. Lefferty (the backslider) was doing a good Christian work in taking care of old Mr. Van Diver and Miss Flint and Mr. Boldini. So long as she didn't turn them out, there was nothing wicked in the project.

But neither Maggie nor Mrs. Lefferty had any intention of turning them out. It required a good deal of ingenuity to keep them there and give them three meals a day while all the renovations were going on, but Maggie and Mrs. Lefferty managed it. They simply had the meals in the servants' sitting room instead of the dining room, and Sarah Jane gave up her own room to share Maggie's. They played rummy in the evening either in Mr. Grasselli's room or in the torn-up drawing room.

Only old Mr. Van Diver and Miss Flint seemed to be disturbed, for even Mr. Boldini, once he had been brought round, grew excited, and Mr. Salmon seemed to take on a new youth because he became aware presently that he was being brought up-to-date in spite of himself and that perhaps out of all the confusion his genius might be reborn and he might go into a "fourth period" of creation. But Miss Flint seemed odd and depressed. She scarcely spoke at all when Mr. Grasselli was about and whenever he was not looking at her she stared at him fascinated, with mingled terror and admiration in her eyes.

The "bringing-around" of Mr. Boldini was accomplished by Sarah Jane. She did it craftily, waiting for two days until Mr. Boldini appeared a little less depressed. When the effects of the awful night had passed and the first workman had appeared in the house, she allowed Mrs. Lefferty to tell him that Mr. Grasselli was planning to turn the place into a night club. This news he received with dubious enthusiasm. Then Sarah Jane allowed him a day of reflection, during which Mr. Boldini's bitterness about the fiasco of his performance became transformed, as she had hoped, into the old bitterness at being unable any longer to find a job save at children's parties. And on the fourth day Sarah Jane bustled into his room full of enthusiasm and excitement.

"I've got news for you, Mr. Boldini," she said.

"What?" he asked with indifference.

"I've got a job for you."

"What kind of a job?"

"A job as a magician—a regular job, seven nights a week."

"Where?"

"Right here in the house," said Sarah Jane. "You won't even have to go out."

He began to display a faint interest. Even Fanto looked up and wagged his tail as if he, too, were beginning to take an interest in life after his disgrace.

"Yes," said Sarah Jane. "Mr. Grasselli thought you were wonderful."

"Clowns can be artists, Mr. Boldini, just the same as you and me."

"Well," said Mr. Boldini, "what does he want me to do?"

But Sarah Jane didn't tell him at once. "There'll be a lot of money in it. Maybe as much as $75 a week."

"I get $35 a performance all right."

ready without Fanto—and fifty with him."

"Yes, but you only work about once every two or three weeks."

"During the school holidays I sometimes work four times a week."

"All right. Maybe Mr. Grasselli would pay you a hundred a week." Mr. Grasselli had said he'd pay up to $125 if Mr. Boldini was as good as he was the night Fanto ruined his act, but Sarah Jane wanted to keep the extra $25 as a margin with which to bargain against Mr. Boldini's dignity, the Society of Magicians and the two emperors.

Suddenly Mr. Boldini became indignant again. "You ask me to become a feeder, a stooge for a dog—that ungrateful clown of a dog."

"No," said Sarah Jane. "It's not like that at all. Mr. Grasselli just wants Fanto to learn some new tricks."

While they talked, Fanto in his basket was swept back and forth like a pendulum between the poles of emotion. When Sarah Jane spoke, he picked up his ears and wagged his tail, and when Mr. Boldini referred to him, he was covered with shame and dejection.

"I'll tell you something," Sarah Jane said confidentially. "If you leave it to me, I think I could get Mr. Grasselli up to a hundred and twenty-five a week, and if we're successful, he might put us into a revue he's got an interest in."

This time Mr. Boldini didn't answer, for he was lost in considering that if he took the job he might be able to pay Mrs. Lefferty what he owed her, that he might become famous again.

VARIETY—Walter Huston, distinguished Broadway and Hollywood star, will be featured on the "Kate Smith Hour" during its broadcast over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight in a play based on legends associated with Davy Crockett, one of the most glamorous figures of the old west. A famous pioneer and Indian fighter, he was killed in the fall of the Alamo. The play is called "Sunset Saga."

Kate sings in the program's musical department, with several old and new songs. Ted Straeter's Singers and Jack Miller's orchestra also contribute their melodies. The comedy part of the program is handled hilariously by Bud Abbott and Lou Costello.

CONCERT—"The Rosary" by Ethelbert Nevin, will be sung by Lucille Manners, lovely young soprano, as the highlight of the Friday Concert program during its broadcast to be heard over WSB at 7 o'clock tonight.

The young soprano will be assisted by Ross Graham, baritone, and the orchestra under the direction of Dr. Frank Black.

The program includes:

- "Why," by Coats (ensemble).
- "The Rosary," by Nevin (Lucille Manners).
- "Dance of the Archers" from "Prince Igor," by Borodin (orchestra).
- "My Lovely Celia," by Muro (Ross Graham).
- "Alleluia," by Mozart (Lucille Manners).
- "Reverie," by Debussy (orchestra).
- "Strange Enchantment," by Hollander (ensemble).
- "Caprice de Nannette," from Petite Suite de concert, by Coleridge-Taylor (orchestra).
- "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," by Nevin (Lucille Manners and Ross Graham).
- Ballet Music from "Faust," by Gounod (orchestra).
- "Tally-Ho," by Leon (chorus).
- "My Romance," by Rodgers (Lucille Manners).
- "Avalon," by Ross (ensemble).
- "Dardanelle," by Bernard.
- "The Sheik," by Snyder.
- "Whispering," by Scherberger.
- "Linger a While," by Ross.
- "On Miami Shore," by Jacob.

JOHNNY—The late George Gershwin's hit song, "Wintergreen for President," from his prize-winning musical "Of Thee I Sing," will be revived as an ensemble number by Johnny Green as the musical highlight of the "Johnny Presents" program to be heard over WGST at 8 o'clock tonight.

Max Marcin has written a "perfect crime" mystery drama, "The False Word," which will be produced by Jack Johnstone as the dramatic highlight of the show.

The program includes:

- "Moonlight Madonna."
- "Woodpecker Song."
- "Shake Down the Stars."
- "Ain't You Ashamed?"

WALTZ TIME—Tenor Frank Munn, Abe Lyman and his orchestra, will be presented in another half-hour program of melodies old and new in three-quarter time over WSB at 8 o'clock tonight.

The program includes:

- "Sierra Sue."
- "Imagination."
- "Love's Fancy."
- "The Song Is Ended."
- "Palms of Paradise."
- "Invitation to a Dance."
- "Dust on Your Picture."

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—This is a splendid day to do those things around the home that have been put off for some time. You will likely accomplish more, however, if you will work by yourself.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—If you will want to do something and finish it quickly, plan to start it today. You will likely accomplish more, however, if you will work by yourself.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Today favors work that is close at hand, and try to postpone affairs that have to do with things at a distance. Work that involves domestic and family matters should prosper.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—This is an auspicious day for working alone, or for affairs that do not bring you in close touch with the public. Try to avoid people and affairs that are in the limelight.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—This is not a good day for giving and receiving promises, for something unforeseen is apt to happen that may change the situation. However, new ventures that require quick completion may be undertaken.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Work that requires efficiency, and dealings with efficient people are favored today, but plan to postpone work that demands speed.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—This is a favorable day for seeking other people, or for working with others in a cooperative way. It is a time, however, to conserve funds, as you may be too optimistic in financial ways.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—If you will analyze the situation, and work with a feeling of relaxation, today should be an auspicious day for dealing with those in authority, and for undertaking new responsibilities. Sales or selling will be more profitable than buying things.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—This should be an auspicious day for dealing with those in authority, and for undertaking new responsibilities. Sales or selling will be more profitable than buying things.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—Spending around friends or for them may prove to be high. It will therefore be better to avoid excesses, as you may realize tomorrow.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Work requiring friends or for them may prove to be high. It will therefore be better to avoid excesses, as you may realize tomorrow.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Today is more favorable for mental work than it is for labor. You may be called upon to do something that is hard and tedious, but try to reason out the way that requires least effort.

By WILLIAM BIRD.

For North American Newspaper Alliance. PARIS, May 30.—Proofs are expected to be forthcoming shortly that the capitulation was a pre-meditated act of treachery to the Allies and that it may in fact have been planned even before the beginning of the German invasion of Belgium on May 10.

As yet, this is only a presumption drawn from the King's behavior in the last few days as pictured by French officers and Belgian cabinet ministers who have been in contact with him.

But if the King's act was pre-meditated, it fits perfectly with his behavior; whereas, if it was not, it remains inexplicable in view of the fact that the Belgian armies were subject to the unified Allied command. No decision to capitulate could properly be taken without consulting Georges Maurice Jean Blanchard, the French general, who gave orders in Belgium.

The facts on which the presumption of premeditation is based are: 1. That the appeal for Allied help was not made by Leopold until many hours after the German invasion had begun. 2. That after the Allied armies had gone to his aid, Leopold for many days refused to allow his armies to be placed under the unified Allied command. 3. That throughout the campaign Leopold submitted to General Blanchard's orders only with reluctance and often with considerable delay. 4. That for several days before the capitulation Leopold was fretful and irritable, a mental condition which in retrospect appears suspiciously like the sign of an uneasy conscience.

The belief is growing here that Leopold was acquainted with the German offensive plan and deliberately drew the Allied armies into Belgium and Holland for the purpose of delivering them to Germany. Certain it is that the Belgians now in France by the millions have disavowed their sovereign.

Cheatham Cites Danger to U. S. In '5th Column'

Ship Terms Unity of Purpose Priceless Asset.

MARIETTA, Ga., May 30.—(P) Arthur Cheatham, state veterans' service officer, in a Memorial Day address today, urged the destruction of the "fifth column" and said "it is more important to keep democracy in America than to interfere in the strife of Europe's war."

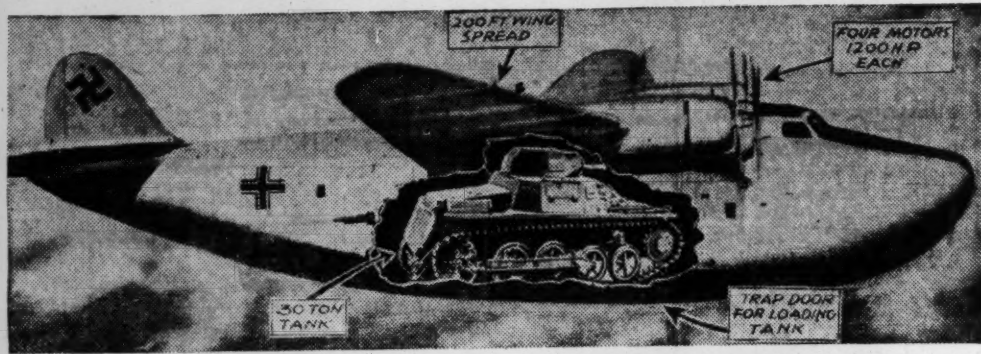

Speaking in the National cemetery on a program featured by the decoration of Union graves and dedication of a new $30,000 marble rostrum, Cheatham declared that regardless of the war, America will never be attacked if it "makes itself defensively the most powerful nation in the world."

He urged the "return of foreigners who will not subscribe to and uphold the Constitution of the United States to the countries whose policies they follow."

Participating in the services were various veteran groups and a detachment of machinegun troops from the national guard. Meanwhile, in Andersonville National Cemetery-Park, Nelson M. Shipp, Columbus editor, declared unity of purpose is necessary if "the priceless things that American civilization and the Christian way of life stand for" are to be preserved.

NEW RADIO STUDIO.

WEST POINT, Ga., May 30.—Officials of the Valley Broadcasting Company have announced construction will begin at once on the studios of the new broadcasting company, to be located in the General Tyler hotel. It is expected the West Point radio station will be ready for broadcasting by September 1.

NAZI "SECRET WEAPON"—Here is an artist's conception of what a German refugee declares is Hitler's dread "secret weapon." Encased in the fuselage of a giant transport plane is a huge tank, which can be dropped through a trap door after the plane lands behind enemy lines. At least 200 of these blitzkrieg weapons are reported ready for use in an invasion of England.

London Admits Three of Ships Sunk by Nazis

Germans Only 5 Minutes' Bomber Flight to English Coast.

By The Associated Press.

The British admiralty yesterday announced the loss of the destroyers Grafton, Grenade and Wakeful, totaling 3,770 tons, the transport Auker, 689 tons, and "certain small" auxiliary craft in the navy's participation in the escape of thousands of Allied troops from the German trap in Flanders.

Meanwhile, women and children streamed out of the southeast coastal section in the knowledge that dread German bombers, flying from bases on the French coast, were only five minutes away.

Southeastern England was now on the "front" and the government was expected to order citizens to move out.

Broken and Weary.

Broken and weary, driven back to the sea in a retreat severe beyond compare to the Allies' disastrous campaign in the Turkish Dardanelles during the World War, British troops and blue-coated French poilus were being embarked for England on a shuttle service of 60 vessels or more. The first transports and hospital ships arriving at English coastal ports testified to the horror and carnage of the great retreat.

Portholes smashed by machinegun bullets and funnels riddled by strafing German planes gave evidence of the tempest of death engulfing the beaten army.

Reports reaching Berlin pictured the British expeditionary force as being "slashed to pieces" almost within the sight of the chalk cliffs of Dover, across the English channel from Flanders.

The British, however, declared that "troops not immediately engaged" in rear-guard actions "have been evacuated."

How many others lay at the bottom of the English channel was still unknown. The German high command reported its dive-bombers had sunk 16 Allied transports and three British warships and damaged 34 other vessels waiting to embark troops.

Other Nazi Claims.

The Germans also asserted they shot down or destroyed 89 Allied planes, with a loss of only 15 themselves.

In withdrawing their shattered northern armies—leaving the main Allied forces firmly entrenched on a now stabilized front along the Aisne and Somme rivers—the Allies yielded a 10,000-square-mile area comprising all of France north of the Aisne-Somme line and the small segment of Belgium which remained unconquered until King Leopold III ordered the "death blow" surrender of 300,000 Belgian soldiers on Tuesday.

A British communiqué said the withdrawal operations had been carried out "with skill and daring."

The withdrawal was facilitated by the heroic stand at Calais of the small British force sent to France last week to maintain communications.

This force, which arrived just in time to find that the main body of the British Expeditionary Force was withdrawing toward Dunkerque, proved "of invaluable assistance" in the retreat, the communiqué said.

"This action," it continued, "will count among the most heroic deeds in the annals of the British army."

Fate Not Revealed.

The communiqué did not say exactly what happened to this small force, but mentioned that "its refusal to surrender Calais" until it contained a large number of the enemy" was accomplished "in spite of repeated attacks and of continuous air and artillery bombardment."

While news of the partly successful jamming of the Nazi trap was announced in Britain, the citizenry was warned by Home Secretary Sir John Anderson, that "there is every prospect of early call upon the civil defense," meaning that invasion of England appeared imminent.

He urged all units to keep "fully manned and in a state of readiness and efficiency."

Spectators viewed in tears and wrath the tired and battered troops home from Flanders.

The admiralty said in reporting losses of the destroyers Grafton, Wakeful and Grenade and other vessels that "operations of this nature cannot be carried out without losses."

The admiralty said "the next to kin of the casualties are being notified as details become available," presumably meaning that few rescues were made.

As to German claims of many more British ships lost, the admiralty said, "As usual, these bear no relation to facts."

Vice Admiral Sir James Somerville assured the kingdom in a broadcast tonight that British naval forces are prepared to meet any kind of a German attempt at invasion.

Evacuation Plans.

At the same time the health ministry said it might be necessary to broaden the areas of the east and southeast from which children are leaving next week.

Already 39,000 children, comprising 61 per cent of the school population of 15 cities, are ready for evacuation starting Sunday.

Health Minister Malcolm MacDonald, in a broadcast, called on all parents to register their children for transfer, and declared the risk of early bombing was "real."

In the streets, the stores and the trains for the first time since the war started a reluctance to discuss the happenings is evident. Ashen-faced citizens, almost all of them awaiting word of a relative or a friend, can no longer bear to talk about it.

In official circles, a fight to the finish was promised.

Alfred Duff Cooper, minister of information, declared that Adolf Hitler no longer can have "the seat at the conference table which so long has awaited him." He added:

"The Allies are forces against which Hitler may deliver one defeat, but which I believe he cannot overcome."

That the channel fight strikes into virtually every British home was illustrated in yesterday's news that the royal family had lost a member in action. The victim was Lord Frederick Cambridge, first cousin of King George.

Another probable victim was Captain David William Simpson, a naval hero who was decorated early this year. He is missing and believed dead.

Comfort is found, however, in the news that the withdrawal is being accomplished with better-than-hoped-for results.

Chief Question Is Where Italy Will Open War

Observers Doubt Duce Will Let Hitler Make Announcement.

ROME, May 31.—(P)—Reports from Berlin that Adolf Hitler has summoned his propaganda minister to prepare an announcement concerning Italy's part in the war reached Rome too late for official comment, but observers said they thought it highly unlikely Premier Mussolini's precise intentions will be known before he strikes.

While expectancy was high that Italy would enter the war soon, few expected any sort of declaration.

The Berlin reports caused no surprise here. The chief question was whether Italy would strike directly at France, at French and British possessions, or launch on an independent Balkan tangent menacing Greece and Turkey and ultimately the English and the French.

Meanwhile, Italy went ahead getting ready her army, but casting no light on when it may move.

Premier Mussolini called his cabinet for discussion next Tuesday of "important matters."

Civil mobilization regulations published today will, upon order of Mussolini, subject to service men up to the age of 70, boys down to the age of 14, and women from 14 to 60. They would be assigned to non-combatant tasks.

The exodus of Americans continues. The entire student body of the North American College, consisting of 106 student priests, will leave Rome tomorrow aboard the United States liners Manhattan and President Harrison. Other Americans will be aboard.

U.S. Ambulance Driver Relates War Tragedies

Harvard Grad Keeps Notes on Experiences in Battle Areas.

By HORACE W. FULLER.

PARIS, May 30.—(UP)—I have just returned from duty with the French armies in the field, where I have been driving an ambulance in the Amiens sector.

The following are notes I wrote describing my experiences during the past 10 days:

I am in an advanced dressing station in a wheat field on the south bank of the River Somme. I look about a mile ahead into the city of Amiens. It is being bombed. German planes are coming over hour after hour dropping high explosives and incendiary bombs. Most of the city is in flames. The 13th century cathedral, however, still stands intact. As I gaze at the inferno, I can picture thousands of dead men, women and children lying in the path of the flames and other thousands waiting for us rescue workers to assist them.

Every load of wounded we carry pays its toll in dead to the low-flying bombers and new "strafing machines." These latter have perfected murder by installing machineguns, not in the nose, but in the floor of the plane so that it needs only to fly level at tree height and spray the roads with death. Along the road there are about 10 dead bodies every 100 yards.

On Monday morning, May 20, about 1 o'clock, our section of 16 ambulances is ordered up to Amiens. All along the route we see gasoline depots blown up mysteriously. In Amiens we find only one gendarme, who guides us to a hospital. Dead and wounded are lying around. Many are dying because there are not enough physicians for operations. We pick our way through bomb-pitted streets and sheets of flame with about 50 wounded, mostly refugees. Even our kitchen truck is pressed into service. In my ambulance we carry a father, whose abdomen is torn open and whose stomach is lying on his knees, and one of his daughters, unconscious from a terrible stomach wound.

Soon after I leave . . . two ambulances return to Amiens. They are forced to carry their wounded to cellars where a fleet of German bombers appears and drops about 200 bombs. The wounded cry for the protection of God and Joan of Arc. Screams fill the dark cellar.

For 72 hours we work without sleep transferring wounded from battlefields and the desolation of towns to ambulance trains. When we do get time to sleep we spread blankets on the ground because the smell of blood is too strong in ambulances, hospitals or railway stations.

Near Beauvais I am driving one of six ambulances called to evacuate the wounded in a little town of about 1,500 people. Suddenly we hear the roar of nine bombers. We take as many wounded as possible and race for the outskirts to hide under trees while bombs drop like huge hailstones.

It is Saturday and I am carrying a French fighter pilot 24 years old who was a Little Blue employee. Flying a Curtiss fighter, he attacked 17 Messerschmitts and downed two. His goggles were shot away, his head grazed by a bullet and he got a bullet through the thigh, but he is anxious to get back into battle. He praises the maneuverability of the Curtiss (American planes), although they are slower than the Messerschmitts.

Several days have passed. I am en route to Paris for a couple of days' rest. Tomorrow I am going back to scenes of destruction which should never have happened.

U. S. Liner Sails England Gives For Americans U. S. Patents on Fleeing Europe Prize Airplane

Washington Is Loaded With Red Cross War Supplies.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—Bound for southern Europe to carry Americans out of the war zones, the U. S. Lines' 24,269-ton Washington, largest passenger liner in America, sailed today with a cargo of first aid supplies destined for Red Cross units.

The ship, its sides and decks emblazoned with its name and 15-foot-high American flags, also carried 11 men heading for the war fronts to act as ambulance drivers for the American volunteer ambulance corps and the American field service in France. There were 77 passengers in all, 27 of them Americans. In addition, she carried 2,693 sacks of mail.

Aboard were Archer Woodford, United States consul at Hamburg, Germany; H. Freeman Matthews, first secretary of the American embassy at Paris, and ambulance drivers including John D. Wellborn, son of a former Federal Reserve Bank governor.

FORMER ATLANTIAN SAILS FOR AMBULANCE DUTY.

John D. Wellborn, one of several Americans to sail yesterday for emergency ambulance duty in France, is a former Atlantian and the son of M. B. Wellborn, former governor of the Federal Reserve Bank here.

He moved from Atlanta about eight years ago to Washington, where he was engaged in the typewriter business. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia.

A brother, William B. Wellborn, Atlanta insurance man, went to New York to see him off.

LINER PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT EXPECTED IN EIRE TODAY.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—The American liner President Roosevelt, sent by the State Department to Galway, Ireland, to remove Americans fleeing war areas, is expected to arrive there tomorrow night, the U. S. Lines said today. The liner left New York May 24.

3 Million Men Left to French, Nazis Declare

Must Battle 8,000,000 Germans and Possibly 4,000,000 Italians.

BERLIN, May 30.—(P)—Reliable German sources estimated tonight that France had only 3,000,000 men left to meet the onslaught of 8,000,000 Germans and possibly 4,000,000 Italians.

Of the original 4,000,000 Frenchmen under arms, about 1,000,000 were declared either to have been killed, taken prisoner, or to be facing annihilation within the next few days in the German pincer movement.

Of these remaining 3,000,000, German sources estimated that 1,000,000 are needed as possible defenders against Italy. Another 1,000,000 are said to be lined up between the Somme and Aisne rivers protecting Paris. One million are said to be in the Maginot line.

Anti-German Wrath Sweeps Buenos Aires

Crowds Surge Through Streets After Sinking of Merchant Ship.

BUENOS AIRES, May 30.—(P)—Resentful crowds of Argentines surged through the streets of Buenos Aires tonight following a long interview of President Roberto Ortiz with German Ambassador Edmund von Thiermann over the U-boat sinking of the merchantman Uruguay off the Spanish coast.

The street crowds were in an ugly mood over reports that half the crew of the Uruguay was left adrift in lifeboats 140 miles from the Spanish coast. Fourteen members of the crew are missing.

Police dispersed a group of angry youths headed for the German Club.

A man was arrested after hurling stones through the plate glass windows of the Deutsche La Plata Zeitung, one of the oldest German papers in South America.

Among others taken into custody were two sons of Carlos Noel, president of the chamber of deputies.

The Zeitung, pro-Nazi in policy, pulled down an iron curtain over its windows, shutting from sight the bulletins on the war it usually displayed.

Argentine officials refused to disclose any details of the interview with the German ambassador, but said "the entire situation brought about by the war" was discussed.

craft adviser to Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, said the British gave this government full rights to use the patents to its famed "Merlin," a 12-cylinder, liquid-cooled Rolls-Royce. It is the same engine that powers British "Spitfires," "Hurricanes" and other speedy pursuit ships.

LEAGUE HEADS NAMED.

MONTEZUMA, Ga., May 30.—J. C. Luke Jr., of Fitzgerald, has been elected commander of the third area of the Georgia American Legion, with the following district commanders: Jesse Thomas, of Eastman; James Crocker, of Unadilla; Frank Stapleton, of Americus; R. T. Horrocks, of Cuthbert, and Paul Hodges, of Reynolds.

CHURCH HOMECOMING. LANGDALE, Ala., May 30.—Homecoming day will be observed at Langdale Christian church Sunday. The morning sermon will be preached by the Rev. H. M. Gray, of Roanoke, former pastor. Sunday night a revival series will begin with the Rev. W. Millard Stevens, of Duke University, as the evangelist. The Rev. J. D. Dollar is the local pastor.

Veal Is Savory

Veal chops offer opportunity for varying family or company meals. Breaded, stuffed or cooked in sour cream sauce, veal chops command attention and win approval for delicateness of flavor and wholesome goodness. Usually thought of as company fare, they are not an expensive meat.

There are several chops in veal, the rib, loin and kidney, all of them good and all lending themselves to several methods of preparation. All veal, however, should be well cooked and it should be cooked slowly. Braising is the correct means of cooking veal chops. By braising is meant browning meat first, then adding a very small amount of water, covering tightly and cooking over low heat until tender and done. Here are some ways of preparing veal chops.

Braised Veal Chops.
Have veal chops, loin, kidney or rib, cut three-fourths to one inch thick. Dredge with flour and brown well on both sides in hot fat. Season with salt and pepper. Add one-half cup hot water, cover closely and cook slowly on top of stove or in moderate oven about 45 minutes.

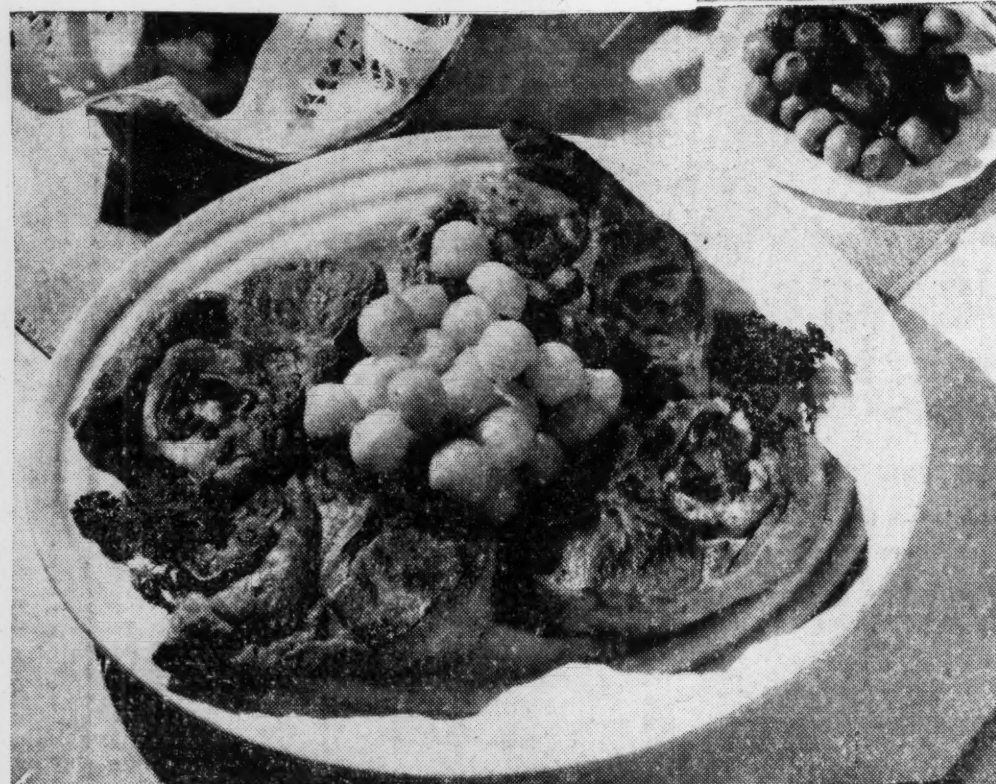

Veal Chops in Casserole.
After browning chops as described above, transfer them to a greased casserole or baking dish. Cover with green peas and diced celery. Make a gravy from the fat in which chops were browned and pour this over chops and vegetables. Cover casserole closely and place in moderate oven about 45 minutes.

Stuffed Veal Chops.
Brown chops, then place in greased casserole. Pile on each chop a spoonful of bread dressing to which one-half cup cranberry sauce has been added. Lay half a slice of bacon on each. Add one-half cup hot water, cover closely and place in moderate oven about 45 minutes.

Veal Chops in Sour Cream Sauce.
Many famous chefs cook veal in sour cream.
Loin or rib chops
1 cup fine dry bread crumbs
1 egg
2 tablespoons milk
3 tablespoons fat
1-2 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon sugar
Salt and pepper.

Beat egg with the milk. Dip the chops into the fine bread crumbs, then into egg mixture, then into crumbs again. Brown chops on both sides in hot fat, then reduce temperature, cover closely and cook slowly until tender. Remove chops to hot platter and into the drippings stir the flour which has been blended with cold water. Cook until thickened, add sour cream and season with sugar, salt and pepper. Pour over the chops and serve hot.

Veal chops, braised, are served with potato balls.

Prize Winning Recipes For This Week

Yeast Corn Muffins.

Submitted by Miss Gladys Hays,
R. F. D. No. 3, Conyers, Ga.

1-2 pint sweet milk
2 tablespoons fat
2 tablespoons sugar
Mix, scald, and cool to lukewarm.
Add 1 cake compressed yeast and 1 cup flour to which has been added 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1-3 teaspoon soda. Mix well, beating until smooth. Let rise 2 hours, then add enough meal to make medium batter. Put in muffin tins and let rise from 1 to 2 hours. Bake in moderately hot oven. Yield: about 20 muffins.

French Fried Carrots.

Submitted by
Mrs. P. D. Simmons,
1176 Briarcliff Place, N. E., Atlanta.

Wash and scrape carrots, cut into slivers enough to fill 2 cups. Cook about 20 minutes in boiling salted water. Beat 1 egg and add 1-2 cup evaporated milk, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder and 3-4 cup flour. Add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley. 1-2 teaspoon salt and mix well. Dip carrots into batter and fry until golden brown (about 2 minutes) in deep hot fat. Drain on unglazed paper.

Banana Cookies.

Submitted by Mrs. L. E. Munns,
Buford, Ga.

1-1-2 cups sifted flour
1-2 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1-4 teaspoon nutmeg
3-4 teaspoon cinnamon
3-4 cup shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup mashed bananas
1 3-4 cups rolled oats
1-2 cup nut meats
Cream shortening and sugar until light and fluffy; add egg and beat well. Add bananas, rolled oats, nut meats and mix thoroughly. Add flour, soda, salt and spices which have been sifted together. Mix well and drop by spoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake in moderate oven about 15 minutes.

Lemon Delicacy.

Submitted by
Mrs. H. F. Ruch,
1073 St. Louis Place, N. E. Atlanta.

2 tablespoons butter
3-4 cup sugar
Juice of 1 lemon
Grated rind of 1-2 lemon
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons flour
2 eggs
Cream butter, add sugar gradually and cream well. Add well-beaten egg yolks, flour, lemon juice and rind; mix thoroughly. Add milk and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into buttered baking dish or individual dishes. Set in pan of hot water and bake in slow oven 350 degrees, about 45 minutes. A delicious crust will form on top.

Salad Ideas

Reference to salads was made as far back as the time of Shakespeare, who wrote in "Anthony and Cleopatra," "My salad days, when I was green in judgment."

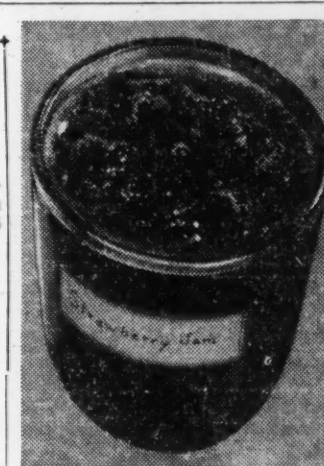

Wash the crisp parts of three heads of endive. Dry on towel and arrange on flat dish. Sprinkle with olive oil and chopped onion. Mix one tablespoon of honey with one-half teaspoon salt and a dash of white pepper. Pour over endive and serve.

Serve tomato aspic with chicken salad center, or a square of aspic on this salad. Garnish with pineapple slices. Hot cheese biscuits and coffee will round out this tempting meal.

Slash large, firm tomatoes into four petals. Stuff the center with a mixture of grated celery, apple and green pepper. Top with balls of cottage cheese and a dressing made with olive oil, egg and lemon juice.

Mix together one-half small cabbage, sliced finely; one-half green pepper, cut in thin slices; about one-half cup grated raw carrots. Pour over this mixture a French dressing made of one-half cup salad oil, one-fourth cup vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon pepper and a few grains of paprika. (Be sure that all the ingredients for the dressing have been mixed or shaken well before you pour it over the salad.) Let stand a few hours to blend thoroughly.

Orchard salad requires one-fourth cup mayonnaise, one tablespoon French dressing, one-half teaspoon salt, two cups each finely cut watercress and chopped green apples. Combine mayonnaise, French dressing and apples before adding greens and apples. Serves four.

Strawberry preserves might be called an All-American sweet.

It's Time To Make Strawberry Delicacies

Despite the lateness of the season strawberries are with us and becoming cheap enough for your thoughts to be turning to the making of strawberry preserves, jam and jelly. A bright warm sun encourages preserve-making, because some cooks insist that strawberry preserves after short cooking should be set in the sun to plump. Undoubtedly the sun's warm rays do have a wholesome effect, but if the sun doesn't show its face on schedule do not let that deter you if there are strawberries on hand. Here are directions for making strawberry delicacies to be eaten now and later.

There are many methods of making preserves; this one will prove highly satisfactory.

Strawberry Preserves

3 level quarts berries
9 cups sugar
1 cup water

Wash, drain and hull strawberries before measuring. Put sugar and water into a large preserving kettle, stir and boil until sugar is well dissolved. This makes a heavy syrup. Cook syrup thick as desired and add strawberries. Boil 15 minutes only, start timing when a full rolling boil begins. Do not stir, but shake kettle and occasionally until cold. The shaking is one of the secrets of success, as it causes the berries to absorb the syrup and remain plump and whole. When cold put into freshly sterilized jars and seal. Never cook more than three quarts of berries at a time. Store fruit in a darkened place to keep it from fading.

Jam differs from preserves in that in jam there is no effort made to keep fruit whole. Make jam this way:

Strawberry Jam

6 cups strawberries
5 cups sugar
Wash, drain and hull berries. Mash berries to make 6 cups. Dip juice off mashed berries and mix with sugar. Cook sugar and juice for five minutes, boiling rapidly. Add berries to syrup and mix well. Cook until thick; pour into sterilized hot jars and seal.

Strawberry Jelly

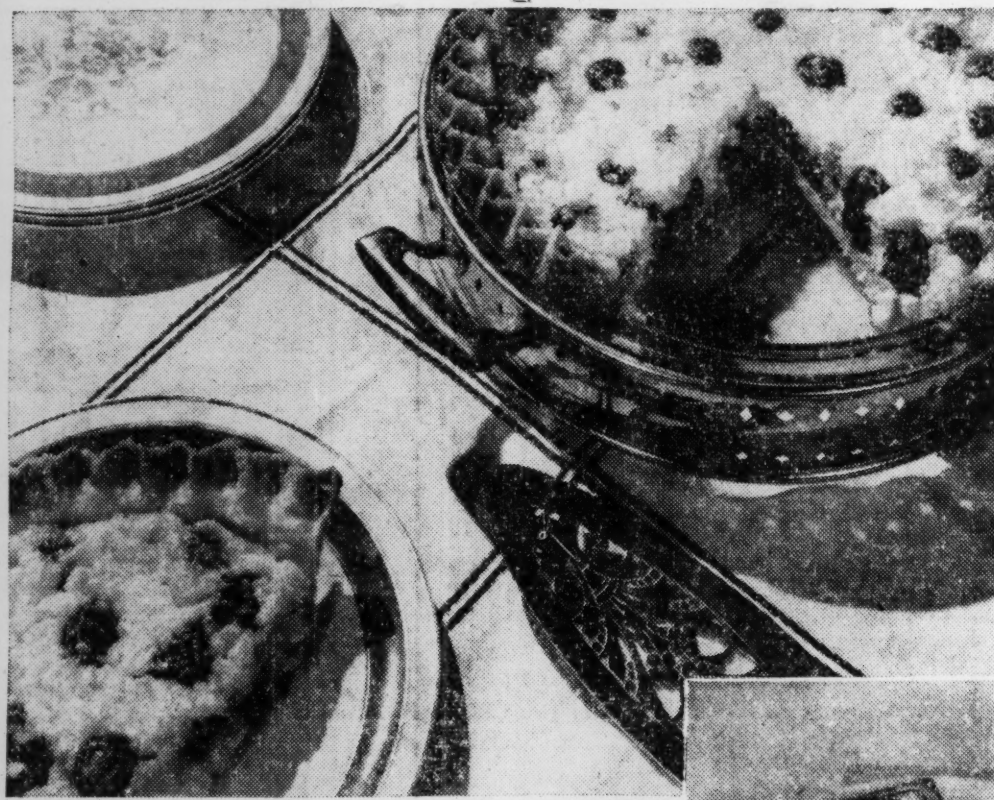

4 cups berry juice
2 tablespoons lemon juice
8 cups sugar
1 bottle fruit pectin
To prepare juice, crush thoroughly or grind about 3 quarts fully ripe strawberries. Place fruit in jelly bag or cloth and squeeze. Squeeze and strain juice from 1 medium lemon. Measure sugar and juices into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard 1-2 minute. Remove from fire, skim and pour up quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes 12 medium glasses.

Cloverleaf Rolls

One cup boiling water, one-fourth cup sugar, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter or margarine (or half butter and shortening), one cake compressed yeast, two tablespoons lukewarm water, one-half teaspoon sugar, one egg, beaten, four cups sifted flour.

Mix boiling water, sugar, salt and shortening together. Dissolve yeast in the lukewarm water. Add one-half teaspoon sugar, and add to water mixture when it has cooled to a lukewarm. Add beaten egg. Sift in two cups of flour and beat well. Add remaining flour, one cup at a time, beating after each addition. Mix thoroughly to a smooth dough; knead slightly.

With a pair of kitchen scissors, dipped into flour, cut off small pieces of dough about the size of a hickory nut. Place each ball in the palm of the hand and roll lightly until round. Place three of these little rolls into each greased cup of a muffin pan. Brush top with melted butter; cover with a clean towel and let rise in a warm place until double in bulk, about two hours. Bake 12 to 14 minutes in a hot oven, 425 degrees.

Cottage cheese cherry pie is a fine family dessert.

Cottage Cheese Cherry Pie

Cottage cheese affords an excellent means of getting more milk into the diet. The many possibilities of this delicate cheese, made of skim milk, are too often overlooked. Try this pie:

Filling for Cottage Cheese Cherry Pie.

1-2 cup sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon flour
1 1-2 cups cottage cheese
4 teaspoons melted butter or margarine
2 egg yolks, unbeaten
2 cups sour cherries, pitted and drained.

Combine sugar, salt and flour. Add to cottage cheese; add butter, egg yolks and cherries and mix well. Pour into an unbaked pie shell, bake at 400 degrees for 10 minutes, reduce temperature to 350 and continue baking until filling is firm. Cool on a cake rack. Makes one nine-inch pie.

Ideas From a Cook's Notebook

Scrambled eggs will seem quite a new dish if you serve them with "bacon croutons." Trim the crusts from slices of bread, cut the slices in half-inch cubes and brown them quickly in a little hot bacon fat in a frying pan. Fold them lightly into scrambled eggs and serve at once.

And here's another trick that is good to use when you find that the only available bread is too stale to make good breakfast toast. Flick a few drops of water across the surface of each slice of bread and toast it immediately.

Half a can of mushroom soup added to the gravy in the pan of baked meat loaf will give a grand flavor to that good old stand-by and make it seem like a new acquaintance. Stir a little flour into the gravy; cook for a minute, then add the soup and enough hot water to dilute it to the desired consistency.

Add a little anchovy paste to the egg yolks when making deviled eggs and remember that plenty of seasonings will be used if the eggs are to live up to their name! A little dry mustard, cayenne pepper, a drop of tobacco sauce or some Worcestershire sauce should all be included. Vinegar or mayonnaise or French dressing may be used for the necessary moistening.

Deviled eggs served hot in a tomato sauce made from canned tomatoes or canned tomato soup are served for an emergency luncheon dish and give quite a company air. Garnish the eggs with toast points and serve sizzling hot.

Hot Frankfurter and Potato
6 c. thinly sliced cooked potatoes
2-4 tsp. salt
1-8 tsp. pepper
1-2 c. salad or olive oil
1-4 c. vinegar

1 No. 2 can (21-2 c.) string beans
1-4 c. sliced onions
6 frankfurters
Combine the potatoes, salt, pepper, oil, and vinegar. Arrange the drained string beans in the bottom of a 2-qt. covered casserole. Over them arrange the potato salad in alternate layers with the onions and sliced frankfurters. (Cook the latter 5 min. before using.) Cover and bake in moderately hot oven of 400 degrees F. for 35 to 40 min. Serves 6. To serve 2 or 3, make half this recipe.

Tomato Aspic.

Here is a dependable recipe for a supply of flavorful tomato aspic, which may be stored in the ice box and used as needed.
Combine four cups canned tomatoes, three-fourths teaspoon salt, one bay leaf, one-half cup chopped celery, one tablespoon chopped onion, four whole cloves, one tablespoon chopped parsley and a dash of pepper. Simmer slowly for 10 minutes and strain. Soak two tablespoons gelatin in one-half cup cold water and add to the hot tomato mixture, to gether with one-fourth teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, stirring well. Chill until set.

Mixed Salad Loaf.

Two tablespoons gelatin, one-half cup cold water, two cups tomato soup, one and one-half cups cold meat, diced, one cup peas, drained, three packages cream cheese, one tablespoon prepared mustard.

Soak the gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Heat the soup to the boiling point and dissolve the gelatin in it. Chill until the mixture thickens slightly, then fold in the peas and meat. Pour into a wet mold and chill until firm. Whip the cheese with the mustard and a few drops of cream or top milk, mixing to spreading consistency. Unmold the loaf and frost top and sides with cheese. Garnish with crisp watercress and sliced cucumber. Or make cucumber cups from the ends of unpeeled cucumbers. This entire loaf may be prepared the day before. Cooked vegetable assortments may be used, with diced celery. The mold may be lined with sliced stuffed olives and strips of pimiento.

Tomato Eggs

Cut hard-boiled eggs in halves lengthwise, remove yolks and fill with this mixture: Crushed yolks, grated cheese, bread crumbs, butter and enough raw tomato (or tomato juice) to make a paste. Season, chill and serve on crisp greens.

Pastry making is an art which can be mastered by following a few simple rules.

Practice Makes Perfect Pies

Every cook is proud, and rightly so, of a pie crust that is flaky and tender. Perfect pastry shatters rather than crumbles when you bite into it, giving rise to the "melts in the mouth" description often applied to a really good pie.

Accurate measurements and a little practice will produce a good pie crust. Only by practice does one learn how much or how little handling of the dough is necessary for best results. Berry time is pie time, so some pastry making suggestions, we think, are in order.

Plain Pastry

2 1-2 cups sifted flour.
2-4 teaspoon salt.
2-3 to 3-4 cup shortening.

1-3 cup cold water (about).
Mix and sift flour and salt; cut in shortening with knives or pastry blender until mixture is like coarse sand. Add water in small amounts to dry material, stirring lightly with a fork and tossing aside pieces of dough as soon as they are formed. Use only enough water to make particles hold together. Shape lightly, wrap in towel or waxed paper and chill thoroughly. Roll dough 1-8 inch thick. Yield: pastry for one two-crust pie or two shells.

Plain Pastry Using Self-Rising Flour

2 cups sifted self-rising flour.
4 tablespoons shortening.
Make according to directions given above.

A new idea in pastry making is the addition of lemon juice and one slightly beaten egg to the fundamental ingredients. Here's the recipe for this new pastry:

Lemon Juice Pastry

3 cups sifted flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
1 cup shortening.
1 slightly beaten egg.
3 tablespoons lemon juice.
Ice water.
Sift flour and salt together. Cut in shortening. Add egg, combined with lemon juice. Add gradually just enough ice water to hold dough together. Chill before rolling out. This recipe will make three pie shells and unused dough may be kept in refrigerator until needed. Self-rising flour may be used, omitting salt.

Brother Beats Brother
In School Attendance
MELBETA, Neb., May 30.—(AP) Most everyone conceded Clarence Grabill was pretty good when he graduated from high school two years ago with a 10-year record of no absences or tardy marks.

But along came brother George this year with a 12-year record of perfect attendance.

INSIDE STUFF.
KINOSHA, Wis., May 30.—(UP) Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins gave the latest news on whether President Roosevelt will seek a third term. She asked the President whether he planned to run again, she said, "and he just looked out of the window and told me what he thought the weather would be like tomorrow."

Air Base Need Of U. S. Outside Continent Cited

Defense Plans Call For Outposts to Augment Navy in Emergency.

By MARK S. WATSON.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—The preparation of aerial defense of the United States calls for a great deal more than airplanes of every variety, and perfectly trained pilots, and thoroughly experienced mechanics. These are all necessary, and in great numbers, and quickly.

But, besides all these, the defense authorities recognize the vital need of air bases, large, well designed and protected, and far in excess of those now operating in the United States, including all those of army, navy and commercial services alike. In addition to these domestic bases, whose need no one disputes, there is further need—perhaps even more urgent—for additional bases far beyond our continental territory. Of this the layman has been almost totally unaware.

New Type of War. For in the new sort of war which 1940 has disclosed, sea power is not solely sufficient for protection of a continent. This war has shown that air power, if great enough, can both elude and harass dreadnaughts, and can be blocked only by superior air defense.

The bald fact is that all our defense plans, by air as well as by sea, have been based on the traditional presumption that we would have the support, whether active or passive, of the British navy and that with its support our own navy could hold off all enemies. In particular, it assumed that Newfoundland, for example, and Bermuda, and the Bahamas, and British Guiana would be in friendly hands.

That assumption, it is becoming grimly apparent, is no longer one which can be relied upon indefinitely, any more than can the fundamental fact of the British navy's continued existence.

Started in 1938. Our navy itself was none too alert in its first insistence on outlying defense posts, but two years ago, through the efforts of Admiral Arthur F. Heppburn, it made a considered recommendation for prompt construction of 15 new bases, or extensions of old bases. They ranged from Alaska to the distant Pacific islands of Midway and Wake, and from the canal zones eastward to Puerto Rico. One of them (at San Juan, Puerto Rico) is now operating, although by no means complete.

Others are under construction. The same Heppburn report advocated 10 additional bases in outlying possessions, including our naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, but these were listed for later construction, also submarine bases in two similar waves. None of the secondary list, naturally, is yet operating, save for a minor marine corps base in the Virgin Islands, which was to be a part of a much larger development. We have army air bases in operation at several points on or near our own coast, and in a few distant places—notably at Panama, where we have two of our strongest, as guards of the canal, and on Puerto Rico.

Alaska Base Vital. Perhaps the most important of our projected army air bases is that at Anchorage, Alaska. It may be remembered that the house committee in its enacting only a few weeks ago struck out this item from the army budget. It will also be remembered that President Roosevelt promptly requested its restoration as very important, which it is. But it is only in the state of planning, as are numerous others.

The general principle of air defense is comparable to that first principle of sea defense—to meet the enemy just as far as possible from our own territory, and to block him there.

A potent example is afforded by Germany itself. The great field of Tempelhof in Berlin could be considered the city's main air base. But, very far from being the only base, it is supported by fully a score of relatively small and undeveloped flying fields in distant rings far outside the city.

At each of these fields (some of them not even cemented, so as to make them less easily spotted by enemy aircraft) are based a number of swift pursuit airplanes, whose special virtue is that they can gain altitude quickly and thus be several thousand feet in the air, for defense of the main airport, very soon after the first warning of enemy approach.

This principle, greatly extended, explains the need of the nation's outlying air bases as well. Ours are almost unbelievably few. The question is on what spots can we place them, and how soon.

Co-Eds' Club To Shoot Stray Parachute Troops SAN JOSE, Cal., May 30.—(AP) San Jose State College co-eds have organized an "archshoot club" to deal with any stray parachute troops.

They will use bows and arrows. Peggy Kidd, Frances Grunwald and Helen Settergren explained: "When they come we'll puncture the parachutes, then watch them fall and break their necks."

Same School Graduates 13th Child in Family MENASHA, Wis., May 30.—(AP) Graduation at Menasha High school was an old but pleasant story this year to Dr. and Mrs. F. M. Corry.

When their daughter, Patricia, received her diploma, she became the 13th child in the family to graduate from the school.

Eight sisters and four brothers preceded Patricia as graduates.

COLLEGE OFFICERS— John Roberts was named vice president of the Atlanta Junior College. Miss Anne Walker and Miss Lena Wagon will serve as secretary and treasurer.

HEADS STUDENTS—Harvey Livingston yesterday won the student election at the Atlanta Junior College for president of the student body for the coming year.

15 To Receive Diplomas From Tucker School

Exercises Will Be Held at 8 O'Clock Monday Night.

Tucker High school will award diplomas to 15 graduates in commencement exercises at 8 o'clock Monday night in the auditorium, Principal W. C. Mundy said yesterday.

The baccalaureate sermon will be delivered at 11 o'clock Sunday morning in the auditorium by the Rev. C. C. Singleton, pastor of the Tucker Baptist church.

At commencement Grace Britt will deliver the valedictory and Bobby Eaves will give the salutatory. C. M. Carroll, chairman of the Tucker board of education, will present the diplomas.

Graduates are: Edna Grace Britt, Charles M. Cain, Robert F. Eaves Jr., Fred Graves, Donald U. Heeter, John W. Knight, Charles P. McDaniel Jr., Lillie M. McDonald, Ray New, Ernest Orr, W. A. Scrull Jr., James T. Upshaw, Roy N. Vickery, Sarah W. Waddell and Vivian Elizabeth Waters.

American Income, Wages Up Billion

WASHINGTON, May 30.—(AP)—American wages and other income were $1,147,000,000 higher in the first four months of 1940 than in the same period of 1939, the Commerce Department estimated today.

A department statement noted, however, that the rate of increase over last year had been declining since the first of the year. In January and February, for instance, income was about 6 per cent higher than in the same 1939 months, while March and April income was about 4 per cent higher than the corresponding months last year.

Four Injured in Crashes In 'No Accident Week'

GARDEN CITY, Kas., May 30.—(AP)—"No accident week" got off to a poor start in Finney county.

Four persons were injured in two auto accidents. One was given only a "fair chance" to live.

Firemen With Hose Nab Fugitive Monkey

DENVER, May 30.—(AP)—Pappy, a fugitive monkey, clung to a telephone wire with his tail and scolded loudly. Firemen turned a hose on him. Pappy spun round and round.

Finally the dizzied monkey let go and dropped into the arms of a policeman, who restored him to his owner, Dr. C. L. Sloss.

Neurasthenia Was Popular In the Gay Nineties

By Dr. William Brady.

The popularity of neurasthenia was tremendous back in the gay nineties, although only those who had gaslight, hardwood rugs and a refrigerator could afford it. The common people still had nervous prostration.

We don't hear so much about neurasthenia today. Instead the hokum artists in and on the fringes of the medical profession give us modern playthings to keep our minds off from the fact that they don't understand what ails us—such as inferiority complex, obsession, neurosis, high tension, fatigue toxins and the like. But no matter how thin they slice it, it is the same old baloney.

No one since the novelist Weir Mitchell created "neurasthenia" and popularized the rest cure has ever understood what neurasthenia is, except Mitchell himself, and he never told. Oh, perhaps he explained it well enough for those days, in his monograph (109 pages) "Fat and Blood: and How to Make Them."

Today in medical literature one seldom comes across the word "neurasthenia" or the concept implied by the word—that is, nerve weakness, lack of "nervous energy" or exhaustion of "nervous energy." Unless a doctor himself is ignorant of physiology or believes his audience is, he does not venture to dispense that line of malarkey. The Omiscient Poch-Bah of the American Medical Association, of course, is an exception; when he warns the dumb rank and file that a patient "might be on the verge of neurasthenia" they dare not laugh even if they doubt it.

Since there is but one kind of energy, strength or power in the body, recognized or measurable, namely, physical or muscular energy, work, heat, measured in calories, it is purely fanciful to imagine nervous exhaustion can occur independent of physical exhaustion or exhaustion from hard manual work, exercise, effort.

Quite different, and consistent with our knowledge of physiology, is the concept of irritability, hypersensitivity or excessive tone or tension in the nerve-muscle mechanism of the body, which occurs characteristically in the state known as tetany, in rickets in childhood and in a less marked degree in the years of adolescence, due to deficiency in calcium intake or in calcium utilization.

In justice to Dr. Mitchell and others who adopted his concept and treatment of "neurasthenia," it is fair to mention that patients were required to take a milk and egg diet—milk and egg yolk are the richest natural food sources of both calcium and phosphorus, and incidentally the richest food sources of sunshine vitamin D. This is essential for the assimilation and utilization of calcium and phosphorus.

Feminine Appeal

By Lillian Mae.

There's foot-the-eye slenderness and delightful feminine appeal in this Lillian Mae frock. The expert styling of Pattern 4473 actually seems to subtract inches from your figure. A center bodice panel curves smoothly down into a wide, pointed waistband, darted for trim lines. In contrast, the sides of the bodice are made very soft, gathered onto the panel, and at the shoulders. Have the sleeves long, in short flares or short and puffed. For a radiantly youthful touch, you might add pointed revers at either side of the neck, making them of, say, white organdie or eyelet, with lace edging for dainty femininity!

Pattern 4473 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 5/8 yards 39-inch fabric and 3-8 yard contrast.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Polka dots in the sun! Polka-dotted pique ties on the cartwheel of rough straw, makes the cotton beach dress. The dotted theme continues in a pocket polishing-up kit of water-proofed pique. Besides providing your favorite polish, it's lined with rubberized faille to make the most practical of tiny beach kits.

Polishing-Up Outfit Becomes A Miniature Beach Kit

By Lillian Mae.

Designed in a size to fit your handbag, there's a very new nail polish kit which contains your own selection of polish shades in any one of seven of the season's newest and longest-wearing enamels, a lubricant type polish remover, a roll of cotton, emery board and orange sticks.

If you slip out the roll of cotton, there's a band to hold your lipstick. And a chart telling you just what shade of lipstick to select to harmonize with the selected polish color, is included. Finished with a new hair-line zipper and lined with rubberized faille, this little pique bag is the last word in practicality.

Then, a quick turn, and the pouch becomes a miniature beach kit, ready to have packed in it all your odds and ends for the beach, so that they will be safe from sand and surf. You see, the pique is water-proofed.

But of course it wouldn't do to have just any old color. So the little bag is fashioned after the season's two best themes—polka dots and stripes—so that yours may match your newest beach accessories, bathing suit or play suit, as well as your sports ensemble.

Don't you think this is something new that would please the sweet girl graduate, and surprise her, too?

And while on the subject of the kit let me suggest that you always remove your old polish before applying new. A patch-polish job doesn't last, and it looks terrible, as well. With this little bag of nail necessities, you have right in your handbag at all times, everything you need for removing from one nail or all, the old enamel and starting over with an entirely new and shining finish. Of course accidents happen to nails just as they do to stockings, but you have the jump when you carry this little kit in your bag.

Phone me and I'll tell you the name of the new nail-beach kit, and where you may purchase it. It is also one of my Fifth Avenue finds. Write me if you do not live in Atlanta, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

This Summer Fashion Picks Big Pockets

By Lillian Mae.

There are no two ways about it—if you want to be right in style, pockets are the thing. And the bigger they are, the better. So when you start to make your summer wardrobe, be sure to plan on pockets whether you're making a suit, a jacket, a dress or a skirt.

Even if you are a beginner sewer, you'll have no trouble turning out a professional-looking job, when you tackle these decorative 1940 style pockets. Nowadays, all the smart decorative finishes are as easy as sewing a straight seam if you use modern sewing machine attachments.

The "Saddle Bag" pocket is leading the fashion parade this spring. About 8 inches wide by 10 inches deep, it is stitched on across the top, otherwise hanging loose and flat, and two little weights anchor it at the bottom. If you use two pockets on a jacket, place them on either side of the front opening just above the hem of the jacket and over the hips. Then attach them by a double row of stitching across the top.

Close runner-up in fashion importance is the curved-down-to-one-side, built-in hip pocket. It is rectangular in shape, about 8 inches wide and 10 inches deep. The top is scooped out and curved downward on the side nearest the hip-line. This pocket is at its best on a fitted sports coat or dress. Placed over the hips, it is applied with edges turned under. It is then stitched on to the dress or coat, 1-8 inch from the edge.

For your soft afternoon dresses, you might make the miser-bag, a three-top type of pockets. Gathered-top type of pockets. These, too, should be about 10 inches deep, 8 inches wide for the cup-shaped bottom, and spreading out to a 12-inch width before gathering the top. Start 1 inch from the top, making three rows of gathers 1-2 inch apart. Fold the 1-inch heading in half with a 1-8 inch turned-under edge, and stitch across for a smooth finish. Place each pocket 2 inches below the waistline, well over the hips, and baste on to the dress. Turn edges under 1-4 inch all around sides and bottom. Sew flat with one row of stitching 1-8 inch from the edge.

Another smart 1940 pocket innovation is the flap-type which is anchored in the hip seam of your dress or coat. They are easily made out of a 9-inch square of double fabric. Fold the square diagonally to form a double triangle. Turn under a 1-inch edge on one 9-inch side. The other 9-inch side becomes the top. Allow 12-inch opening in the hip seam from the top, making three rows of gathers 1-2 inch apart. Then use one row of stitching to close the seam. Turn in double edges 1-4 inch on the top of the pocket, and finish with invisible hand stitches.

Woman's Quiz

Q. Does coffee improve with age before it is roasted?

A. Until coffee is roasted, aging actually improves most varieties. After roasting all coffees begin to deteriorate.

Q. How do cats make the purring sound?

A. By throwing the vocal cords into vibration, measured and regulated by the respiration. This vibration is strong enough to make the whole larynx tremble so that it may be felt or seen from the outside.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution, Washington Service Bureau, 1015 13th street, Washington, D. C. For a reply, don't telephone; write as directed.

Meet Hollywood's Newest Star

Brush Hair Vigorously Every Day

By Ida Jean Kain

Next time you start brooding about the way your husband is losing his hair, be glad you're not married to your favorite screen hero—who is probably losing his much more rapidly! After an interview with Gladys George, sparkling comedienne or superb dramatic actress as the role requires, we gloomily suspect every handsome masculine thatch in pictures. More than likely, it's only a toupee.

From what we gather, the more popular the star, the less his chances are of calling his hair his own. The trouble may be the long hours under the Klieg lights which, we are reminded, don't do anybody any good. Or it may be the hectic pace. But it seems that a very high percentage of the movie idols resort to the hair-dresser's artistry and glue while picture-making. No wonder it's hard to recognize the newspaper photographs of some of the stellar heads!

Miss George and Leonard Penn, her good-looking actor husband, have been thankful so far that Mr. Penn's hair is flourishing. But they have given the matter considerable thought. The day may come . . . and the way to ward it off, they believe, is by brushing, brushing, brushing. Their conclusion coincides perfectly with that of our own favorite dermatologist who says that a man—or woman—can't do better than to brush vigorously for several minutes a day. His stock case is that of a young nurse who cut her hair very short and abandoned her hairbrush. First thing she knew, her hair was falling out by the handful. She went back to brushing, and her hair gradually thickened again.

That's all there is on the subject of hair this time!

As a matter of fact, this talk with Miss George was supposed to revolve about her weight control. She is only five feet, three inches, and her weight never goes beyond 115 pounds. Because her mother, who had been beautiful, allowed herself to become stout in later years, Miss George has always been weight-conscious. At first, in "teen-age efforts to keep slim, she went to the gymnasium and did a lot of calisthenics."

"I did everything the wrong way," she says. "But some years ago, when she was a struggling actress and had to live on 35 cents a day, she discovered that by eating the right foods you do not need or want nearly as much."

She likes foods that are broiled, baked or roasted and never touches fried foods. She prefers salad without dressing—her idea of a delicious salad is crisp head lettuce with celery salt and lemon. She doesn't eat sweets. Weight is no problem to anyone with those food habits!

For exercise, she dances. She loves to dance and would ask nothing better than to dance for hours each night after the show! That is marvelous exercise for the figure, and her measurements are: Bust, 34 inches; waist, 24 1/2 inches; hips, 35 inches.

Her figure today is the envy of many an actress on stage and screen. And, when you see her in one of those mother parts, credit her good acting. She doesn't look a day over 24!

MY DAY: Young People Learn Concentration

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK CITY.—In various places I have moved about recently, I have been confronted with red poppies. I hurriedly look in my bag to see if I still have the last one to show, but finding it gone each time, I fish out more money and buy a new one. Veterans of the last World War are still in the hospitals and it is fitting that we should make their lot pleasanter by remembering them in this Memorial Day and by paying our share to the veterans' fund.

I want to congratulate the Amalgamated Clothing Workers on their silver jubilee which they have just celebrated. This union has pioneered in many fields. Of course, their primary purpose has been to obtain the best possible wages and working conditions for the workers in the clothing and related industries, but they have undertaken labor banking, cooperative housing, unemployment insurance, life insurance, and a real program of cultural activities.

I visited two crowded rooms used by the Youth Service at 400 East 71st street yesterday morning. There were so many activities going on that I decided whatever else was being done, the young people were learning concentration, which is valuable in any kind of work. A real job is being done by these young people. They surveyed their district, which runs from 59th to 96th street, and Lexington avenue to the East River. They know there are 31,000 young people between the ages of 16 and 25 living there and that 16,000 of them are out of school and unemployed. They know that they have succeeded in getting some 20 jobs in the course of the last few days. That isn't enough, however. They have discovered that most of these young people were educated in high school to go on to college, and the majority of them are now trying to go to work and need training in some skill.

They also told me that three out of four of them have never taken the trouble to vote when they reached the voting age. I think they are discovering valuable facts. If they find a way to get these facts over to the community, they will have done a real service not only to their own community, but to many others. In addition to that, I think that the fact that they are all working together is giving them a sense of security which is essential if you are going to persist in looking for a rather elusive job.

After my broadcast, we lunched in a near-by restaurant with my cousin, Mr. Monroe Robinson, and then motored to Trenton, N. J. There I visited the state home for girls, which is one of the most encouraging institutions I have seen in a long time. These girls are treated like human beings. Their time is filled with educational and recreational activities and most of them looked happy. We dined with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowman, and after my lecture motored back to New York city. Today I am going to Olean, N. Y., for a lecture tonight.

Correspondent Contributes Advice to Married Women

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD:

So much is said to women on how to hold husbands that I would like to contribute a few words to middle-aged married women. In the first place, we, men and women, are human beings, subject to the same physiological laws. Since it is recognized that pride dies after the rest of the body, its preservation is essential to our well being. Yes, more essential than love to women and their children's future.

By all means women should visit the beauty parlors as often as they can afford, not primarily to hold their husbands but to bolster their self-assurance. Naturally the older woman can't be glamorous as her younger sister. Why try? But we can look our best, for our own sakes.

Be good to the husband and kind; not to hold him, but because he needs somebody to be good to him. At the same time expect him to be good to you for the same reason. Don't try to possess the husband, checking up on his comings and goings. Women should preserve their own freedom and individuality and allow the men the same privileges.

If all these years you middle-aged wives have avowedly been thinking only of love (I can't believe it), let's hope you also have been thinking of financial security in case the husband should step out. Let us hope you have taken precautions to this effect. "What, after youth is gone?" is the most important question a wife has to answer and this question should be considered carefully during the early years of married life.

Then if worst comes to worst, sit tight, respect yourself, expect your husband to respect you. There is no substitute for mutual respect, not even love. Human nature is weak and when a woman prostrates herself at a man's feet, she naturally and logically steps on her.

In the end, if he does walk out on you, you will have the satisfaction of knowing you have contributed nothing to his going, that you have lost nothing but something which was perishable to begin with. Also the satisfaction of knowing there are other men.

After all, husbands are indispensable for only two things: to give us children and to give us and them economic security.

H. M. D.

Unless you are a comedienne, don't show the soles of your shoes to your audience. Keep the nicely shod feet down on the floor.

Another Girl Is Slated For Success

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, May 30.—"I'd rather see you than a movie actress," my father said. He thought Hollywood was the devil's playground. The voice sounds like Katherine Hepburn's. The face is the image of Katie 10 years ago—only prettier. Let me introduce you to Hollywood's newest leading lady, 19-year-old Gene Tierney, co-starring with Henry Fonda in "The Return of Frank James."

This is Miss Tierney's first day before a film camera, but her confidence is something to behold! She goes into her scene with Fonda with the assurance of a Shearer, the belief of a Bette Davis and the conviction of a Crawford. "Aren't you nervous at all?" I ask the brunette beauty. "I'm excited, but not nervous," she assures me.

To return to the way and how of Gene's Hollywood career despite the opposition of her male parent, Miss Tierney does not have to work for her bread, but for jam. Her father is a wealthy New York insurance broker. Gene attended the fashionable Miss Porter's school in Farmington, Conn. "The only thing I learned was to pour tea!" says its prettiest graduate.

Came her debut into New York society. Came boredom. Came the desire to be a film actress. Papa said, "No," and to make her prodigious in the sight of Gene's brown eyes, made the remark found at the head of this column. Which, of course, made the young lady more determined than ever to be a Hollywood career. Gene had come down to less—Katherine Hepburn's (her idol) instructor. She got a part—three parts on the New York stage—one of them in "Ring Two," a failure like the other two, earned her a six months' contract with Columbia Pictures. That was last year.

Papa relented. Gene came to Hollywood, received $300 a week for four months, did no work, found Hollywood "a rather mild place," and was bored. She skipped the other two months' contract, and went back to Broadway for the ingenue lead in "The Male Animal." From there back to Hollywood and a seven-year contract with Darryl Zanuck was the usual short step. I am not given to over-much prophesying, but I'll go the whole hog now—Gene Tierney will be a big-shot screen star soon.

Loretta Young is wearing the most revealing negligee of the season in "He Stayed for Breakfast," a farce of the French school. I have a hunch the Hays office will have something to say about this. But in spite of Loretta's get-up, a general air of gloom permeates the set. War jitters are making it hard to infuse the proper gaiety into this comedy.

"I can't eat; I can't sleep," Director Al Hall tells me. "It's so hard to keep them up to scratch when they rush to their radios between every take." . . . Alan Marshall, Australian-born, glooms, "I suppose the Japs will try to invade Australia."

Melvin Douglas is the first actor ever to be elected as delegate to a presidential convention. He is supposed to attend the Democratic national convention in Chicago, July 15. But it looks like "He Stayed for Breakfast" will come between Melvin and the convention. The shooting schedule of the picture is up to the week of July 15. And delay—and there always is a delay—will mean he will have to vote for Roosevelt by proxy. "And that won't be the same thing," says the sad Mr. Douglas.

Squirrel in Court

A squirrel appeared in court in St. Helier, Jersey, when Bernard Hartopp, owner of a pet shop, was tried for introducing it into the island contrary to the law on importation of livestock. He said that without his knowledge the Canadian gray squirrel had been sent to him by Mrs. Smith, of Brighton, England. He was acquitted.

Sally Saver Will Prepare Fruit Luncheon

Meat Cookery Talk Also Scheduled at Rabun County School.

Seasonal fruits will be used by Sally Saver, foods editor of The Constitution, to prepare a beautiful and appetizing summer luncheon plate at the cooking class at 2 o'clock this afternoon for Rabun county women in the Rabun county high school auditorium, Clayton, Ga.

Miss Saver will fix the colorful party dish on a platter lined with endive and the dates stuffed with nut meats and small balls of cottage cheese will surround pineapple cubes, cantelope balls, pink grapefruit segments, whole fresh strawberries and whole fresh cherries.

A lecture-demonstration on meat cookery will also be part of the program. Miss Saver will discuss methods of pot roasting and basting with dry heat.

Mrs. J. B. Parker, Box 293, Clayton, Ga., is chairman of the arrangement committee for the Friday Sunday school class of the Clayton Baptist church, joint sponsors of the school with The Constitution.

BOWL O' GREENS

1/2 Spanish onion
1 cucumber, scored
1 green pepper
1 bunch radishes
1/2 bunch chervil
2 stalks endive
1 small head lettuce
1 small head escarole
Best Foods Real Mayonnaise

Peel and chill tomatoes. Slice tomatoes, onion, cucumber, green pepper and radishes. Arrange on salad greens and radishes. Arrange in the center for Real Mayonnaise. Serves 6.

Why has this never been done before! I've always wanted a sure way to keep bread fresh to the last slice... I've hated to throw away the slices that dried out when bread was wrapped in the single wrapper. I've wanted to serve the family fresh bread for every meal... and NOW I CAN! Twin-Pack is two individually wrapped half-loaves inside the regular Southern Bread butter wrapper. I open one half and serve... save the other till another meal. The airtight wrapper preserves the oven-freshness. The entire family agrees that Twin-Pack is a wonderful improvement! Why don't you try it?

Fulton High's Exercises Held At Auditorium

Superintendent Wells Awards Scholarships and Prizes.

The twenty-fourth annual graduation exercises of Fulton High school were held last night at the municipal auditorium, with J. E. White, principal of the school, presiding. The invocation was pronounced by Dr. N. C. McPherson, pastor of the Peachtree Road Methodist church.

The following members of the senior class spoke: Barbara Perrin, second honor graduate, on "America's Quest for Freedom"; Horace Riley, class orator, on "The Meaning of American Freedom," and Vivian Bullard, first honor graduate, on "The Higher Freedom."

Two choruses were sung by the members of the senior class under the direction of Ben H. Hutchinson, of the Fulton High school faculty. Arthur Wrigley, of the Fulton County Board of Education, presented the diplomas.

Jere A. Wells, superintendent of Fulton county school, awarded the following prizes and scholarships: Scholarship medal to the first honor graduate, Vivian Bullard; Journal Cup to the best all-round student in the senior class, Virginia Scott; Wells medal to the best all-round boy in the senior class, Woodfin Baker; athletic medal for the best all-round athlete in the senior class, Gordon Gantt.

Scholarships were awarded to the following seniors: Vivian Bullard, first honor graduate, scholarship to the University of Georgia; Barbara Perrin, second honor graduate, scholarship to Agnes Scott College; Virginia Scott, scholarship to Shorter College; Ruth Hodges, scholarship to Brenau College; Edythe Wood, scholarship to Oglethorpe University; Melba Hendrix, scholarship to LaGrange College; Agnes Endley, scholarship to Wesleyan College; Frank Starr, scholarship to Washington and Lee University; Charles Fulton, scholarship to Oglethorpe University; Woodfin Baker, scholarship to Mercer University.

CHILDREN'S TRAIN TRIP. Fifty-two fifth graders of the Mary Lin school will experience a new thrill today. They will make a train trip to East Point and back aboard a new air-conditioned Central of Georgia pullman. The children are students of Miss Mary Williamson and Miss Helen Enloe.

YOUTH FOUND BADLY HURT AT FOOT OF WALL IN ALLEY. An unidentified white youth, about 23 years old, was found seriously injured about 10 o'clock last night in an alley off Piedmont avenue, behind the Georgia Power Company steam plant at the bottom of a 15-foot brick wall. Nearby was a brick covered with blood. Police were investigating to determine if the youth fell from the wall or was struck on the head with the brick. The youth was found by R. H. Warren, an employee of the Georgia Railroad, who saw him while walking along Piedmont avenue.

Gas Executives Attend Barbecue

Gas executives from the entire United States will conclude the main part of their three-day convention here today at the Biltmore hotel, with addresses by E. J. Shermire, of Detroit; George S. Jones Jr., of Evansville, Ind.; and C. D. Littlefield, of Miami, Fla. Littlefield will discuss air-conditioning with gas in Miami.

Tomorrow's session will be devoted to reports of committees. Yesterday, delegates and their wives attended an old-fashioned southern barbecue dinner at North Fulton park. V. H. Ligon, of Atlanta, discussed water sterilization through the use of high temperatures at yesterday's business session.

University High Will Graduate Class Today

'Organized Religion in Changing World' Is Theme of Talks.

Graduation exercises at the Atlanta University Laboratory High school will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in Howe Memorial hall, on the campus of Spelman College. Twenty-nine boys and girls will receive diplomas.

The commencement theme selected for this year was "Organized Religion in a Changing World," and five members of the graduating class will discuss different phases of this subject. The speakers will be Gwendolyn Cooper, who has chosen "The Attitude of the Catholic Church on Certain Social Problems"; Virginia Tillman, who will discuss "The Attitude of the Protestant Church on Certain Social Problems"; Charles Lewis Shorter, who will speak on "Attitude of the Church Toward Capitalism and Labor"; Griffith Davis, who will discuss "The Negro Church and the Changing Social Order"; and Mariella Ama, who will complete the series with "Youth and Religion."

The sponsor for this year's graduating class is Lillian Webster Jones, director of music in the laboratory school. The students' papers were written as a part of their work in social problems under the direction of Butler A. Jones, teacher of social science.

Hope Harrold Makes Brilliant Musical Debut

Concert Is Presented Before Large Group of Atlantans.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG. Making her musical debut in Atlanta, Hope Harrold scored a triumph last night with a large audience of social and musical Atlantans who had been invited by her husband, Frank Harrold, to hear her lovely concert at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mrs. Harrold possesses a lyric soprano voice of exquisite beauty. Every song that she sang revealed her expert musicianship and her artistic taste. The manner in which she handles her voice, and the interpretations she gave each number showed an innate feeling for beauty and a schooled and sensitive musical background.

Varied Program. The choice of numbers for the concert in itself proved the genuine artistry of the performer, for the program was varied and finely contrasted, and the selections were unusually beautiful.

And, adding to the beauty of her voice, was the charm of her stage presence. Gracious and genial, she endeared herself to her audience personally as well as vocally, and the audience was most enthusiastic in their reception of her artistic gifts.

Sings Classics. One of the highlights of the program was the famous "La Bataille de Musette," from Puccini's "La Boheme," to which Mrs. Harrold gave a thrilling interpretation. Her first group, all early classics, was a fine prelude to the highly enjoyable lieder group, which consisted of Schumann's "Spring Night" and "Ah, Saver," and "Anny Flower," and Schubert's "Whisper" and "Impatience."

A fascinating French group preceded the operatic aria, and the closing group was English songs, for which she received such an ovation that she had to give three encores before the applause subsided.

The encores were the ever-loved "Annie Laurie," "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Loch Lomond."

Harp Solos Given. Assisting Mrs. Harrold in the program was Margie Griffith, who played a group of harp solos after the German lieder. Mrs. Griffith, who is a favorite artist with Atlantans, delighted the audience with her skill and ethereal tones in a group by Heilmann, Grandjany, Debussy-Salzedo, and Zabel.

Mrs. Charles Chalmers, another of Atlanta's prized artists, furnished Mrs. Harrold's piano accompaniments with a style of artistry that added much to the joy of the evening.

C. C. Merritt, 46, Dies Unexpectedly Charlie Clifton Merritt, 46, route supervisor for the Atlanta Royal Crown Bottling Company, died unexpectedly yesterday at his residence, 687 Lillian avenue, S.W. A native of Fort Gaines, Ga., he had lived in Atlanta for the past 20 years. He was a member of the Colonial Hills Baptist church.

Surviving are his wife; his father, Robert L. Merritt; three sisters, Mrs. Jimmie McCarthy, Mrs. M. N. McFarland and Mrs. M. E. Stillwell, both of Phenix City, Ala., and a brother, Marvin L. Merritt, of Los Angeles. Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

Watson Apparent Winner in Florida By The Associated Press. J. Tom Watson, Tampa lawyer, apparently won the Democratic nomination for attorney general in Tuesday's runoff primary, but his race with Ed R. Bentley, of Lakeland, was so close that an official canvass of all votes, including absentee ballots which were not counted in unofficial reports, may be necessary to determine the outcome of the contest.

Unofficial returns gave Watson 191,622 and Bentley 183,662 in all but six scattered rural precincts. United States Senator Charles O. Andrews was renominated Tuesday. Official reports gave him 304,335 votes to 134,123 for Jerry W. Carter.

Belgians Legally 'Disown' Leopold PARIS, May 30.—(AP)—The Belgian government in exile tonight approved an order legally depriving King Leopold of his throne "in the name of the Belgian people."

Considering the country under the power of the invader," said the government order, "the ministers in council certify that it is impossible for the King to rule."

After the King's capitulation to the Germans Premier Pierlot announced that such action against him would be taken.

Rush Entries In Father's Day Contest Now

Array of Prizes To Be Awarded; Deadline Is June 5.

Eleven days ago The Constitution announced its big Father's Day contest. Since then letters from all parts of the south have poured in, each from a son or daughter who wanted to describe the qualities which make "the best Dad in the world."

At the same time these same sons and daughters are competing for cash awards given to the authors of the best letters and for valuable merchandise gifts which will be presented the fathers of those authors.

Perhaps you have mailed your entry. Then all you have to do is wait patiently until June 9, when the winners will be announced and the prizes awarded. If your letter is a winner, it will be published during that week.

But if you have not written your letter, you are letting precious time slip by, because the deadline is June 5. The contest editor knows that each one of you thinks his or her father is the best father a son or daughter could have. And he wants to know your reasons.

So take a few minutes and pay a tribute to Dad, show him your appreciation for all the good things he has done for you, and write a letter about him. Be certain the letter is 200 words or less in length.

If it is a winner, and many will be winners, your time will be well spent. At once if it doesn't win a prize, you have shown Dad how much he means to you by trying to win for him one of the many valuable Father's Day gifts donated by Atlanta merchants.

Your letter will be judged against other letters sent in by sons and daughters in your age group. One group consists of boys and girls 12 years of age and under; another is for those between 13 and 18; a third, 19 to 25, and the last is over 25 years.

First cash prizes in each group are checks for $25, while the second prizes are 10-dollar bills and the third prize five-dollar bills.

And the fathers of each winner will be given a valuable merchandise prize as a token of appreciation for inspiring his son or daughter to write such a fine letter. So mail in your entry now and make Dad feel even more proud of you.

3,500-Pound Elephant Settles Down on Farm CAMDEN, S. C., May 30.—(AP)—Her days of tramping over, Alice, a 3,500-pound performing circus elephant, arrived here today to settle down to the life of a farm laborer on Chancelier plantation.

"Alice will do duty in the cotton fields of the plantation," said Matt Ferguson, manager. "She will take the place of a tractor in hauling the equipment required for the cultivation and care of the fields."

"Who's going to ride on her head while she works?" he was asked.

"That's a question," he replied with a grin, "but I imagine it will be yours truly."

JAPANESE KILL EDUCATOR. CHUNGKING, May 30.—(AP)—The well-known writer and educator, Sun Han-pin, dean of Fuhnan University and a graduate of Washington and Harvard universities, was among those killed when bombs destroyed the campus during a Japanese air raid on Chungking Tuesday.

Memorial Day Music

Was Too Appropriate
PITTSBURGH, May 30.—(AP)—James Lanagan, director of the student band of North LaFayette Township High school, provided his boys with a full list of appropriate numbers they may play at Memorial Day services today.

Last year while the band was at ease in a cemetery, someone requested the boys to play something. They obliged with "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here!"

Lunch 'Stolen' by Car,

Rescued 50 Miles Away
NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 30.—(AP)—Peter Malm, of Malden, who lost his lunch bag when the handle got caught in the door handle of a passing automobile, has it back now.

He caught the license number of the car which spirited away his empty lunch basket and a police checkup found it hanging on the doorknob of William E. Parker's machine in New Bedford, 50 miles away.

Popularity of Wendell Willkie Rocketing Among Republicans

Dewey Shows Small Decline in Last Two Weeks of May, But Still Continues Far in Lead as G. O. P. Presidential Choice.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

PRINCETON, N. J., May 30.—A sharp rise in the popularity of Wendell Willkie as a presidential candidate and a small decline in the popularity of Thomas E. Dewey have taken place in the last two weeks of May. A survey conducted among Republican voters by the American Institute of Public Opinion finds that Willkie's popularity has doubled since the last check-up May 17, while the Dewey percentage has declined six points. Senator Robert A. Taft has gained slightly.

Despite these changes, Dewey continues far in the lead as the presidential choice of the Republican rank and file. When a cross-section of G. O. P. voters throughout the country were asked "Whom would you like to see elected president?" the spontaneous choices of those expressing an opinion were:

The Gallup Poll

	TODAY		MAY 17
Dewey	56%	Dewey	62%
Taft	16	Taft	14
Vandenberg	12	Vandenberg	13
Willkie	10	Willkie	5
Hoover	2	Hoover	2
Gannett	1	Gannett	1
James	1	Bridges	1
Others	2	Others	2

There is a sufficiently high undecided vote, however, to indicate that the race is by no means closed.

Party Leaders Confident FDR Will Run Again

War Forces Change in Attitude of Republicans on Dewey.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 30.—Implications of the European war situation, turning on the need for building up our own defenses, have been so great in the past two weeks that the public has all but lost sight of the approaching presidential campaign, yet two developments of major political consequence appear to be definitely in the process of crystallization.

1. The opposition within the Democratic party to a third-term nomination for President Roosevelt has been dissipated so far that it is now accepted as a foregone conclusion by party leaders that he will consent to run again.

Change in Plans

2. The Republicans have been forced to make a reappraisal of their presidential candidates and plans for the campaign. Prior to the recent dramatic turn in European war events the star of young Tom Dewey, racket-busting New York district attorney, appeared to be in the political ascendency by virtue of the striking victories he had won in state preferential primaries over other Republican candidates for the nomination. Now there is a tendency on the part of the more sober minds of the Republican party to eliminate him on account of his immature years. Privately many G. O. P. congressional leaders who formerly looked with favor on the Dewey candidacy now admit that it would be a fatal mistake to place him at the head of the party ticket.

War Changes Status

By the same token, the war's repercussions have forced a more serious consideration of the candidacies of Senator Taft, of Ohio; Wendell Willkie, utility magnate, and Senator Vandenberg, who had all been read out of the running because of the poor showing he made against Dewey in the early Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries.

District Attorney Dewey, most observers believe, still will command a place on the ticket in recognition of his proved vote-getting ability, but not many political experts now give him anything approaching the advantage he seemed to start out with at the beginning of the pre-convention campaign a couple of months ago.

Third Term Gains

But the transition as regards President Roosevelt is the most striking development in the entire equation. Anti-third-term talk has practically been extinguished within the Democratic party and is being kept alive at all only by a repetition of utterances voiced from the beginning by Republicans.

Already the president has received more than a majority of the delegates to the forthcoming Chicago convention pledged to his renomination, so that his ability to command the nomination on the first ballot is a reality. And while he as yet is to give some official word of his intentions political Washington assumes, for the most part, that he has made up his mind to run.

In fact, bets are being made here up to as high as three-to-one that he will head the ticket as a third-term candidate. There are few takers on the short side.

SAYS

Nancy Calhoun Is Member Of Important Bridal Party

... NANCY CALHOUN has been invited to act as bridesmaid when Mary Foster Pitney marries Rowland Gibson Hazard on the 15th of June in Morristown, N. J. Mary Foster is the pretty blonde girl who visited Nancy several weeks ago and made quite a favorable impression. This duo of attractive girls were classmates at the Spence School in New York city and are the very best of friends. Mary Foster belongs to the Junior League and made her debut in 1938. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Mahlon Pitney, of Washington, D. C., and the late Mr. Justice Pitney of the United States supreme court. She is the great-granddaughter of the late Vice Chancellor Henry C. Pitney, of New Jersey. Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. James Carrington Brown, of Baltimore.

Her fiancé comes from Druids Dream, his home at Narragansett Pier, R. I., and is a member of the eleventh generation of a family which has lived in Rhode Island since 1639. Rowland graduated from St. Paul's school and Princeton University, and belongs to the Colonial Club. He is a nephew of T. Pierpont Hazard, treasurer of Rhode Island, and his mother is the former Helen Hamilton Campbell, of Chicago. His great-aunt, Miss Caroline Hazard, is president emerita of Wellesley College.

The marriage of Mary Foster and Rowland will command the interest of eastern socialites, and numerous social affairs will honor the bride-elect and the groom-to-be.

... A GROUP of popular Atlanta sub-debs leaves June 15 for St. Simons Island, where they have taken a seaside cottage for two weeks.

Swimming, bowling and sun bathing will be the favorite diversions highlighting the trip, which is eagerly anticipated by Wight Rushton, Lane Winship, Mary Ann Curry, Ann Pentecost, Mary Amering, Peggy Robinson, Betty Hayfield, Frances Ward and Fanny McCullough.

The companionable chaperons of the group will be Mrs. Howard Dobbs and Mrs. D. L. Di Christina.

... DO YOU KNOW what attractive bride-elect is wearing a beautiful diamond solitaire on her left hand, the ring being the same stone which the groom-elect had given a sister deb of the belle in question not a year ago. The present owner of the stone is one of the city's most popular belles and the formal announcement of her engagement to the handsome swain will be made at an early date.

... AMONG the most interesting gifts which Frances Austin and her fiancé, Gordon Catts Jr., have received is a handsome Chinese Chippendale sofa and a pair of fireside stools to match. The sofa is a copy of one of the antique pieces in the Metropolitan Museum in New York, and was a gift of General William Scott, U. S. A., retired, the maternal grandfather of Gordon.

The sofa and the matching stools will be artistic pieces in the furnishings of the attractive little home where the couple will reside upon their return from their wedding trip to the west. The home is located next door to the Austin home on Westminster drive, and although it affords ample room for the pair, it is almost a dollhouse in size, and will form a popular rendezvous for the many friends of the young couple.

... WHEN St. John Barnwell entertained at a bride-tee for Evelyn Burns, bride-elect, Wednesday afternoon, the honor guest was surprised when an expressman arrived with a small bale of cotton addressed to "The Bride, State of Happiness." The attached tag read: "Now that you are leaving the Land of Cotton, So old friends here won't be forgotten. Just open up this little bale, Let our gifts tell a cotton tale—of love and best wishes!"

And when the box, disguised as a cotton bale, was open, out came a variety of cotton gifts, from powder puffs to gay aprons, for the bride-to-be, who, after the wedding on June 15, will live in Chicago as Mrs. William P. Marquam.

Reception Planned At High Museum

The graduation exercises of the High Museum School of Art will be held this evening, at 8:30 o'clock in the auditorium, followed by a reception opening the annual student exhibition. Dr. William V. Gardner, of the First Presbyterian church, will deliver the invocation and address. Walter C. Hill, president of the Atlanta Art Association, will deliver the diplomas. Prize awards will be made by L. P. Skidmore, director of the school.

The following students will receive certificates: Sara Baker, Bebe Broome, Pat Denman, Laura Hester, Marjorie Mincey, Miller Richardson, Anne Skidmore, Pauline Stauverman, Marjorie Ward.

The reception will follow the exercises in gallery one of the museum. Receiving will be the following officers of the Atlanta Art Association and High Museum school and their wives: Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert D. Oliver, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Beverly M. DuBose, Mr. and Mrs. Dameron Black, Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Skidmore and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Edwards.

The refreshment table, centered with a crystal bowl of pink roses, will be presided over by Mrs. Conora Raines and Mrs. William B. Lamar. Assisting in entertaining will be Mrs. Hates Block, Mrs. Mary Nelson Ream, Miss Eleanor Pepin and the young ladies of the second year class.

Parties Planned For Miss Blosser.

Miss Elouise Blosser, whose marriage to Woodward Logan, of New Orleans, La., will be a social event of June 8 at All Saints Episcopal church chapel, continues to be feted at pre-nuptial social affairs. On June 3 Miss Blosser will be honor guest at the handkerchief shower and ice cream party at which Mrs. John Greene will be hostess at her home on Franklin road.

On Saturday Mrs. George C. Moseley will compliment her daughter at a trousseau-tea at their home, "Tall Timbers."

Assisting the hostess in entertaining will be her daughters, Mesdames W. E. Logan, Pat Gilham Jr. and Clarence Blosser. On June 4 Mrs. W. E. Logan will honor her sister, Miss Blosser, at a buffet luncheon at her home on Highland avenue. The affair was previously announced as a shower.

Miss Eva Saywell, Mr. Green Announce Plans and Parties

Attracting sincere and cordial interest is the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Eva Martha Saywell and Thomas Green, of LaGrange. The marriage of the prominent couple will be solemnized on the afternoon of June 15 at 4:30 o'clock at the Church of the Incarnation. Rev. Ernest J. Saywell, father of the bride-elect, will perform the ceremony in the presence of an assemblage of friends and relatives of the couple.

A musical program will be presented by Miss Maude Eberhardt, organist, and Miss Florence Menden, soloist. The bride-to-be will be given in marriage by her brother, Ernest J. Saywell Jr., of Fort Valley. Miss Mary Saywell will be maid of honor for her sister and Mrs. Ernest J. Saywell Jr. will be matron of honor. The bridesmaid will be Miss Peggy Greenwood.

The ushers will be Ben McCollum, a cousin of the bride-elect, Herbert Estes, and Joel Brown.

Ryals Williams, of LaGrange, will be best man for Mr. Green.

After the ceremony Rev. and Mrs. Saywell, the parents of the bride-elect, will entertain at an informal reception at their home in West End.

Prior to the marriage of Miss Saywell and Mr. Green, they will be feted at a series of social affairs, the first of which is the luncheon at which Miss Mary Saywell will compliment her sister tomorrow at the Henry Grady hotel. On Sunday Miss Eleanor Harrison will honor the bride-elect at a breakfast at the Colonial Terrace hotel.

Miss Peggy Greenwood will fete Miss Saywell at a linen shower on June 8 at her home on Flagler avenue. On June 11 Miss Saywell will be central figure at the kitchen shower at which Mrs. Arthur Hale and Miss Marion Turnipseed will be cohostesses. After the wedding rehearsal on the evening of June 14 Mrs. Cecil Greenwood and her daughter,

The College Park Junior Woman's Club meets Saturday at 1 o'clock at Davison's tearoom. Plans will be made for a dance to be given during the early summer. For reservations telephone Mrs. Douglas Lyle at Calhoun 3208, or Miss Margaret Fitzgerald at Calhoun 2950.

Miss Ruth Crandal Marries Kenneth Hayes at Church

Miss Ruth Esther Crandal became the bride of Kenneth Malcolm Hayes at a quiet ceremony taking place last evening at Druid Hills Baptist church. Rev. Louie D. Newton performed the marriage at 7 o'clock in the presence of a few close friends and relatives of the popular couple.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a model of camellia pink triple sheer with which she wore white accessories. A shoulder bouquet of lavender orchids and valley lilies adorned her shoulder.

After the ceremony Mr. Hayes and his bride left by motor for a trip to Florida. Upon their return they will reside at 1302 West Peachtree street, northwest.

The bride, who is the only daughter of Professor and Mrs. Jesse R. Crandal, of Winter Park, Fla., received her education at the DeLand (Fla.) High school and is a graduate of Piedmont Hospital School of Nursing.

Mr. Hayes is the son of W. H. Hayes, of Fort Worth, Texas, and the late Mrs. Carrie Dell Hayes, of this city. He was educated at Hognansville High school, Emory Academy at Oxford and Mercer University in Macon. He is a member of the Georgia Alpha Zeta chapter of the A. T. O. fraternity. He is now connected in business with the American Oil Company here.

Luncheon Planned For Mrs. Fleming

Among interesting social affairs planned for today will be the luncheon at which Mrs. Cam D. Dorsey will be hostess at 1 o'clock at the Piedmont Driving Club complimenting Mrs. Strother Fleming Jr.

Mrs. Fleming is a popular recent bride, and was, before her marriage, Miss Anne Turner Knight, of Chapel Hill, N. C.

Invited for the occasion will be a group of close friends of the honor guests.

The luncheon will be served on the screened porch overlooking the pool and the table will be centered with a graceful arrangement of pastel colored spring flowers.

Woman's Club Pool Opens Tomorrow

Tomorrow from 9 till 9 o'clock marks the official opening of the Atlanta's Woman's Club's pool and terraced dining patio.

The attractive wooded terrace and flagstone walkways will be a scene of carnival-like atmosphere where summer-hued umbrellas will shade the spectators witnessing the exciting water events and the fashion show with charming models.

The pool will be opened with an American Red Cross demonstration period, followed by a program of professional diving and water events. Bathing activities are under the supervision of Albert Smith, authorized Red Cross life guard. The pool passed the stipulations and regulation chart of A. R. C.

Mrs. Howard Pattillo, president of club, announces Mrs. Conway Hunter as chairman of pool activities. The musical program and entertainment for luncheon and dinner hours are being planned by Mrs. E. Raymond Johnson, music chairman, and Mrs. Lafayette Butler.

The Junior Woman's Club will be hosts during the luncheon hour, and Mrs. Pattillo will honor incoming officers of the Junior Club, and Miss Evelyn Burns, retiring president of the Juniors.

Reservations for luncheon and dinner may be made by calling the club hostess, Hemlock 4636.

For Miss Marie Rice And Cecil Marks.

Parties continue to be planned in compliment to Miss Marie Rice, whose marriage to Cecil Marks will be an event of the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Wolf will entertain at a dinner party on June 5 at their home on Ivey road honoring Miss Rice and Mr. Marks.

On June 7 Miss Dorothy Sherman and Miss Claire Bernard will be hostesses at an all fresco dinner at the former's home on Oakdale road.

On June 11 Mrs. Robert L. Cushman and Mrs. Maurice May will entertain at a luncheon in the Drum room at Herrin's, and on June 12 Miss Eleanor Fike will honor the bride-elect at a bridge party at her home on Virginia avenue.

On June 14 Mrs. Marcus Lowe, Mr. and Mrs. Marion Rosenberg, Dr. and Mrs. H. J. Rosenberg and Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Haas will honor the bridal pair at a dinner party following the wedding rehearsal.

Miss Kimbrell Is Honor Guest.

A bridge luncheon recently honored Miss Idalene Kimbrell, bride-elect, when Mrs. Victor B. Clark entertained at her home on Manor Ridge drive.

The luncheon table was centered with a mirror with a crystal bowl of blue delphinium and pink roses.

Present were Miss Kimbrell, Mesdames J. L. Hawks, Charles Pope, William Milburn, Paul Willis, Herbert Ellis, Martha Ellis Cooper, L. D. Scott, C. C. Covey, Allen Greene, J. H. Taylor Jr., Fuzzy Woodruff, Charles Sheldon and Stuart Dewey.

Miss Kimbrell was honor guest at a luncheon given recently by Miss Lucille Jenkins at her home.

The luncheon table, overlaid with a drawnwork cloth, had as a centerpiece a crystal bowl, filled with yellow California poppies, candy tuft and fern. The bride's cake was adorned with miniature bride and groom.

Guests were Mesdames Charles Jackson, Edith H. Clark, D. D. Long, Carmen Dobbs, Bernice Corcoran, Robert Cobble, Misses Idalene Kimbrell, Berta Smith, Polly McNabb, Margaret Bennett and Mary Maffett.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. A. B. Jenkins; her sister, Mrs. E. R. Bonds, and niece, Miss Mary Jean Bonds.

For Miss Meadows.

Miss Christine Meadows, whose marriage to Olin Cason will be solemnized in June, is being entertained at a number of parties. Miss Meadows was feted recently at a travel party and shower at the home of Mrs. Lamar Lovern.

Garden flowers and gay travel posters decorated the house, and a color scheme of green, yellow and white was used in the bridal favors and refreshments.

Mrs. J. M. Hewes and Mrs. Laurens Philpot entertained Miss Meadows at a bridge-luncheon. The centerpiece was an arrangement of pink sweet peas. Prizes were won by Miss Clemmie Willingham, Mrs. J. D. Haddaway and Mrs. C. B. Cason.

Dr. and Mrs. Sink Will Be Hosts

Dr. and Mrs. Guy Lloyd Sink will honor two recent bridal couples, Mr. and Mrs. Robert K. Parrish and Mr. and Mrs. John Robert Boyd, at a reception at their home, 21 Standish avenue, N. W., on Saturday evening from 8 to 11 o'clock.

Both the brides, Mrs. Boyd, who was formerly Marion Guy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Guy, and Mrs. Parrish, who was formerly Dorothy Moor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Moor, of Peachtree road, are well known in Atlanta and popular additions to the young married contingent.

The hosts will be assisted in entertaining by Mrs. John F. Moor, Mrs. Walter C. Guy, Mrs. A. William Johnson, Mrs. Fred Fleischman and members of both bridal parties.

The reception will be held on the spacious grounds which will be decorated with twinkling gayly-colored Japanese lanterns and flowers in profusion.

Little Miss Ann Sink, youthful daughter of the hosts, will keep the guests' book. Miss Beverly Benson, of Athens, and Misses Mary Alice Roane, Miriam Moor

Miss Hill Honored.

Mrs. William F. Woods entertained at a miscellaneous shower at her home on Glenwood avenue, honoring Miss Marion Hill, whose marriage to Earl C. Pace takes place on Saturday.

The dining room table was covered with a lace cloth and a crystal bowl filled with sweet peas graced the center. The gifts were presented to the honor guest in a pink and white miniature boat.

and Dorothy Guy will preside over the punch bowls. Two hundred invitations have been issued.

Orme-Kredel Rites Planned June 22

The Wightman chapel in Nashville, Tenn., will form the setting on the morning of June 22 for the marriage of Miss Constance Orme and Dr. Frederick Kredel. Rev. H. E. Berger will perform the ceremony at 11 o'clock in the presence of a small group of friends and relatives of the couple.

The lovely blond bride-elect will be given in marriage by her brother, Wetherton Orme, of New York city. Her matron of honor and only attendant will be Mrs.

Pierce-Boyd.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Pierce announce the engagement of their daughter, Flonnie Virginia, to Henry Grady Boyd, of Forrest Park, Ga., the wedding to take place June 1.

William Breazeale, of Nashville, Tenn. Dr. Richard Kredel, of New York city, will be best man for his brother.

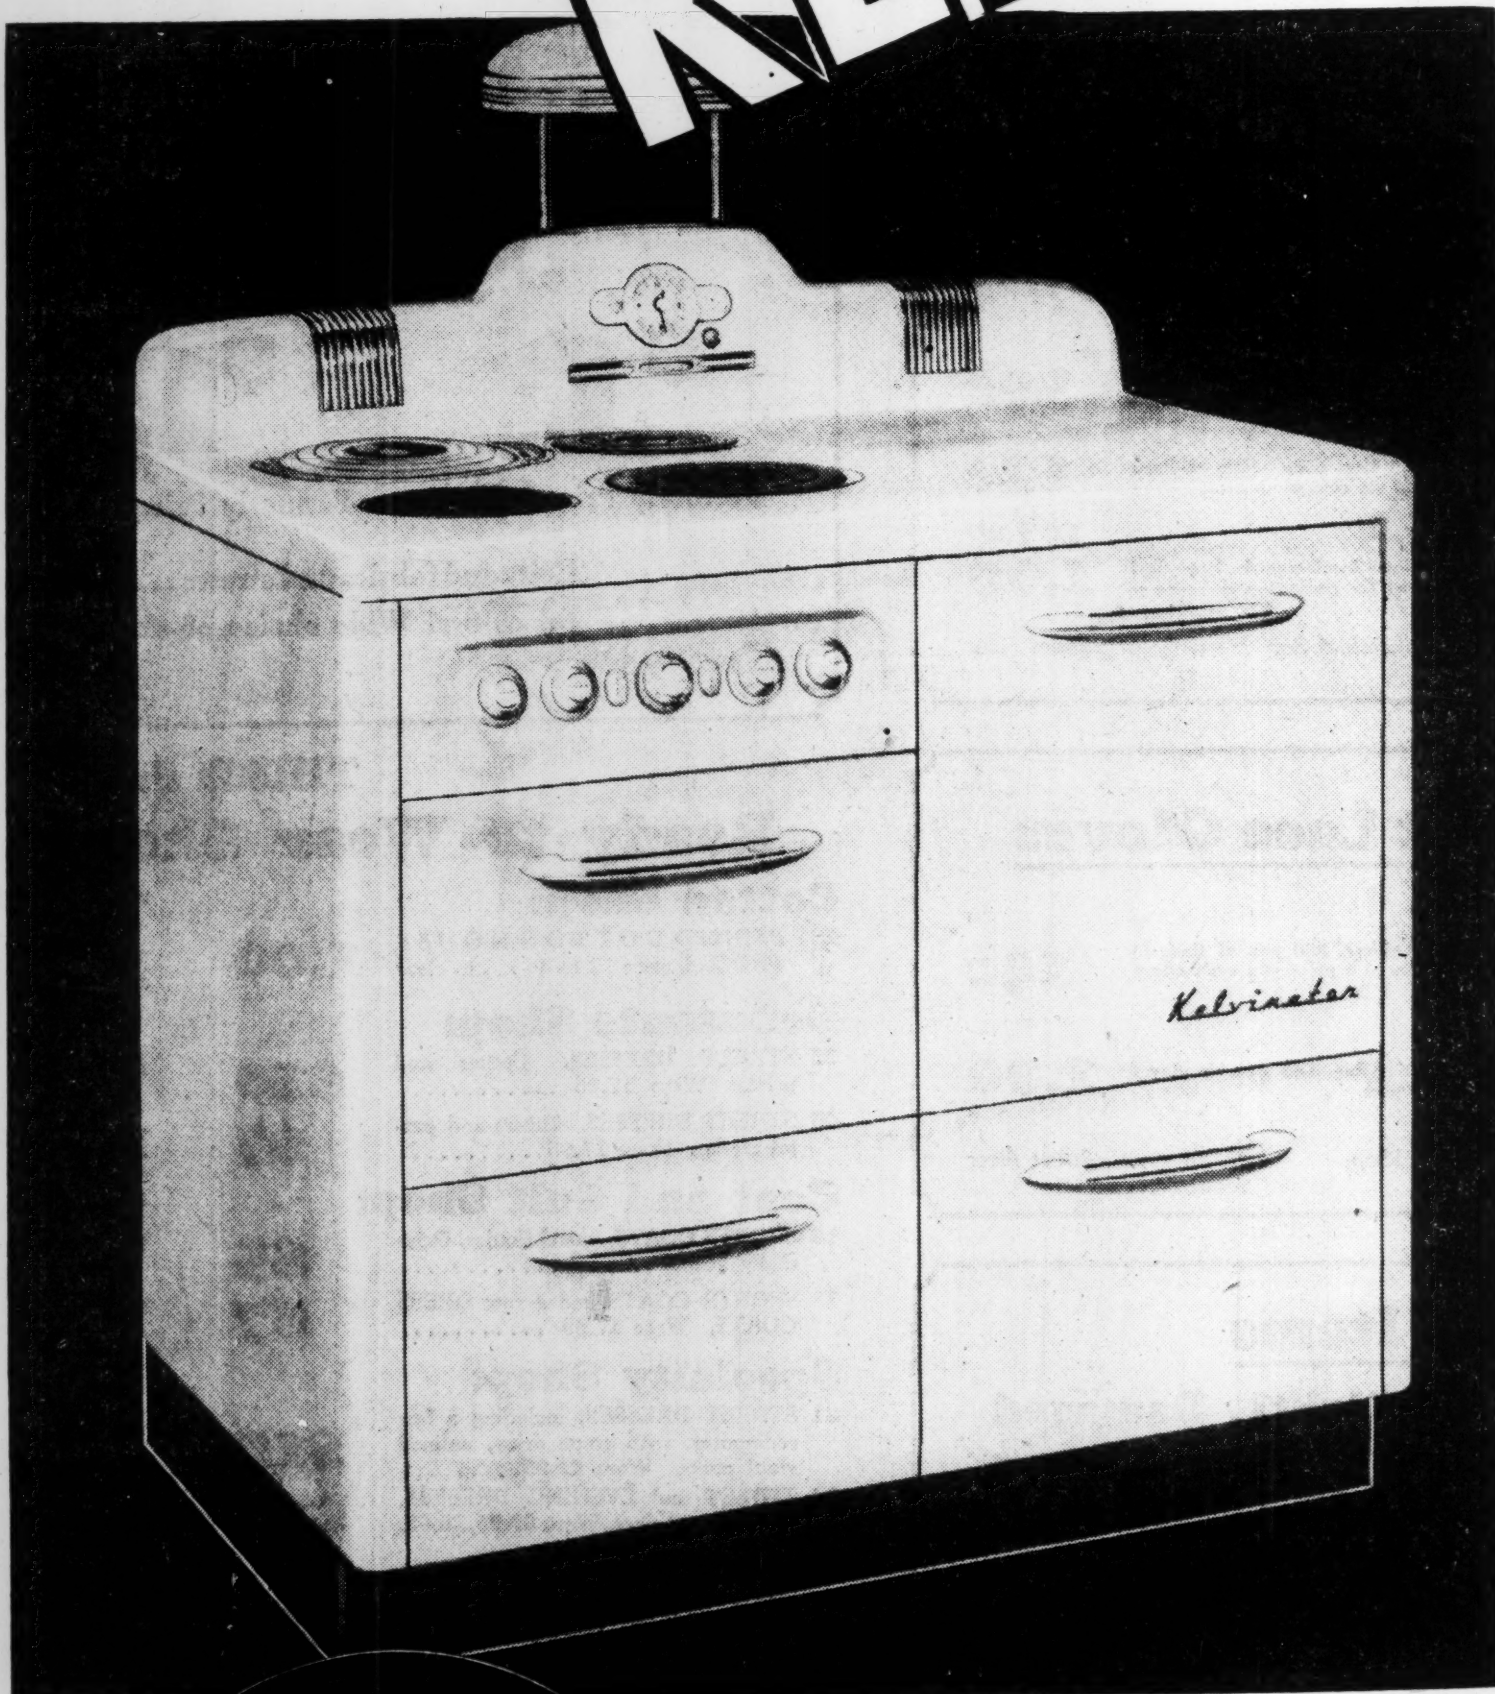

Immediately after the ceremony the couple will leave for an extensive wedding trip, and after September 15 will be at home in Charleston, S. C., where they will be attractive additions to the married contingent of society.

Agnes Scott Commencement Social Program Is Announced

Marking commencement season at Agnes Scott will be a series of social events of interest. The first of these will be the annual children's party at which members of the Decatur Agnes Scott Alumnae Club will be hostesses today at 4:30 o'clock in the alumnae gardens.

Saturday the trustees of the college will entertain at their annual luncheon at 1 o'clock in the Rebekah Scott dining hall. Dr. Philip Davidson, of the history department at Agnes Scott, will be the speaker.

Following luncheon there will be a meeting of the general alumnae association in Gaines chapel. Mrs. Murdoch Egan will preside and new officers will be elected.

Saturday evening at 6:30 o'clock the Phi Beta Kappa banquet will take place in the alumnae house, followed at 8:30 o'clock by Blackfriars' college dramatic club's presentation of Noel Coward's "I'll Leave It to You."

Sunday, June 2, will be featured by the baccalaureate sermon at 11 o'clock in the gymnasium auditorium. At 2:15 Sunday the dean's after-luncheon coffee takes place in the Murphy Candler building. Senior vespers will follow at 6 o'clock in Gaines chapel. An important feature is the open house at which the alumnae association entertains in the alumnae gardens for the seniors, their families and friends, and visiting alumnae at 6:30 o'clock Sunday. Mrs. Stillwell Robison and members of the entertainment committee, of which she is chairman, and members of the executive board will act as hostesses.

Monday the reunion luncheon will be held at 12:30 o'clock in the Anna Young alumnae house for the classes of 1908, 1909, 1910, 1911, 1927, 1928, 1929 and 1930.

Class day exercises will be held at 4 o'clock Monday in the May Day dell and will be followed by the laying of the cornerstone for the new Presser Fine Arts building.

The class of 1939 will hold a reunion dinner at 6:30 o'clock in the alumnae house. Members of the alumnae house will present a concert at 8:30 o'clock in Gaines chapel.

Graduating exercises will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday in the Bucher Scott gymnasium auditorium. President Harmon W. Caldwell, of the University of Georgia, will deliver the address.

O. D. D.'s Give Dance Tonight

A brilliant event of this evening will be the twenty-second annual sports dance at which members of the Alpha Chapter of Omicron Delta Delta, national high school fraternity, will entertain at the Capital City Club at Brookhaven. A breakfast at Pig 'n' Whistle will follow the affair.

Miss Schoolfield To Visit Miss Sullivan Next Week

Among popular belles returning to the city from their respective schools will be Miss Laleah Sullivan, attractive niece of Mr. and Mrs. Cam Dorsey, who arrives next Wednesday from Chatham Hall, in Virginia. She will be accompanied by Miss Lucile Schoolfield, of Rye, N. Y., who will be her guest.

Miss Schoolfield is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Schoolfield, of Rye. Her mother, the former Miss Rose Brisco, of Knoxville, Tenn., will be remembered by Atlanta society, from visits here when she was a young girl.

The attractive belles will be feted at a series of parties, the first of the affairs to be the luncheon at which Mrs. Dorsey will entertain on Wednesday at her home on Memorial drive.

Another interesting social affair planned is the luncheon and bridge party at which Miss Anne Owens will be hostess at her home on Pace's Ferry road. The affair will be held on Thursday, and at 5 o'clock following a bridge game the girls will attend the swimming meet to be held at the Piedmont Driving Club.

Miss Dorothy Grove will entertain at a luncheon on Friday honoring the school belles and on Saturday Mrs. Alex Smith and her twin daughters, Misses Carol and Joan Smith, will entertain at a badminton party and alfresco supper at their home on Tuxedo road.

Miss Tattie Shipp will be hostess at a party honoring Miss Sullivan and her visitor, the date and nature of this affair and additional parties to be announced later.

Mr., Mrs. Harold Give Reception At Driving Club

The brilliant reception given last evening by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Walker Harold at the Piedmont Driving Club followed the concert in which Mrs. Harold's lyric soprano voice charmed an appreciative assemblage of their friends and relatives.

The reception took place in the ballroom, which was beautified with stately palms and the table, covered in white satin damask, was centered with a graceful arrangement of red roses.

Lovely Mrs. Harold was gowned in a becoming model of azalea-pink marquisette posed over matching taffeta trimmed with tiny pink azaleas. Her flowers were Dainty Bess roses, which harmonized perfectly with her costume.

Among prominent visitors attending the important social function were Miss Elizabeth Harold, of Macon; Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lanier, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sheffield and Mrs. Howard Morgan, from Americus; Mr. and Mrs. John Seals, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Harold, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders Walker, and Steve Popper, from Macon; Clair Frederick, from Fort Valley; Mrs. W. H. Field, Miss Alice Field and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Walker, from Monroe; and Mrs. Lillian Johnson, of Columbus, Ohio.

Mrs. Keith Culbertson and Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Longino.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Turner Diamond announce the birth of a daughter at Crawford W. Long hospital on May 25, whom they have named Ann Manelle. Mrs. Diamond is the former Miss Evelyn Louise Roberts.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Anthony Forrester announce the birth of a daughter on May 26 at Crawford W. Long hospital, who has been named Brenda Mae. Mrs. Forrester is the former Miss Loyce Elizabeth Hoyle.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Joseph Palmisano announce the birth of a daughter at Crawford W. Long hospital on May 27, who has been given the name Vicki Jane. Mrs. Palmisano is the former Miss Ella Frances Hayes.

Mrs. J. Thomas Hutcheson is recuperating from a recent operation at Emory University hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Noel Hamilton Folsom and infant daughter, Leslie Anne, arrived in the city yesterday to visit Mr. and Mrs. John D. Hargrave and Mrs. M. M. Folsom. Mr. Folsom is the eldest son of Noel Byron Folsom, a former resident of Atlanta, now of Yonkers, N. Y. Leslie Anne is a great-granddaughter of Mrs. M. M. Folsom and the late Montgomery M. Folsom. After a stay in Atlanta, Mr. and Mrs. Folsom and daughter will leave for Yonkers, N. Y., to visit relatives there before returning to their home in Narrows, Virginia.

L. V. Kennerly continues ill at his home in Ormewood Park.

Mrs. Lucille White and Mrs. George Williams, who have been the guests of Mrs. W. R. Leach for several weeks at her home in Stuart, Fla., will return home this week.

Miss Isabelle Smith has returned from Augusta, where she visited Mrs. Claude H. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton King and Mrs. Will C. King will leave for Danville, Va., and Pittsburgh, Pa., to visit Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Elkins. Mrs. Will King will visit her sister, Mrs. Seneca Savetelle, in Danville, Va. Mrs. Ann Littlepage will accompany them to visit her daughter, Mrs. A. B. Mitchell, in Danville.

Miss Jean McIntosh has returned from Sullins College in Bristol, Va., to spend her vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth McIntosh.

Ensign William Gregg, United States navy, has returned to his ship after a visit to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gregg Jr., of East Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Addison Smith, of Laconia, N. H., arrived yesterday to visit their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smith Sr., on Pace's Ferry road. Mrs. Smith is the former Miss Rose Mary Manry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Manry, of this city.

Hal Steed is ill at the Emory University hospital.

Misses Barbara Regenstein, Mildred Carpenter, Jane Patton, Jody Fenger, Jean Burton, Mary Keith

Mr., Mrs. Howell To Open Gardens.

The exquisite rose gardens of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Howell at their country home on the Lawrenceville highway near Tucker, will be opened to the public Sunday afternoon, after 3 o'clock.

Of particular interest is the fact that the roses are "experimental plants" being nourished only by rainwater. Mrs. Howell specializes in roses, having many varieties at her country home, as well as at her home in Ansley Park. She is conservation chairman for the Forsythia Garden Club.

Party Takes Place At Pinebloom

Highlighting the social calendar for today is the annual party to be given by the Sheltering Arms Association for the children in their two nurseries, Cornelia Moore and Osgood Sanders, at "Pinebloom," the Ponce de Leon home of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Arkwright, the latter being honorary president of Sheltering Arms.

Over 150 children from both nurseries will assemble on the lawn at 3 o'clock, as well as members of the association. Ice cream booths will be set up about the grounds. There will be rides in pony carts drawn around the grounds by ponies loaned by the city of Atlanta. Grab-bags and "fishing ponds" will also be featured.

Mesdames Jack Glenn and Octavia Riley Boland are in charge of the arrangements and their committee includes Mesdames Gracie Shaefer, James Wilcox, Richard Cannon, Robert Pegram IV, John Pye, Julian Barrett and Maxwell Couper Jr.

A dance program will be presented by the two nurseries under the direction of Miss Nancy Keeler and Mrs. Charles Meriwether.

Parties Planned For Miss Clapp.

Parties continue to be planned for Miss Sue Clapp, whose marriage to Charles E. Freeman will be a brilliant event of June 7.

Miss Frances Sisson entertained recently at a bridge party at her home on Wisteria drive complementing the popular bride-elect and today Misses Florence Jones, Peggy Dutton and Miriam Dinwiddie will be hostesses at a soft drink party at the home of Miss Jones on Dellwood drive.

Mrs. Robert E. Bruce has selected June 3 as the date for the tea at which she will be hostess at her home in Morningside complementing Miss Clapp and on June 5 Mrs. Sims Bray will entertain at a luncheon at her home on Juniper street.

Additional parties have been planned for the couple following their marriage, the dates and nature of these affairs to be announced later.

Miss Emmie Martin and Miss Clapp shared honors recently at the luncheon at which Miss Margaret Winship was hostess at her home on Peachtree way.

Present were Misses Martin, Clapp, Jane Osburn, Mary Katherine Reeves, Margaret Clarke, Mary Clapp, Margaret Mathews, Agnes White, of Athens; Mesdames McKee Nunnally, William Mason, Wick Goldsmith and the hostess.

Miss Clapp and Miss Martin also shared honors yesterday at a breakfast at which Miss Mary Katherine Reeves was hostess at the East Lake Country Club.

Present were Misses Margaret Matthews, Jane Osburn, Jessie Strickland, Georgia Oliver, Mary Clapp, Margaret Clarke, and Mesdames Wickliffe Goldsmith Jr., Fred Eve III, McKee Nunnally, William Mason and James Rimer.

Stansell, Mary Ann White, Margaret Anne Speas and Valerie McCullough leave tomorrow for St. Simons Island, where they will spend two weeks. They will be accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Vretman.

Mrs. R. P. Butler is improving from an operation at the Ponce de Leon infirmary.

Party Planned For School Girls

"Pine Top," the colonial home of Mrs. W. F. Upchurch, on Wieuka road, will be the scene of a tea and garden party today from 4:30 to 6 o'clock in honor of Misses Anna Catherine Jones and Annette Spinning, classmates at North Fulton High school. The party will assemble more than a hundred of the high school contingent.

Tall baskets of th pastel shaded flowers will grace the foot of the winding stairway. Punch will be served from an alcove in the dining room, while the dining table, overlaid with antique lace, will be centered with a plateau of blue delphinium and pink roses.

On the terrace overlooking the gardens will be two tea tables, overlaid with pink organdy cloths, and garlanded by pink roses.

Miss Jones will wear pale yellow marquisette, while Miss Spinning will wear ice blue embroidered tulle.

Mrs. Upchurch will receive with the honor guests in the living room. Others assisting in the entertaining will be Misses Anita Peavy, Angelique de Golan, Nancy Emery, Margaret Kennedy, Jessie Etheridge, Joy Clough, Jane Gann and Elizabeth George, Mrs. Dudley Jones and Mrs. Wesley Spinning.

For Miss Speck.
Miss Evelyn Speck, whose marriage to Robert E. Gartner will be a social event of today was the central figure at the miscellaneous shower at which Miss Kathryn Hardin was hostess at her home on Beecher street recently.

Assisting the hostess were her mother, Mrs. W. L. Hardin, and her sister, Mrs. W. L. Hardin Jr.

Invited were Misses Margaret Blackman, Sofina Myers, Pickett Myers, Mary Myers, June Speck, Vera Mae Murray, Genevieve Olds, Myrtis Hoffman, Minnie Brown, Emily Harris and Mesdames Blackman, Giles Myers, John Crankshaw, J. S. Skender, Charles Fleming and Roy H. Speck.

Members of the honor guests' wedding party will motor to LaGrange, where they will be entertained at luncheon at the Highland Country Club. They will enjoy swimming, golf, bridge and other games following luncheon.

The hostess will be assisted in entertaining by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Callaway. Her guests will include Miss Garrett, Mr. Ison, Misses Cato Welchel, Claire Johnson, Laura Palmer, Betty Garges, Ione Mercer, Alice Johnson, Dorothy Giddings, Catherine Tift, Anne Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Ison Sr., Dr. and Mrs. Steve Garrett, Mr. and Mrs. Abe Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Ison Jr., Malon Wright, Roane Beard, Jabbo Merrill, Dan Yates, Roy George, Lois Perkinson, Bill Hausseal, Matt Cole, Cal Voorhis and Bunny Johnson.

Miss Jessie Avery Fettes Miss Ellis.
Among interesting affairs of Sunday was the bridge-tea at which Mrs. Jessie Avery was hostess at her home on Moreland avenue honoring Miss Mary Ellis, whose marriage to Lester Davis went to bed at 11 o'clock.

Throughout the house a profusion of flowers were effectively arranged.

The hostess was assisted in entertaining by the bride-elect's sister, Miss Augusta Ellis.

Invited for the occasion were Mesdames Clayton Key, Tom Hays, Jack Randall, C. L. Chandler, Misses Martha Guest, Marjorie Garrett and Irene Cowan.

Seminary Girls Receive Honors.
Announcement is made today of the Washington seminary graduates elected to membership on the Washington Seminary Round Table, one of the highest honors awarded to members of the class.

In the group are Miss Allice Johnson, Sue Pierson, Janet Allcorn, Catherine Tift, Cato Welchel, Tina Perez Lopez, of Cuba, and Maria Luisa Bergnes Bolivar, also of Cuba.

Miss Parnell Is Hostess
Miss Jean Parnell entertained her classmates and friends at Whiteford Avenue school at a wiener roast recently at her home on Moreland avenue. Mr. and Mrs. James R. Parnell, parents of the hostess, assisted in entertaining.

For Miss Snyder.

Miss Frances Hunt entertained recently at her home on Barnett place with a tea honoring Miss Betty Snyder, whose marriage to Roy Johnson takes place in June. Miss Hunt was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. C. D. Hunt, and her aunt, Mrs. C. J. Stewart. Mrs. C. Hope presided at the punch bowl.

Wilbur Shaw Cops 2d Straight 500-Mile Indianapolis Classic

All in the Game

BY JACK TROY

Saved By Rain Tech had a baseball series scheduled with Vanderbilt at Nashville conflicting with examinations at the Flats. It meant some of the players couldn't make the trip.

Hank Cavette, an ace pitcher, had to stay behind. Coach Roy Mundorff frankly was in a spot for a pitcher for the Saturday game.

Mundorff looked over his squad carefully and chose Joe Brock, who did not pitching in high school and was kept out of action last year because of a chipped bone in his arm.

He told Brock the night before that he was going to pitch. That was the beginning of the strangest episode ever recorded in college baseball.

Mundorff relates that when the rest of the Tech players gathered for lunch, Brock didn't order. The jacket coach thought it plausible it was because Brock might be nervous.

And then before lunch was over Brock ordered and ate the meal.

Going out to the mound for the first inning, Brock said he felt funny and Mundorff patted him on the back and assured him everything was going to be all right.

Brock walked the first three men. But he got out of the jam with only one run being scored.

The game went on. Overcast skies threatened rain. Brock came up in the fifth and hit a single. Johnny Bosch camp up behind him and tripled. Brock

Win His Third; Speed Slowed By Wet Track

Rex Mays Finishes Second; Rose and Horn Follow.

By CHARLES DUNKLEY.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—(P)—Dapper Wilbur Shaw, of Indianapolis, drove today to his third triumph in the Indianapolis "500," beating out Rex Mays, of Glendale, Cal., by 2-1-2 miles in the 28th annual motor speedway race, the pace of which was slowed by sprinkles of rain.

Shaw became the second driver in the history of the speedway classic to win the event three times and the first ever to win twice in succession. Louis Meyer, of Huntington Park, Cal., who retired after last year's race, is the only other previous three-time winner.

The 37-year-old Shaw, who first triumphed in 1937 and repeated in 1939, piloted his shark-nosed eight-cylinder Italian-made car to victory today in 4:22:31.16 to average 114.277 miles an hour, far below the record of 117.200 miles established by the late Floyd Roberts in 1938. Driving the entire 500 miles without relief and making only two quick stops for gasoline and tire changes, Shaw possibly could have shattered all records for the distance if it had not rained. He had cracked the records at 300 and 350 miles.

A crowd of 142,000 thronged the 488-acre racing plant.

FLAG OF CAUTION.

After Shaw whizzed past the finishing line on his 375th mile, a yellow flag of caution was waved in the faces of the drivers because of a sprinkling rain. The drivers were forced to reduce their speed for the last 125 miles because officials regarded slippery spots on the track as too dangerous.

After Shaw rode across the finishing line in triumph officials hung out the red flag calling the drivers off the track.

Mauri Rose, of Columbus, Ohio, won third place behind Mays and Ted Horn of Hawthorne, N. J., fourth. Joel Thorne of Tucson, Ariz., was fifth; Bob Swanson, of Los Angeles, sixth; Frank Weare, of Pasadena, Cal., seventh; Mel Hansen, of Los Angeles, eighth; Frank Brisko, of Chicago, ninth, and Harry McQuinn, of Indianapolis, tenth.

19 FINISHERS.

Nineteen of the original 33 starters, including the French Pole, Rene Lebegue, survived the finishing grind.

Three accidents—but no fatalities—knocked three of the cars out of the race before the first 100 miles had been reeled off. The first crashup injured Paul Rignati, of Buenos Aires, fifth American driving champion. The Argentine crashed into an inner guard rail on the southeast turn as he was tearing along on his 60th mile.

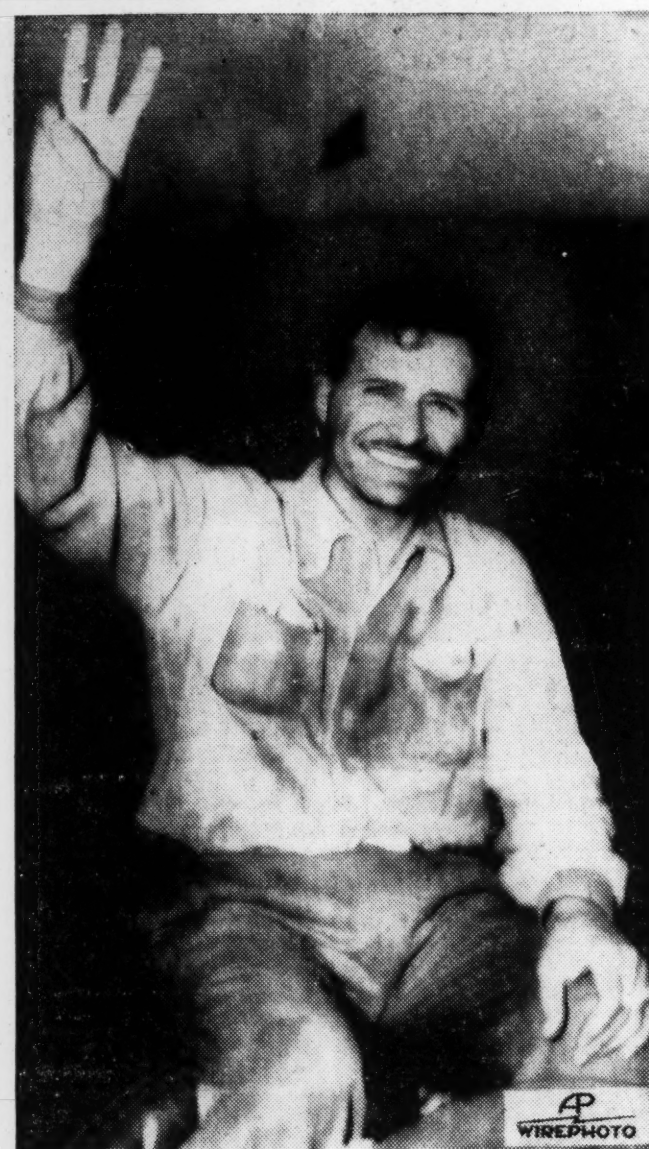

He was about 12-1-2 miles behind Mays, leading at the time, when his car went into spin, skidded across the track and hit the fence.

THROWN CLEAR.

Rignati was thrown clear of his wrecked car, landing on the grass in the infield. He was rushed to a hospital, where it was said he suffered a wrenched back and cuts on the nose.

A few seconds later Tommy Hennrich, of Reading, Pa., came roaring down the straightaway. Suddenly the brakes of his car locked and he swerved into a retaining wall. Although he suffered a broken right arm, he brought his car to a stop on the opposite side of the track.

The veteran Ralph Hepburn, of THREE-TIME WINNER—Wilbur Shaw, hometown boy, made good yesterday by winning his third Memorial Day auto classic. Here he is after he finished the grind. The win made him the first driver ever to win two consecutive "Iron Derbies."

Smithies Beat Purples, 13 to 6, To Take Big Five Prep Title

Tech High Blasts 18 Hits, Getting at Least One an Inning in Capturing Deciding Game of Playoff Series.

By CHARLIE ROBERTS.

The wild west would have seemed as tame as an old ladies' sewing circle if compared to the wild and woolly goings-on in the baseball game in which Tech High won the "Big Five" prep league championship by outblasting their old rivals, Boys' High, in the deciding game of a three-game series yesterday at Rose Bowl field.

After two pitchers' battles in the opening duo of contests the boys cut loose with everything in sight, but the kitchen mop, and after over three hours of swinging the scoreboard groaned under the 13-to-6 victory posted by the Smithies, who had cracked out 18 hits to 12 for the Purple brigade.

The Smithies scored in every inning except the third and ninth. They banged out at least one in each inning of three Purple flingers. They left nine men on the bases, exactly one each inning. The two teams stole at least 19 bases, 11 by the winners.

The gory, gruesome details of necessity must be omitted. Suffice it to say every Tech High player except Howell and McConnell got at least one hit. Marion West, Jack Cough and Charlie Bowen slammed out four each. West batted in four runs and scored three. He had a triple, double and two singles. Bowen scored three runs and stole four bases.

For the harassed Purples Bill Bailey garnered three safeties, including a long home run, out of five trips. Grogan had two out of three attempts. Forrest Smith, on the mound for the winners, went the route, though batted hard at times. Clint Castleberry, Boys' high center fielder, made a highly sensational catch of Smith's powerful drive labeled home run in the sixth frame for the day's fielding highlight.

SEVERE SHAKING.

Duke Nalon, of Chicago, suffered only a severe shaking up when his crankshaft broke and sent his car spinning off the track after it had covered 292 miles.

Shaw won more than $30,000. He grabbed the $20,000 first prize and won $5,100 in lap awards. He also will receive other cash awards from automobile concerns.

The flying Hoosier overhauled Mays, who set the early pace, on the 85th mile and lost it only once thereafter. He regained the lead at 260 miles when the four drivers ahead of him were forced to make pit stops and never headed again.

500,000 Attend Memorial Day Major Sports

'Iron-Derby' Attracts 142,000; Major Games Draw 237,828.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—The American sports public celebrated Memorial Day by turning out in the hundreds of thousands for favorite athletic diversions.

The annual 500-mile speedway race at Indianapolis attracted a throng of 142,000 in spite of threatening weather.

Seven major league baseball games divided up 237,828 customers, including the third largest single crowd in the diamond pastime's history, 92,437 at New York.

Another 179,359 spectators jammed the five leading horse racing tracks now operating. Of this number 46,500 were at Suffolk Downs in Boston, 41,859 at Belmont Park outside New York city, 44,000 at Hollywood, 20,000 at Delaware and 25,000 at Chicago's Lincoln fields.

The total baseball turnout would have been larger except for rain which forced postponement of the game at Pittsburgh.

Eight-Thirty Wins Suburban; Can't Wait 2d, Third Degree 3d

Widener Colt Finishes a Length Ahead To Pay $8.60 for $2 Ticket; Masked General Is Fourth.

NEW YORK, May 30.—(P)—George D. Widener's Eight Thirty, beaten in the Metropolitan mile last week, came back today to win the mile and quarter of the $20,000 Suburban handicap at Belmont Park. Myron Selznick's Can't Wait was second and Mrs. Payne Whitney's Third Degree, winner of the Metropolitan, third, in the field of ten.

Rated off the pace most of the way by Jockey Harry Richards, the Widener colt made his move rounding the stretch turn, showed in front near the eighth pole and finished a length on top in 2 minutes, 1 3-5 seconds, compared to the track record of 2 minutes flat. Eight Thirty was top-weighted at 127 pounds.

Can't Wait and Masked General fought it out all the way until Eight Thirty took command, and at the finish, the former held a three-length margin on second place, with Third Degree coming up fast to head Masked General for the show spot.

Trailing the four leaders, in order, were William Woodward's Isolator, A. C. Bostwick's Belay, Mrs. Whitney's Hash, John B. Partridge's Sandy Boot, Jim Howell's Olympus, and Mrs. Clara Lyon Aluminio.

The victory was worth $19,850 to the winner and was a record pot for this 56-year-old stake. The crowd was announced officially at 41,859, which was said by local officials to have been exceeded only by the turnout for the Memorial Day racing here in 1907, when some 57,000 paid and free admissions were recorded unofficially.

Eight Thirty paid $8.60 for each $2 win ticket. Can't Wait returned $7.20 for place and Third Degree the favorite, was $2.30 to show.

U. S. Olympics Set July 12-13 Are Canceled

CHICAGO, May 30.—(P)—The American Olympic committee's plans for giving Uncle Sam's track and field stars a consolation meet in lieu of the international games abandoned by Finland were cancelled today.

The meet had been scheduled for Los Angeles July 12-13 as "final Olympic trials" to give American youngsters who had aimed at places on the 1940 American team a chance to display their prowess. William Garland, California member of the American Olympic committee, said cancellation was due to unsettled international conditions.

Avery Brundage, president of the AOC, and Kenneth L. (Tug) Wilson, Northwestern University athletic director and chairman of the AOC track and field committee, said lack of certainty that a representative field could be obtained for the event, along with financial problems, were responsible.

"The date was so late in the season," Brundage said, "that it appeared unlikely that we would have our best talent entered. It had been agreed by the committee that the meet should be held only if Olympic standards of competition could be met. When it appeared this was not likely, the meet was called off."

Wilson said his 13-man committee had conducted a mail vote on the advisability of holding the event, and there was "only a slight majority" in favor—not enough to go ahead with plans.

The 1940 Olympic games originally were awarded to Japan, which yielded the big show because of its military activities in China.

Finland took over the dates but was forced to abandon the games as the result of its warfare with Russia.

Army and Navy Aircraft Have Own Missions

Co-operation in Task of Defending U. S. Coasts Prevents Confusion.

By MARK S. WATSON.

For North American Newspaper Alliance. WASHINGTON, May 30.—The dual development of American defense aircraft—by the army air corps and by the navy bureau of aeronautics as wholly separate organizations—is proceeding without alteration of the theory that their missions are materially different and that each wing of our defensive system is best prepared to carry out its own mission with its own tools.

That there are areas off our coasts and around each navy base in distant waters where both aerial fleets operate does not alter the judgment of both services, or their hostility to the idea of a separate air force, as once was earnestly and angrily argued by aviation enthusiasts. Army and navy authorities state that each service performs its own exclusive mission most effectively under its own administration, and that through the existing co-ordinating board there is already full co-operation in the very wide twilight zone of coastal defense where otherwise there might be encroachments and confusion.

New Naval Air Bases. The question comes up through the White House decision to push the establishment of new or enlarged naval air bases, including several in continental United States, at a cost over the next few years of $124,000,000. These stations, originally recommended by the Hepburn board's 1938 report, add materially to the navy's air-base resources.

It happens that some of them are close to existing army air bases whose prime mission is coastal defense, and misgivings about their purpose have arisen. There is insistence, however, that this is very far from duplication, and that the naval air bases are not in fact devised as points from which naval planes would take off for those coast defense operations, which are traditionally the duty of the army. The navy air bases, it is explained, are analogous to the navy's ship bases; both necessarily existing on land so as to serve surely and without interruption for supply and repair purposes.

Helps to Protect Navy. The army air base serves a wholly different purpose from this. The army continues to hold its responsibility for protection of the country's coast—including the navy base itself. The only reason for the army's air base in Hawaii, for instance, is to protect the navy's base at that point. No one is able to determine how far out to sea the army air fleet is to go on such a mission. In the early days of aviation when each service was suspicious of the other's intentions, and both were fighting General Mitchell's "independent air force" idea (of which little has been heard for years) there was considerable disagreement.

Limitation Lifted. In that day, there were diehards, who held that because land troops stayed on shore, so army air troops should stay within the imaginary wall rising from the shore line. It soon became apparent that the way to defend a coast from foreign attack, however, is to go out to sea to meet the attackers, and the area within which the army air corps should carry out this conception of coast defense was recognized as stretching out to sea.

At one time its distance from shore was arbitrarily fixed at 100 miles—largely as a safety measure to protect the pilots of those experimental planes—but that limitation was soon recognized as unnecessary. It was realized, too, that longer flights out of sight of landmark developed better air navigators. Army planes, in fact, were among the first to fly to distant Hawaii.

Obviously there are possible land operations where the army air corps has exclusive concern as a branch of the army itself and there are sea operations where the navy fliers perform exclusively as adjuncts to the fleet. There is a middle zone which has no limits. An army in the field keeps its aerial scouts flying far ahead and to both flanks for its own protection; in the same way, the army in its capacity as coast defender is prepared to send aerial scouts aloft very far away from the ground troops, for the same scouting purpose.

Interception Effective. The navy provides such a screen, wherever its units lie, to be sure, but the army's coast defense plans must contemplate survey and protection over areas where at some given time there may be no fleet units to rely on.

Interception, followed by aerial combat far from the coast, it must be understood, is the most effective defense against aerial invasion. Postponing combat until the enemy is actually on or near the coast, even if that attack might avert a landing, is not likely to prevent a bombing of our own soil. Antiaircraft gunfire from the ground has proven notoriously ineffective against the Germans' very swift dive-bombing tactics—largely because the newest bombers move at such stupendous speed that the ground artillery is unable to sight and fire in time to hit such a whirlwind target.

Navy's Own Problems. The navy has its own problems. Its bureau of aeronautics (corresponding to the air corps in the army's organization) long ago developed its own techniques and plans for those aerial activities which are the navy's undisputed function. The fleet remains the nation's first line of defense, and the navy's air power is an adjunct to the fleet's normal mission. This is so different from the army's mission that its airplane types themselves are radically different.

Many of the navy's airplanes must be designed, for instance, to take off from water rather than land, and to alight in the water, almost regardless of sea and weather conditions. This means that in some respects they are subjected to far greater strain than is the land plane, and must be designed and built to possess greater strength.

Several types are designed to be launched by catapult rather than by their own lifting power, and this again involves a strain unknown to normal land planes. Likewise, they are hoisted from the sea by ship's cranes, a new stress. Others are designed to be stopped very suddenly on landing upon a carrier deck, involving still a different sort of strain. All are subject to the shock of gunfire aboard ship.

All, too, must have minimum wing span to permit storage aboard ship—whether one of the two small scout planes which can be squeezed aboard the old type of light cruiser or one of the 75 which can be housed on our large carriers.

Air Navy Types.

The six standard types of airplanes now in navy use are designed for the varied missions of the fleet. They include (1) the battleship observation and scouting planes; (2) the longer-range cruiser-based plane (both of which are seaplanes launched by catapult); (3) the fighting plane carrying machinegun and light bombs, and (4) the scout bomber carrying heavy bombs (both of which are land-plane type and hence need a carrier's broad deck for getting into the air and for alighting); (5) the great torpedo bomber (using torpedo or bomb depending on the "ceiling" which the current weather forces it to keep) and (6) the patrol bomber, another heavy type.

These types have been arrived at as a result of experimentation, and all are peculiarly fitted for the navy's several missions, as suggested by their description. They are not designed for army needs, and the army's planes are not exchangeable with them. Flying authorities of both services are in agreement that European efforts to consolidate all aircraft under one head have not succeeded. The tendency to eliminate types, for economy purposes, is found likely to eliminate types which soon or late are of vital need for a given emergency. The need may be rare, as it is a grave one.

In particular, the navy flyer is trained as a navy officer and hence understands without special instruction precisely what his mission aloft may be. The converse is true with the army aviator, equally trained for his particular job of co-operating with the land forces of which the army's air corps is an essential part.

Students Get Answers; Supply Questions Only PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 30.—(UP)—Professor Daniel J. O'Neill, of Providence College, conducted a final English examination in a novel manner yesterday. He gave the seniors 20 answers, and told them to supply the correct questions. Only about three per cent failed to pass.

FRESHMEN REFRESHMENT. CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 30.—(UP)—Fifty Harvard University freshmen petitioned the Harvard Union to serve a steak dinner between now and the end of the semester presumably to build up strength for exams.
